MINOR EARTHQUAKE HITS VICTORIA AREA

A minor earthquake was felt in Victoria at 2:45 a.m. today.

Dr. William G. Milne, seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Little Saanich Mountain, said he felt the slight shudder.

The seismograph he keeps in his home registered a quake with a magnitude of about 2.5. Origin of the earthquake was about 15 miles southeast of Victoria, he said.

Six Kidnap U.S. Attache

GUATEMALA CITY (CP) — Left-wing guerrillas who kidnapped a U.S. embassy attache in downtown Guatamala City Friday said they would kill him unless the government releases four of their commandos within 48 hours and guarantees them safe passage to Mexico.

In a typewritten letter to newspapers early today, the Guatemalan Armed Revolutionary Force promised to execute Sean Michael Holly, a 41-year-old labor attache at the U.S. embassy, if the government does not meet their deadline, which expires at 2 a.m. Sunday.

The letter, dropped into mail boxes at the newspapers, also ordered the government to "immediately cease all persecution of rebel forces." and to order police and the Guatemalan Army to stop all hostilities against the revolutionary movement.

Holly was kidnapped from his car in front of a local bank Friday afternoon by six youths armed with submachine-guns and was driven away in one of two cars used by the kidnappers.

The operation was watched by four armed guards standing in front of the bank and by crowds of citizens who thought it was a police arrest.

FILLED IN NAME

The letter demanding the release of the four guerrillas was typed neatly with a space left where Holly's name was filled in with ink.

Police surmised that the guerrillas were ready to kidnap any member of the embassy and that Holly was merely a victom of circumstances.

The kidnapping followed a similar seizure by the rebel group last week of Guatemalan Foreign Minister Alberto Fuentes Mohr. After his life was threatened he was freed the following day in exchange for a guerrilla leader, Jose Giron Calvillo, 24, who was held by police.

Since the killing of U.S. Ambassador John Gordon Mein by guerrillas who tried to kidnap him from his car in August, 1968, U.S. diplomats have been urged to exercise caution. But officials said it was impossible to guard against events such as the kidnapping Friday.

The guerrillas whose release was demanded in the letter today were Vialina Antonietta Monzon, Jose Manuel Aguirre Monzon, Jose Antonio Sierra and Leonel del Cid. The Monzons, brother and sister, are being held on a charge of car theft while the others are confined for subversive activities.

Holly, a respected labor adviser, is married and the father of five boys, ranging in age from five to 11. He has been in Guatemala since July, 1968.

'Show Heathens War Is Hell'

WASHINGTON (WP) — The United States should destroy a North Vietnamese city in retaliation for that country's treatment of American war prisoners and their families, House armed services committee chairman L. Mendel Rivers, told a group of wives of missing U.S. servicemen in an emotional hearing Friday.

"Let them know war is hell," the South Carolina Democrat and one of the country's most powerful legislators, said "And give them a hell of a lot of it. Let them witness what would happen to have one of their cities disappear from the face of the earth.

"We've been powerfully patient while this bunch of heathens have toyed with these ladies' tender feelings."

Rivers and other committee members were moved to the bitter denunciations by a frank and stirring account by four wives of a month-long, apparently fruitless trip around the world to win world opinion to their side and to learn whether their missing husbands were dead or alive.

"The administration should give consideration to not withdrawing any more troops from Vietnam until these people are released," Rep. Charles E. Bennett (D—Fla.) said.

Duncan Fire Kills Mother, Children

By ED GOULD

A mother and her three children died early this morning in a fire which raced through their home at North Cowichan.

Mrs. Elsie O'Connell, 29, died while attempting to rescue her two-year-old daughter Shannon from the front bedroom of their home at 5936 Lakes Road.

David O'Connell, 33, her husband is in satisfactory condition in Cowichan District Hospital after making two trips back into the flaming building to carry out Cynthia, 11, and April Deanna, 7.

The girls were dead or died shortly after they were taken to hospital.

MUFFLED SOUND

Cause of the fire, which began at 12:05 a.m., was not determined but Fire Chief Jack Scoular of North Cowichan volunteer fire department said it appeared to have originated in the living room on the south side of the modern three-bedroom frame home.

A neighbor, R. J. Williamson, who had just come off afternoon shift at 11:30 p.m. at Crofton Pulp and Paper Limited, was just going to bed shortly after midnight when he heard a muffled sound "like something falling." A few moments later a splintering of glass was heard.

"I rushed to our window and the living room in the O'Connell house was just gushing with flames. When I came home there was no sign of fire."

His wife phoned the fire department and assistant chief Ernie Cardiff, who lives in the area, was on the scene in five minutes.

Williamson said he ran

U.S. Plans 'Grand Tour' Of Space

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon proposed today that the United States start planning in 1972 for "grand tour" unmanned space missions later in the decade to visit Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto.

In a statement issued at his Florida home, Nixon said "the positions of the planets at that time will give us a unique opportuntity to launch missions which can visit several of them on a single flight of over 3,000,000,000 miles."

He cited as a "long-range goal" an eventual expedition to put men on Mars.

Proposal Rejected

OTTAWA (CP) — The Council of Postal Unions announced today its 27,000 members have again rejected a federal government contract proposal.

Johnson 'Stable'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Army doctors say former president Johnson is in good spirits and his vital signs are stable. But when asked if his condition was better or worse, they replied: "Neither."

Fire Blazes On

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — High wind and turbulent seas today forced another delay in an attempt to put out a raging fire on an oil-well platform in the Gulf of Mexico.

Train Jumps Rails

DURBAN, South Africa (UPI) — A passenger train jumped the rails and smashed into an overhead pedestrian bridge near here today. Witnesses said at least five persons were killed and 100 injured, many seriously, when the train mounted a station platform and plowed into the bridge at the nearby town of Umzine.

Liquor Probe Proposals Applauded

As the Morrow Commission expected, early reaction to their report on B.C.'s liquor laws and drinking habits is seeing, as being most important, the call for a "crash program" of education and rehabilitation.

Even the Women's Christian Temperance Union likes that recommendation.

The three-man Liquor Inquiry Commission, in its 119-page report tabled in the legislature by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black Friday, predict their recommendations on alcoholism might be seen by many as "the most important contribution."

The 68 recommendations in the 37,500-word report will get careful study from the government which has only about two weeks in which to decide whether to introduce legislation this session.

SUPPORT GENERAL

Initial reaction from MLAs who had heard only of the main recommendations appeared to be good in all parties with a strong backbench Socred element which is known to be enthusiastic.

If there is consensus on the report, it is that the time had come to clear, what Reg Clarkson, Vancouver Island director of the B.C. Alcoholism Foundation called "archaic and inconvenient" laws from the books.

But he and others concerned about the social dangers of alcohol abuse are most pleased to find that the commissioners call for a cabinet-minister directed program to teach the dangers of abuse and to help those who have succumbed.

GLARING GAP'

As Dave Barrett, the social worker who is leader of the New Democratic Party Opposition puts it, this has been "one of the glaring gaps in Social Credit" government action.

"I don't see how the government can ignore that recommendation."

Chairman of the commission was Judge C. W. Morrow of the County Court of Yale, and the two other members were labor leader Ed Lawson, a teetotaller and retired Roman Catholic Archbishop Martin M. Johnson.

The government has already beaten the commission to one of its major recommendations — that of lowering the drinking age and the age of majority for all purposes to 19.

A bill for that purpose was introduced earlier this week.

PRICE CHANGES

One recommendation that may not be so quickly accepted is a proposal for raising the price of beer moderately and wine slightly while lowering that of whisky considerably by revising the taxing system on alcohol.

More Bombings Hit Trinidad

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuters) — The glass doors of a Canadian bank were smashed and two gasoline bombs were thrown at the home of a Roman Catholic priest early today following a series of Black Power demonstrations.

No arrests were reported in the bomb attack on the priest's home, but police said they are holding a man in connection with the smashing of the doors at the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The priest, Irish-born Rev. Jules Graham of Belmont Church, told the police he was asleep at the time of the attack. He said there was no serious damage.

It was the second anticlerical incident in two days. Friday, an Anglican priest suffered minor injuries when he was beaten up by Black Power militants.

Two Canadian banks were damaged Friday when bombs were thrown from a car speeding through the suburb of San Juan. The San Juan branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia escaped damage when a gasoline-filled bottle thrown at it landed on top of a garment factory next door.

The factory, which suffered damage estimated at $15,000, is owned by an Indian, Soogrim Bhadoordsingh.

About 15,000 persons gathered in San Juan early today to hear one of the Black Power leaders apologize for the burning of the factory.

"No harm was intended for any Indians," said Geddes Granger. "Indians are our black brothers."

In this country of close to 1,000,000 inhabitants, the Indian community totals about 35 per cent of the population. Negroes comprise 43 per cent, mixed-bloods 16 per cent, whites two per cent and Chinese one per cent.

Israeli Raiders Fire 'Warning'

By Reuters

Israeli raiders returned to base early today after crossing into Lebanon for an attack intended to underline diplomatic warnings over Arab commando activity.

A military spokesman said the Israelis killed one guerrilla, captured two and blew up several buildings in a village suspected of harboring Arab commandos who operate against Israel.

But in Beirut, a Lebanese military spokesman said the man killed was a Lebanese soldier. He said one civilian was wounded, two others kidnapped and five houses and a tractor destroyed in a clash Friday night.

The raid was "a warning," the Israeli spokesman said. The Israeli attack followed several warnings issued through diplomatic channels, telling the Lebanese government to curb guerrillas hitting Israeli border villages and settlements from bases inside Lebanon.

Opponents Held

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith said today a "couple of hundred" political opponents of his white-minority government were detained without trial to preserve the freedom of Rhodesian people.

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League today suspended Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman Jim Dorey for six games for striking linesman Pat Shetler during the third period of a game against Minnesota North Stars last Sunday.

Unemployment In U.S. Jumps To 4.2 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (WP) — Unemployment jumped sharply for the second straight month in February to its highest level in more than four years, the U.S. government announced Friday.

The seasonally adjusted jobless rate rose to 4.2 per cent of the labor force from 3.9 per cent in January and 3.5 per cent in December.

'NO PAPIST REBELS HERE'

North Ireland Erupts Again

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Ten thousand civil rights demonstrators flooded into the city from all over Northern Ireland today, some of them pelting police with rotten apples and taunting British troops who separated them from Protestant hecklers.

As the demonstrators marched down the main street inside the ancient walls of the Old City, a largely Protestant area, some 300 Protestants gathered to taunt them.

"We'll have no papist rebels in our territory," the Protestants shouted. The civil rightists are largely comprised of members of Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority of Catholic partisans.

"We will get you out," the civil rights demonstrators shouted back.

As the demonstrators marched through the Old City gates into the main square, troops formed a barricade into the ancient city and sealed it off with barbed wire.

At first, police had patrolled the entrance to this Protestant district, but Catholics drove the police out, hurling rotten apples at them and shouting, "we got you out of the Bogside, we will get you out of here."

Bogside is the largest all-Catholic district of Londonderry. Sectarian rioting destroyed large parts of it last August.

As the ancient city was sealed off, a crowd of 3,000 Protestants were held back from the Catholic area by troops displaying bayonets.

The crowd swelled to about 3,000 on each side and troop reinforcements hurried in carrying barbed wire fences and banners reading "disperse or we will fire."

All the side streets connecting Protestant and Catholic neighborhoods were sealed off by police and troops. Catholics taunted the troops, yelling, "fireside soldiers go home to Britain."

"We are expecting trouble and all troops from surrounding areas have been called in," said a military spokesman. "The situation has all the ingredients of trouble and nightfall will tell."

The demonstrators were protesting unemployment in Northern Ireland, estimated at 17 per cent of the work force as well as alleged discrimination against Catholics in housing and other areas.

They carried banners reading, "it is work or war," and "smash the unionist state, Tories must go, north and south."

They consisted of pro-Catholic civil right demonstrators, labor and socialist groups, and other leftwing organizations from all over the country.

Mobile police canteens rolled into the city to service more than 500 police at key points, indicating they were preparing to last the night.

Saturday shoppers were not allowed to go from one end of the city to the other and cars were diverted and searched.

. . . LIQUOR PROBE

This could be expected to upset the majority of B.C. drinkers who prefer beer — perhaps for its price — over hard liquor and wine.

The recommendations range from advocacy of civilized drinking in public places through opening of licensed premises on Sundays and establishment of "neighborhood pubs" on a limited basis as an experiment.

Also proposed were a two-year price freeze on alcoholic beverages to fight inflation, replacement of the one-man current Liquor Control Board with a three-man board and a more "open" approach to its task and a crash program against alcoholism to be co-ordinated by a cabinet minister.

OUTDATED LAWS

The commission used tough language to deplore "gouging" of the public on wine prices in licensed establishments and also to make clear that it feels B.C.'s liquor laws are outmoded.

The commission report made no direct reference to charges of conflict of interest levelled against former attorney-general Robert Bonner by Prince George brewer Ben Ginter, but it did recommend an investigation into gifts given Liquor Control Board employees by Ginter's firm, Tartan Breweries.

One surprise in the report was its lack of reference to extension of daily drinking hours, a move favored by most who testified at the hearings.

An extension of the Saturday early closing was expected to be a recommendation of the report.

COST $80,000

Its recommendations are the result of a year's study estimated to have cost $80,000 — modest for a royal commission — which heard the views of 153 witnesses whose evidence comprises 4,934 pages.

An additional 5,000 letters were recieved and studied and the entire bound package totalled 50 volumes.

The first public hearing was held March 17, 1969, less than two months after Premier Bennett appointed the commission. The final hearing January 9, 1970.

The task was to conduct a broad study of the province's liquor laws.

At that time Opposition Leader Robert Strachan noted Judge Morrow also had headed the Royal Commission on gasoline pricing, which reported to the government four years ago without any action being taken.

PROVED POINT

That showed the attitude of the government towards royal commissions, said the NDP leader.

The commission's hearings were frequently stormy and ended with the Liquor Control Board drawing a sharp rebuke from the commission's counsel Neil Davidson.

Col. Donald McGugan was chairman and sole member of the board for 18 years until retiring last spring and the acting chairman and lone member at the moment is William Bruce.

Davidson said it had been completely impossible to determine what board policy is from time to time.

And "without being unfair to LCB personnel, it is clear that they have from time to time been most uncommunicative, brusque and in fact, rude," he said.

EASY RULES

Over the months of hearings, briefs were heard and argued by a wide variety of organizations — and the commission set liberal ground rules permitting plenty of questioning from individuals and opposing sides.

One of the running feuds had the liquor and brewing interests arguing the merits of their own products and the menace of the others.

In between, spokesmen for the Women's Christian Temperance Union, carved up both sides.

That woman was Mrs. Janetta Rogers, a Burnaby housewife whom the commissioners praise in their report for her sincerity and zeal throughout the inquiry.

And the close of the hearings in Victoria they presented her with a bouquet of roses — in a beer stein.

UNHAPPY

Today she expressed disappointment with their findings.

She said she agreed with recommendations calling for government-sponsored education and rehabilitation programs relating to liquor.

But she said she was unhappy with the commission's proposal to extend drinking hours to Sundays and with the current bill and recommendation to lower the drinking age to 19.

These only served to make liquor more accessible and the WCTU maintains the greater the accessibility, the greater the incidence of alcoholism.

Besides: "The weekend is a time when traffic deaths due to alcohol are particularly bad and this would only increase the problem."

OH, NO!'

When told the commissioners also recommended neighborhood pubs, she replied "Oh, no!"

Mrsl Rogers said she did not feel commissioners investigated all aspects of alcoholism thoroughly, adding that she would have preferred a closer look at the physiological problems that accompany alcoholism the family problems and the highway traffic problems.

Reg Clarkson, speaking as a professional in the field of alcohol rehabilitation, disagreed somewhat that accessibility increased the problem — prohibition showed it did not necessarily.

The important thing is education — but not, as the commissioners recommend, only in the schools. The drinking man needs to be taught to drink responsibly.

Clarkson said good school-oriented programs outside the province had not had an appreciable influence on later alcoholism statistics.

He expressed some surprise that the commissioners had made such a recommendation, because there was some feeling during the hearings that there was not enough concentration on the "social damage" aspects.

Neither Premier Bennett nor Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, the men who will be chiefly responsible for the fate of the report, were available for comment

Meanwhile, up in Prince George, brewer Ben Ginter, in an interview, said he is ready for a fight over the commission's criticism of the Christmas turkey's he gave some LCB employees.

Ginter says they were not bribes. And he says they were not from his Taran Breweries Ltd. They were personal gifts from him

He was critical of what he said was the report's apparent failure to put an end to the situation which has various distillers and brewers selling at set brand prices.

He maintains the market should be free and says he could sell his beer cheaper.

ALSO PLEASED

In Victoria, the restaurant and hotel people appear generally pleased with provisions in the report for entertainment in licensed premises, beer gardens and sidewalk cafes. Again, they consider this a more civilized attitude than the current laws which forbid windows in beer parlows and insist that drinkers sit down, keep quiet and drink.

Rev. John Watson, president of the Victoria Council of Churches has said people will come to church or stay away regardless of their drinking habits.

"But I can't help but wonder if we don't open the doors to other problems. The highways are most crowded on Sundays. What will happen if we allow people to drink on Sunday? Will this increase the number of accidents?"

Pacific Press Files Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific Press Ltd. Friday filed a damage action in British Columbia Supreme Court against all the unions involved in the labor dispute that has halted publication of Vancouver's two daily newspapers.

A spokesman for the company, which produces the evening Sun and morning Province, said the move is an extension of an earlier damage action brought against some of the five unions involved in the dispute.

"For the first time the action includes the international unions and for the first time it includes the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild and stereotypers union," the spokesman said.

He said it names individually about 400 members of the unions involved. Damages are included under nine separate headings.

"We are saying, in including the guild and stereotypers, that they had been involved in the conspiracy to illegally limit production," the spokesman said.

LIST CLAIMS

The company claims damages for conspiracy to limit production, engaging in an unlawful strike and unlawful picketing. No estimate of damage was included in Friday's action but the company had earlier stated that slowdowns had cost Pacific Press $750,000.

Pacific Press suspended publication of the Sun and Province entirely on Feb. 15, following eight days of restricted production.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

A westerly flow of Pacific air will keep temperatures mild throughout the province. Rain ahead of the next Pacific storm will reach the Charlottes Sunday afternoon and will spread down the coast late Sunday.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLETT JR.

The Wyoming cowboy who has retired with his seven or eight horses down the road about six acres away caught my attention the other morning with his "Powder River" yell. That yell cuts through the air and reaches me even when the desert wind is blowing hard. When I arrived at the barn, he had to sit down, he had a question.

"What in the blazes does microweather mean?" he asked. "That little boy who lives across the road said he could make microweather any time he wanted to just by putting his hands in his pockets."

By the time we had discussed how hands in the pockets, warmth under the blankets at night and the sunny side of the barn made microweather—special man-made weather—the old cowboy was way ahead of me. He had microweather blooming out all over the place. "When I take my geraniums in out of the cold at night, and put them in the tack room, then they're safe in the microweather of the tackroom. They won't freeze there. I see. Microweather is a place safe from the regular weather."

Next time I see the old cowboy he probably will have a tall story worked out on the new kind of weather.

Symposium Has Aimless Launching

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Students attending a University of Victoria symposium at the Shawnigan Inn woke up slowly this morning after a night devoted mainly to flinging off the inhibitions of scholarly life.

The theme of the symposium, "Yesterday and Tomorrow," is intended to be a look both at life of the 1960s and 1970s.

But Friday night no one was in the mood to follow the program which called for a semi-formal panel discussion.

So the formal part of the agenda was scrapped, and the 100 participants spent a strictly social evening, drinking under the watchful management eye, swimming and suana bathing.

It looked, as one student put it, like a "head convention," with people wandering aimlessly around the premises, looking for action or someone they knew.

Gradually a carefree mood took over as people settled in to the relaxed atmosphere of the lakeside resort.

Members of the local RCMP detachment paid several visits to the Inn overnight. As they passed through the swimming pool — sauna area their concern was not nude male and female bodies steaming here, cavorting there, but was the occasional bottle of beer standing at poolside.

WARNINGS

No one was arrested, but there were several warnings to keep liquor in the licensed part of the Inn. Today symposia expect to hear more from special guest, novelist Ken Kesey who came here from Oregon with five companions.

Kesey is expected, among other things, to put on a "light show" of his own devising sometime tonight.

Late this morning some delegates were wondering whether the affair would ever get out of its initial aimlessness and take the form of a structured symposium.

Kesey first achieved fame with publication of the novel One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest, which detailed, through the eyes of a near-catatonic Indian chief, the efforts of a crazy Irishman to organize the inmates of an asylum to fight for their liberty.

It was a funny book, parts of which, as later revealed in a book about Kesey and his friends — the Electric Kool-Air Acid Test — were written under the influence of LSD.

Kesey and a group of his friends in California dubbed "the Merry Pranksters" were among the early experimenters with the hallucinogenic drug.

outside where O'Connell was yelling and trying to arouse the attention of the children in the back bedroom to come to the window. He had on only a pair of shorts and had apparently jumped from his own bedroom window to the back lawn.

"I ran and got a ladder at my place and Dave went in the childrens' window and brought them out in two trips."

The two oldest girls were lowered to him and to an unidentified man.

"Maybe Cynthia was still alive at that time. It was pretty hectic around there then. I'm not sure where Mrs. O'Connell was. She may have been around at the front trying to get to the baby."

THERE 15 YEARS

It was also the opinion of Scoular that Mrs. O'Connell had left the house with her husband and then went back into the front to get to the baby.

"It was three-quarters of an hour before it got cool enough so we could get in there and get the bodies out," he said.

Kiwanis Ambulance and Hirst Funeral Chapel, who were called by RCMP under direction of Staff-Sgt. Gordon Sharpe, took the bodies and remains to hospital.

O'Connell, an equipment operator for MacMillan-Bloedel Shawnigan division, was born in the interior but had been in the area for about 15 years. He has a mother, sister and two brothers living in the area.

His wife's relatives were not identified.

INVESTIGATION

Scoular, who said the fire marshall will make a complete investigation, said the noise like an explosion may have been the result of fresh air hitting fumes and smoke built up inside the house.

"It blew out the living room windows and was a long way away from the oil furnace in the basement," he said.

The house was about five or six years old and is in one of the best residential areas — about one quarter of a mile north of the Duncan-North Cowichan boundary in the area generally considered to be Duncan.

The O'Connell girls, Cynthia and April Deanna, attended York Road School a few blocks from the home.

LIQUOR REPORT POINTS

Some of the recommendations of the Liquor Inquiry Commission:

- Drinking age lowered to 19 (already accepted by the government) and identity cards for 19-year-olds and others of youthful appearance.
- Licensed dining premises open Sundays and Christmas Day from noon to 11 p.m. and Good Friday from 3 to 11 p.m.
- Civilized drinking in public places such as sidewalk cafes and beaches, with "nuisance" to be prosecuted under the Criminal Code if necessary.
- A crash program of alcoholism prevention and rehabilitation using the power of government for leadership.
- Taxing of alcoholic beverages on the basis of alcohol content, with the result that beer and wine prices would rise and liquor would decrease.
- A two-year price freeze on beer, wine and liquor to fight inflation.
- Alcoholic beverage advertising on radio and television.
- Repeal of liquor sale prohibition on provincial and municipal election days.
- Waitresses permitted in all licensed establishments.
- "Neighborhood pubs" on a limited basis as an experiment, with requirement that sleeping accommodation be provided.
- Entertainment in licensed premises.
- Sale of lower-alcohol-centent beer to encourage moderation.
- Use of the current fixed price of beer as "ceiling" only to allow supply and demand laws take effect.
- Pubs on university campuses where students are in residence and easing of club licences generally.
- Waiters serve patrons only when asked for refills instead of pressuring draught beer sales.
- Cheaper wine in dining premises, with individual glasses or carafes of wine to be made available.
- Repeal of ban on carrying partly-filled bottle of liquor or wine in public place.
- Licensed premises to be allowed to sell packaged alcoholic beverages at maximum mark-up of $1 for case of beer or bottle of liquor.
- Professional sports organizations allowed to sell alcoholic beverages at games.
- Gradual switch-over to self-service liquor stores.
- Room-service of liquor in hotels by mechanical dispenser in miniature bottles during hours when room-service not abailable.
- Convention and banquets allowed to serve liquor on Sundays.
- Interior of pubs can be visible from outdoors.
- Counter service for patrons in beer parlors.
- Goverment liquor stores remain closed on Sundays and holidays.
- And licensed establishments with dining facilities given right to serve draught beer.

Ship Leaves

MARSEILLE (Reuters) — A Tunisian freighter left today after 34 hours in drydock and examination by French naval experts seeking to solve the mystery of the submarine Eurydice, lost Wednesday with 57 men aboard.

Blizzard Forces Animals Into Towns

PRAGUE (AP) — A new blizzard roared out of East Germany Friday and left transportation at a standstill, with a state of emergency declared on the Czech state railway and Soviet soldiers helping with snow-shovelling duties.

The new storm, with winds up to 36 miles an hour, left 20 inches of fresh snow on top of the accumulation from four consecutive days of snow earlier in the week.

Passenger trains were hours late Friday and plans were being made to cancel many today. The heavily travelled Czech bus routes were all but stopped by the snow, with many passenger stranded far from their homes.

Drifts up to 10 feet deep blocked bus routes, and at least 80 separate stretches of rail track were impassable.

The agriculture ministry suggested that the populace try to share food with starving wild animals who have come out of the woods to forage in city streets.

Tests Held

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Two nuclear test shots described by the United States atomic Energy Commission as low range were detonated Friday under the desert floor at the Nevada test site, 65 miles northwest of here. No radiation was released by either of the defence department tests, the AEC said.

SCHOOLS DRAMA FESTIVAL

Students 'Ham' It Up

For a few hundred young Victorians this week, the world's a stage.

From primary to senior secondary levels, they are the youngsters who are participating one way and another, in the 30th annual Greater Victoria Schools Drama Festival.

Friday was opening night and following a weekend lull the festival will occupy evenints, Monday through Saturday and afternnons, Monday through Thursday next week.

A session scheduled for tonight at Oak Bay Junior Secondary has been cancelled due to the withdrawal of one of the two plays.

The second play, Oak Bay's The Crimson Coconut, will be included in the Monday evening program at the school.

TWO PLAYS

The seven-day festival began at Mount View Secondary Friday with a program that included two plays by the host school and one by Colquitz Junior.

Tensions grew and excitement bubbled backstage while several hundred students and adults filled the auditorium.

The hope looming in the minds of all participants — including those who make up the cheering section out front — is that their particular entry may be one of the three chosen for the honor program, March 14, which will take place at Victoria Secondary.

ADJUDICATORS

Adjudicators and sole arbiters of the final program, are University of Victoria's John Krich for junior-senior secondary entries, and Gloria Peyton, city speech teacher and actress, for elementary.

The adjudicators provide brief public commentaries at the end of every session and these are followed by more detailed private adjudications for each director, cast and crew.

This will be John Krich's first adjudicating stint in Canada although he has had the exacting job several times in the United States.

UNDERSTANDING

He says his particular criteria for judging is based on the understanding of the material of the specific play a group performs.

He likes the organization of the Victoria festival because it has taken the emphasis off competition.

Is such a festival a good thing?

"Of course it is. It offers the young people an opportunity to express themselves in theatre arts and to perform in public.

Also, he points out, the critical aspect is very important.

"It is part of the maturing process to learn to deal with criticism — to begin to know your limitations and look at yourself analytically.

"A festival play is a group effort, a perfect example of team work — of striving together to achieve excellence. It cannot help but be beneficial."

Krich, an experienced actor and director, who last fall joined the theatre faculty at Uvic and has played principal roles in most of their major productions over the past 18 months, is impressed with the scope of the plays he will see in the festival.

Classic, modern, original, plays of many periods and styles appear on the program.

Plays from three different periods were presented Friday. Each demaneded a quite different style, said Krich.

CYNICAL

Concerning Mount View's avant garde piece entitled Then, directed by D. Recchi, he said that the cast of two — Allan Hudson and Gloria Gray — had achieved at least to a partial extent, the cynical sense of humor, indicated.

He would like to have seen more of the seriousness that underlies this type of comedy. In general he felt that the performance was too static.

Colquitz Junior Secondary presented the popular Mexican play, Sunday Costs Five Pesos.

TOO FRANTIC

Kirch felt it wise that the cast had not attempted dialect, He said that the set provided a good sense of a Latin American community. His chief criticism was that the pace was too frantic.

It had needed more control and more variation of pitch and intensity.

In the cast were Glen Tichner, Janet McMillan, Heather Bays, Donna Liesch, Liz Harris, Edwin Vanderwilt and Bart Hoen. Director was L. E. Johnston.

Mount View's second entry, George Bernard Shaw's Passion, Poison and Petrifaction. "had ups and downs" the adjudicator felt.

He again pointed out that this type of satiric comedy needs great precision. Still there had been moments when things worked very well, he said.

The cast consisted of Sandi Hall, Monica Turner, Terry Shaw, David Johl, Allan Hudson, Chuck Thorsen and John Gnam. D. Recchi directed.

On Monday afternoon Keating, Brentwood and Prospect Lake Elementary Schools will appear on a program at Keating School.

In the evening at Oak Bay Junior Secondary, the host school, Belmont Senior and Norfolk House groups will be seen.

Courts Victimize Indians Says Lawyer

By BOB MITCHELL

A young Vancouver lawyer Friday invited his University of Victoria audience to spend a few hours in provincial court to see how the legal system discriminates against Indians.

Michael Harcourt was speaking on the need for legal aid services in B.C.

Since 1968 Harcourt has worked as full-time lawyer for the legal services and research program, part of Vancouver's Inner City Services Project.

"The Indian people are badly serviced by the legal system," Harcourt said.

"They don't have access to lawyers and they regard the law as something like VD."

He described as shocking the number of persons who plead guilty when they appear in court because they have been given no outside advice.

Harcourt is the only full-time Project lawyer. Through him requests for legal assistance are referred to some 200 lawyers, articling lawyers and law students who have volunteered their services.

Under the Project four legal aid offices have been set up in Vancouver, each open on alternate evenings.

At UBC law students are available Monday, Wednesday and Friday to give free legal advice to students.

The service has been so well received that last July juvenile court judges invited Inner City to provide legal counsel in juvenile court, where formerly young defendants appeared without any kind of assistance.

The law students stepped in, and the result, said Harcourt, was to improve the functioning of juvenile court. The students have handled 120 cases since then.

Participating in court is of great practical value to students, Harcourt said. He added when he was in law school his main activity outside studies was playing bridge and hearts.

Should he go to the better business bureau?

"The risk we took has proven through," he said of the students. "They can do it."

Students also make an important contribution through research into new areas of the legal system that lawyers do not have time to study, Harcourt said.

If a person faces a charge over debts who should he consult? Harcourt asked.

Or is he protected under legislation of the Consumer Protection Act?

"You might have rights on paper, but very few people could tell you what they are.

"We have a phenomenally efficient seduction-persuasion system to get people to buy.

"But what happens at the other end is medieval.

"What happens when you overbuy?"

Harcourt said he was optimistic about the future of legal aid in this province, particularly since the recent announcement by Attorney-General Leslie Peterson the provincial government will contribute $57,000 for establishment of a legal aid office in Vancouver.

He added he would like to see legal aid made available throughout B.C.

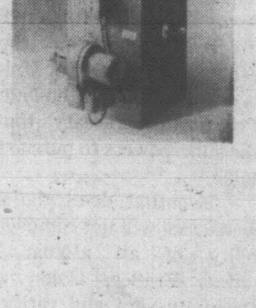
Esso solves your hot water shortage by the bathtubful!

It's a crime how some water heaters leave you cold. They just cannot heat the water fast enough! The fast recovery of an oil-fired Esso Water Heater makes sure you get all the piping hot water you want, when you want it. In fact the Esso Water Heater supplies over 80 Imperial gallons of hot water in just one hour. That's more than enough for half a dozen bathtubs full!

What an Esso Water Heater offers on one hand it does not take away with the other. It's as economical as it is efficient. All you pay is a nominal monthly rental that includes maintenance, plus the cost of the fuel. And in most areas domestic heating oil is the most economical fuel you can buy! There's no charge for a standard installation if you already have an oil tank.

Rent an Esso Water Heater and solve your hot water shortage. It's a crime to get left in the cold.



Only $4.13 a month rents an Esso Water Heater.

The Litter of the Law

WITH HIS PROPOSED ANTI-litter legislation, Conservation Minister Kiernan has taken what should prove to be a very effective step toward a cleaner environment. It is one thing to prohibit littering — as existing laws rightly do; it should be a much more successful approach to reduce the supply of material which is likely to be strewn on beaches, hiking trails, park sites and roadsides. The two-cent refund will at least encourage beverage users to retain their bottles or cans, and incite youngsters to gather up discarded containers in the hope of profit.

Obviously, ordering compulsory refunds on empty containers will not alone abolish littering. The present salability of empty beer bottles has only partially removed them from the pollution scene. But the new legislation is positive in nature and should show results. This measure, and others of a similar nature, will have to become permanent features of our social existence if we are not to be engulfed in our own indestructible garbage.

Education of potential litterbugs by varied means should not be overlooked by the government. As the use of recreation land—parks, seashores, lake and river sites — increases with growth of population and the human need to get back to nature as an antidote to urban pressures, it will become even more essential to ensure that the outdoors remains clean and wholesome, free from the debris of containers, wrappers, bits of plastic and other almost perpetual clutter.

That education is as necessary as the provision of anti-litter facilities may be seen in the frequency with which armfuls of garbage are dumped behind logs in government campsites only a step from the garbage cans provided, or even thrown beside the can rather than in it. It is impossible to catch all such despoilers and penalize them, and they appear to be devoid of the usual human decencies which would restrain such behavior. When such persons are let loose in unsupervised wild areas beyond the slight control of park attendants, only a previous training in elementary tidiness will save the countryside from eventual ruination.

If through this legislation and further measures Mr. Kiernan can effect a major improvement in the litter situation without inflicting onerous restraints on the majority of people who do not require excessive controls, he will have earned the gratitude of all who love and respect the outdoors.

Wage Restraints are Necessary

LAST WEEK THE PRICES AND Incomes Commission began talks with organized labor on restraints to battle inflation and there is an unfortunate indication that Labor will be less co-operative than business management. No details on the talks have been released except for the rather ominous statement by Labor Congress Secretary Treasurer William Dodge that any assumption of big developments would be premature.

Labor's arguments against restraint are understandable. The government policy of fighting inflation even at the risk of heavy unemployment has done nothing to win labor's assent to restraint. And prices continued to outpace growth in 1969. There are, however, signs of a levelling-off. The dollar increase for total national expenditure is estimated at only 0.5 per cent over the third quarter compared with 4.2 per cent for 1969 over 1968.

Yet the Canadian United Auto Workers have announced that they will continue to push for U.S.-Canada wage parity and will negotiate this summer for joint wage increases on both sides of the border—and all this when the Canadian worker produces 15 to 20 per cent less than his United States counterpart.

Labor, like all segments of society, faces national problems which can be solved only through co-operative effort. The White Paper on taxation points out that in 1969, "wage settlements have on the average exceeded productivity gains by a wider margin than in 1968." Comparing recent inflationary years with the early sixties, the paper adds, "Real output per worker increased nearly twice as fast in the early years as it did during the later 1960s. At the same time average earnings rose more rapidly in the second half of the decade."

Between 1965 and 1969 labor costs per unit of output rose by 5.8 per cent, while price rises averaged 4 per cent. And from 1951 to 1965 real output per person employed in Canada rose by 12 per cent compared with a 22 per cent increase for average wages per person in that period. These figures indicate that Labor should not be reluctant when asked to show wage restraint for the good of the national economy.

A Glimmer of Hope

THE WORLD TOOK LITTLE note this week of the formal ceremonies in Washington, London and Moscow that brought into effect the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. Perhaps the lack of fanfare lies in the fact that Peking and Paris have yet to agree to be among the signatories, along with South Africa, India, Pakistan, Israel, Brazil and Argentina and a few other countries. Some nations have signed the treaty but have not yet ratified it. Ominously, most of the world's potential trouble spots are in the non-signing group and all of these nations are potentially capable of producing atomic weapons.

The future and ultimate fate of the treaty rests not only with non-signees but with the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks that are now proceeding between the United States and the Soviet Union. There is even a clause in the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty that pledges the superpowers to pursue the SALT talks.

Eventual de-escalation of the arms race will not remove the possibility of an atomic holocaust, unless France, China and West Germany sign and ratify the non-proliferation treaty, but the danger will be diminished. Support of France, China and West Germany is essential to the treaty, but West Germany is the only one of the three which has signed and it has yet to ratify it.

The Soviet Union has made it clear that West Germany must ratify. In 1967 Soviet Premier Alexi Kosygin put it bluntly: "We will not allow the Federal Republic of West Germany to have nuclear weapons and we will take all measures to prevent it getting nuclear weapons." Few voices in the West will argue with that.

In the perspective of a quarter-century's effort to control nuclear weapons, the treaty is only a step designed to prevent the arms race from getting worse. As long as existing and potential nuclear powers refuse to sign, it will not remove the threat. Yet the world has come a long way towards rationalizing the arms race since the dark and dreary days of the original cold war. We now have treaties which bar nuclear weapons from outer space, from Antarctica and from Latin America, and there is a pending treaty to ban them from the world's ocean beds. These represent tangible progress and a glimmer of hope for eventual world disarmament.

Average Canadians Benefit

The full page advertisement opposing the Government White Paper on tax reform in your March 2 edition begins "No Canadian can quarrel with the White Paper's efforts to lower the tax burden for people at the low end of the income scale . . ." and then goes on to do precisely that. The tax burden for those at the low end of the income scale (indeed for those who earn less than $9,000 a year) will be lessened by these tax reforms and this cannot be done without those in higher income brackets taking more of the load.

We should be concerned that so much pressure against this White Paper is being applied in the name of the "average taxpayer." In fact, the average Canadian would benefit from it. Unless they also speak out they will lose these benefits by default to higher income pressure groups.

Readers are urged to write a line to their M.P. Just say "I favor the White Paper on tax reforms" and give your name and address. Mail it to the M.P. for your district, Ottawa. No stamp required. David Anderson, Esquimalt-Saanich, David Groos, Victoria.—L. Waye, 1701 McKenzie

BACK TO THE TEA PARTY

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

No Bread for Alice—Just Water Not for Drinking

AFTER her travels through the Wonderland of Ottawa, Alice was tired and famished when she joined the Mad Hatter's tea party. But no refreshments were available.

Hutchison

"Since we paid the farmers not to grow wheat," the Hatter explained, "the last piece of bread has been eaten. No matter, we've solved the farm problem. For the first time in human history we've suppressed the age-old evil of production."

"Moreover," the March Hare added, "we're keeping the price of wheat and bread high, and that solves the problem of inflation as well."

"If you're really hungry," said the Dormouse, "I've got just what you need."

He fumbled in the tea pot and extracted a large white paper, which was nibbled at the edges.

"It's very nourishing," he assured Alice. "The whole government has been living on it for months and getting fatter all the time. Especially in the head."

Alice took a timid bite but decided that she didn't like the taste of the white paper and again asked for bread.

"The trouble with you, young lady," said the Hatter, "is that you haven't been educated in economics. Otherwise you'd understand that the higher we keep the price of our goods the more we can sell. Any respectable economist in Ottawa will tell you so."

"Besides," the Hare reminded her, "we benefit the poor starving consumers all over the world by discouraging their appetite for Canadian wheat. We'll soon break that pernicious habit. Let them eat wheat from other countries foolish enough to grow it."

"Best of all," said the Hatter, "by withdrawing from the world market we improve our competitive position. That's vital."

"Anyhow," the Dormouse murmured in his sleep, "it's better to sell nothing than to sell at reduced prices. It would be worse than uneconomic. It would be immoral."

"Yes, lower prices would only feed the inflationary fire," said the Hare. "Rather than that, we prefer not to feed ourselves."

"But I wish you'd feed me," Alice pleaded.

"I see you're a greedy girl," the Hatter remarked. "You're not merely ignorant of simple economics. You have no patriotism, either."

"Even supposing we were stupid enough to grow food," the Hare went on, "the foreigners couldn't buy it. They have no Canadian dollars to pay us."

"Couldn't they pay in their own goods?" Alice inquired.

"What!" the Hatter exclaimed. "Are you actually proposing that we import cheap foreign products and destroy the Canadian standard of living?"

"You might as well propose that our wage scale should stop rising so that people could afford to pay our prices and buy our own products," the Hare protested. "It would ruin us. Unemployment is too high already."

"My personal affairs," said the Hatter, "illustrate the fundamentals of sound economic planning. I haven't sold a hat for the last year because, of course, I won't reduce the price. To be sure, I can't earn any money, but who cares? The government pays me not to make hats and people go bare-headed. That's healthy in our climate."

"Oh, there's no end to the possibilities of the new economics," the Hare observed.

"Then why stop with wheat and hats?" Alice demanded. "Why not pay everyone not to produce anything?"

"Don't worry, we will, we will!" cried the Hatter. "The great Canadian experiment is only beginning."

"Take tea, for example," the Dormouse mumbled. "We'll pay thousands of Canadians not to grow tea."

"No, tea falls into a different category," the Hatter interrupted. "To save our precious foreign exchange we intend to grow tea here in Canada, in greenhouses, heated with Canadian oil. Thus, at one stroke, we solve Alberta's oil problem and everyone can drink all the tea he wants at no cost whatever."

"Except to the taxpayers," the Dormouse grunted. "What are taxpayers for, if not to pay taxes?"

"Exactly," the Hatter agreed. "Benson has taught us that invaluable lesson."

"Well, if I can't have bread or tea," Alice suggested, "could I have a cup of cold water?"

"Indeed you can," said the Hatter. "The tea pot is full of cold water. But I should warn you that it's polluted by the wastes of industry and the dregs and detergents of the kitchen sink. That's why we're all so thirsty, as well as hungry."

"Unfortunately," the Hare concluded, "we haven't quite got around yet to paying industry to stop all production and the housewives to stop cooking. But I can tell you confidentially that an expert task force is working on that final step right now. Be patient, child. Once we've raised the salaries of Parliament it will quickly solve all our problems."

"I'm still hungry," said Alice.

"No, you're only fallow, like the prairies," the Hatter objected. "That's what the new law says. Just fallow. And you get paid for it, too. What more can anyone ask in a Just Society?"

Milestone on the Way to a More Stable World

THIS past week, the world witnessed one of the more dramatic diplomatic resuscitations of recent history. The nuclear nonproliferation treaty (NPT), which had been repeatedly pronounced dead, came into force bearing the signatures of 97 countries and the ratifications of roughly half that number. It was a remarkable accomplishment, and the repercussions will be long in coming. Historians may record March 5, 1970, as a major milestone in the development of a more stable world order.

Frye

The full meaning of the NPT has been all but lost from sight as a result of the in-fighting which seemed so often to have doomed it to failure.

This treaty changes fundamentally the shape of the world in which our children can expect to live. By it, the parties bind themselves never to manufacture or accept atomic or hydrogen bombs, and what is more, to let international inspectors verify compliance with the pledge. The NPT is the first internationally-verified disarmament agreement of significance ever made.

War Danger Reduced

Large segments of the world have been eliminated from the nuclear arms race. The danger of atomic war has been reduced. There will, moreover, be continuing pressure on holdouts to come under the treaty regime.

This does not mean that the present five members of the nuclear club—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and Red China—will necessarily be forever the only possessors of the bomb.

But the likelihood of new bomb-wielders has been cut to a near-minimum.

To appreciate the importance of this fact, one need only glance quickly at the world as it might have been without it—and shudder.

Every drugstore Castro could legally have gotten hooked on the bomb, as juvenile thugs now do on heroin. Many of them certainly would. And the resulting international crime wave would have left no one safe.

Outlawing narcotics peddling has not wiped out addiction; but without the law, drugs would be free from control of any kind. A giant first-step has now been taken to prevent the development of a nuclear-addicted world.

And there are these important by-products:

- Now nuclear-weapon status has ceased to be a mark of national distinction, the next goal after independence and UN membership. It is now, on the contrary, a mark of irresponsibility, an international "no-no."
- Arms inspection has been brought of age. The International Atomic Energy Agency, created in the 1950s in part to provide a reservior of independent, qualified inspectors, has been given a major job to perform. Inspection will never again be quite as novel, or distasteful, a concept.
- The great powers are under new legal and moral obligation to seek curbs, and indeed reductions, of their own nuclear-weapons stockpiles and delivery systems. Such obligations are both explicit and implicit in the treaty. The SALT (Strategic Arms Limitation) talks in Vienna next month may begin to feel some of this pressure.
- A major obstacle to detente between West Germany and the Soviet bloc in Europe has been removed.

None of this was by any means easy. There were many times in the past six years when a treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons seemed completely beyond reach.

The pact was four years (1964-1968) in gestation. Many near-miscarriages occurred as Washington and Moscow wrestled over its terms.

Then for nearly two years (1968-1969), with the great powers in agreement, the small powers fought to frustrate the treaty. Though endorsed by the UN General Assembly, it seemed stillborn.

Key countries which were to be subjected to its restraints—including India, West Germany, Italy and Japan—held out against it, some of them (notably India) leading the revolt. Their sabotage was resolute and skilful, and seemed likely to succeed.

The man who turned the tide, and who—if the treaty is fully successful—will share much of history's credit for curbing the atom, is West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Brandt discarded the objections, real and contrived, which had kept Bonn aloof; abandoned his predecessor's effort to make ratification a diplomatic bargaining asset; and signed the treaty.

Logjam Broken

Russia, which had made concessions in the drafting process for the principal purpose of restraining West Germany, could and did now complete its own ratification. So, then, did Washington. And the logjam was broken.

The fact that India, under the shadow of Red China, still refuses to come under the treaty is a major weakness. But this loophole is no longer the critical shortcoming it once appeared to be. It no longer promises to have a domino effect, because the West German domino has been removed from the chain.

Israel's abstention gives concern to the Arabs. Brazil continues to drag its heels. France, like Red China, is free to sell the bomb—if there are any takers.

But these are now qualifications to be registered against an otherwise completed project. They are not critical threats to the project itself.

The NPT has not altered the great-power balance of nuclear terror. It is not disarmament so much as it is preventive diplomacy. But it is a significant contribution to present and future stability in the world.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

For a real scramble hike go out to the Freeman King Park which is a part of the Francis Park complex.

Go up to the High Ridge Trail, turn to the west and when you come to the rock ridge go south. Just follow the red and yellow marker tapes.

There is a beautiful little valley here where the salal is fairly thick and the Douglas firs are tall clean and straight. This is a real Douglas fir succession forest. Some very old trees are about 500 years of age. Others graduate down to tiny little seedlings.

Look at some of the oldtimers. See how they are gnarled, have dead, lower limbs that are very thick and have not fallen away. This would indicate that many years ago there was not heavy growth surrounding them and they enjoyed lots of sunlight. I think that this ties in with the growth following the great fire that ravaged the lower part of the island about 300 years ago.

In the semi-clearings there are several thickets of ocean spray that are now breaking into leaf. When summer comes this will produce a wonderful show of the creamy-white hanging flower clusters.

There are several open glades where you will find many of the sun-loving plants that will soon be in bloom. Some small rock outcrops are heavy with moss and lichens still green and fresh.

Further along the way you will come to an association of garry oaks and arbutus growing together.

As you come into the open in a high, rocky clearing you will find spring flowers now in bloom such as spring gold, satin flower, early saxafrage, blue-eyed Mary and the dainty little monkey flower that hides in the rock cracks.

About you will be many fine specimens of glacier scores in the rocks and if you make a close observation, you may note how the ice parted and flowed to the south and to the northeast.

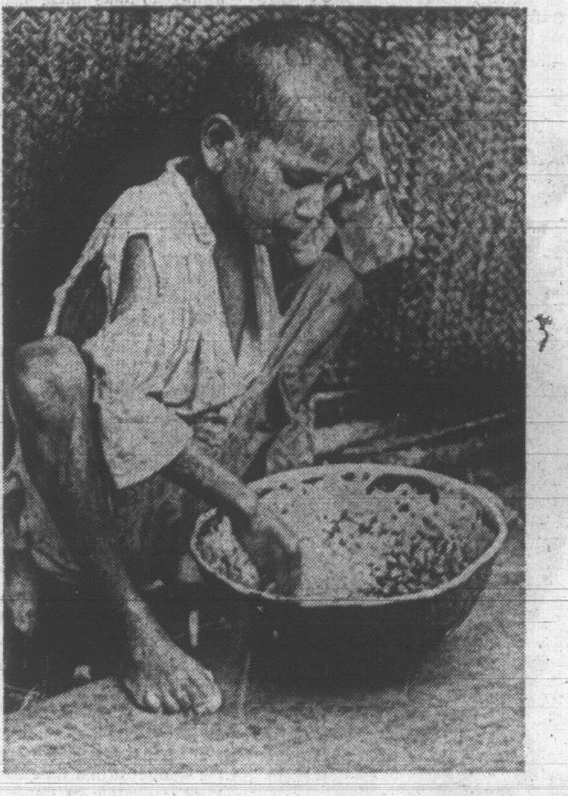
At the apex of the park, the tags will lead you back along the fence line. The trail wanders in and out among the trees skirting a red osier swamp where the skunk cabbage is growing.

There is a high ridge here where one can see a lot of the city of Victoria. Below the fence the area has been grazed extensively by domestic cattle.

The path leads down to the little valley again, some distance from where it was crossed before and brings the hiker out on the southerly portion of the high ridge trail.

It's a Tough World If You're a Child

NATIONAL CATHOLIC REPORTER



UNITED NATIONS — The Sixties, as the end-of-the-decade stories like to say, were sensational, scintillating, super and scientific.

They were also sickening and sobering—if you were a child in most of the world's developing countries.

Take the United Nations' word for it. "Trends in the Social Situation of Children," a U.N. study just issued, documents the failure of the Sixties and the fears for the Seventies. Its opening words tell the whole story:

"It is tragic fact that at the end of the 1960s there are more sick, more undernourished, and more uneducated children in the world than there were 10 years ago.

"Unless the international community is prepared to give vastly greater support, the next 10 years will find the number of neglected children increased by millions — despite all the efforts of developing countries, including endeavors by some to curb population growth . . ..

"This situation is especially disturbing when we realize that three-quarters of all the world's children under 15 years of age . . . nearly a billion children — live in developing countries."

● Health of the child: "Serious health problems affecting children persist in the world, although notable overall improvements have been observed.

"In some economicially developed countries, with comprehensive educational, medical and social services, the infant mortality rate is now below 20 per 1,000 live births, while in many developing countries, with still meagre resources and service, the rate ranges from 150 to 250 per 1,000 live births.

"The death rate for the age group 1 to 5 years old is 10 to 50 times higher in the developing than the developed countries. In some developing countries 30 to 40 per cent of the children die before reaching the age of five."

● The nutritional problem: "Most of the two-thirds of the children in the developing coumtries are estimated to be malnourished and undernourished . . . ."

● Children who are victims of war: "The plight of children in countries involved in prolonged military conflicts call for urgent attention.

"In Vietnam, it claims that 60 per cent of the civilian casualties are children, while in Nigeria, according to another report (covering a) three-month period, a minimum estimate of mortality due to famine was 500,000 comprised mainly of young children and elderly people."

● Child Labor: ". . . the sectors in the developing countries which are the largest employers of children, agriculture and domestic service, are generally beyond the scope of child labor legislation . . . As the exploitation of child labor adversely affects the education of the population and results in an inappropriately composed labor force, legislation to protect the child, reinforced by practical measures, should be adopted."

● Process of socialization and modernization: "The chief agents of socialization are the parents, community, school and mass media. The influence of the school and the mass media tends to increase while that of the family tends to decrease . . . The use of television as a means of education should be given a greater emphasis in developing countries."

New China Purge Prods Peasants

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

SINGAPORE — A new wave of public trials and purges, reminiscent of the nationwide witchhunts that claimed uncounted victims in the early 1950s, is rolling across China today as the current campaign against "class enemies" gains momentum.

Reports last week that 19 youths had recently been sentenced to death at a mass tribunal in Peking followed indications earlier that the Chinese were organising "kangaroo courts" and handing out summary sentences on the spot to ideolgical delinquents displeasing to the regime.

National Discipline

The 19 unfortunates were said to have been supporters, of the extreme left-wing Maoist faction championed by Madame Chiang Ching, the Chairman's sectarian wife, who had ill-advisedly attacked the more moderate policies of Premier Chou En-lai.

This new exercise in national discipline is not simply an extension of a power struggle in the capital, however. The campaign resembles the "three-antis" movement of 1951 which Mao then described as "a mighty and irresistible battle against corruption, waste and bureaucratism," and it is aimed at the counter-revloutionary, the embezzling cadre, the speculator, the free-spender and the economic saboteur.

It heralds the spring sowing season and experts believe that it is also intended to chasten the often recalcitrant Chinese peasant who puts in more work on his private plot of cabbages than on the collective, and to groom him mentally for a "flying leap forward" in agriculture so that output this year will surpass the good harvests of 1969.

It dovetails with a drive opened last year against those who demand material incentives, who put production and profit before socialism, and who foolishly "rely on experts to run factories" (instead of on bright red revolutionaries drawn from the working masses).

According to the long Communist charge sheet, Chinese in all spheres of life have been asking for trouble. Last week the official Peoples Daily of Peking lashed out at luxury-loving city cadres who took their office settees and soft mattresses down to the country with them when sent to work farms for "re-education" and squandered state funds by building comfortable billets for themselves.

Other officials have been arraigned for accepting "gifts" in exchange for permits to visit Hong Kong, for taking bribes to allow peasants to bury their dead instead of cremating them, for selling agricultural sidelines privately instead of to the State and for planning to restore capitalism.

In Kwangtung province, men and women have been tried publicly and sentenced to years of "labor reform" for defacing portraits of Mao, for listening to foreign radio stations, for deriding the digging of tunnels as a futile defence against a notional Russian attack, for trying to escape to Hong Kong (and in one case for coming back again).

Peasants have drained reservoirs of their water in order to catch the fish. Factory workers have let electrical machinery run on through the lunch break and used expensive equipment as refectory benches. Innumerable youths have "rebelled against being despatched to the country" to do farm work for the good of their souls, and, according to one of them, the authorities now sack the parents if the offspring refuse to go.

Denounce Waste

Life is not without its complications, for peasant and party man alike. The public are earnestly requested to denounce all instances of corruption, embezzlement, waste and speculation—especially if they involve a cadre, who will then be put on open trial in his own department.

Radio Peking has disclosed that special teams of young people have been formed on the farms to condemn their elders over loudspeakers for extravagant living and other un-Maoist activities.

Nothing is easier than to be extravagant in China, where normal thrift is defined as saving "a lump of coal, a drop of oil, an ounce of rice and an inch of cloth."

Conflict-of-Interest Seems to Be Dying Issue

By DOUGLAS FISHER

A number of the MPs who joined in Monday's debate about the new government plan for wheat acreage reduction are wheat farmers.

Some were pro, some con, and all with acreage planted in wheat last summer will be eligible for the $6-an-acre subsidy for what they turn into summer fallow. Does their participation represent a conflict of interest?

Several of the Liberal MPs on the House Finance Committee hearing arguments on the White Paper on taxation have a personal relationship with manufacturing, investment and financial interests.

The tax proposals, if translated in law, are certain to have an effect on the business interests and associations of these men. Is there a conflict of interest for them in participating in the legislative process on the tax proposals?

Monday, the government transferred much of the burden of determining what the pay of MPs should be to a special advisory committee on parliamentary salaries and expenses.

Sooner or later, the committee will bring in recommendations, probably for a stipend of around $25,000 a year. Then the recommendations will have to be legislated by the House. Is there a conflict of interest in MPs voting a raise for themselves?

It's easy to raise other examples where the question of conflict of interest may emerge for parliamentarians.

This has always been more crassly evident in the Senate, but it has to be a very dull MP, a person disengaged from most economic and social activity for much of his life, who sooner or later is not going to be voting for or against something that shall affect his broader interests and associations, and often his own narrow personal interest.

I wrote not long ago about the new bill introduced by that parliamentary institution, Stanley Knowles, which would require detailed disclosure of financial and property interests of parliamentarians and senior government officials. This session the government received a report on conflict of interest from an Alberta law professor, Jeremy Williams.

Mr. Trudeau has said several times that he wanted to regularize Canadian procedures and standards on conflict of interest. I went to Donald Macdonald, the government House leader, to find out what the prospects are for action on conflict-of-interest legislation.

In brief, there is little chance of action soon.

What did he think of the Knowles bill? "I took a look at it from the point of view as to whether we'd have to face a debate on it this session, decided we would not and that's about it.

"No, I don't think it's a perfect bill from my examination of it. For example, it says nothing about the links with trade unions which I think would be relevant to anything on conflict of interest. I have no intention of moving the Knowles bill forward and sending it to a House comimttee for study and report. If it should go to a committee I would think that it should be to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, not to the Committee on Procedure."

Mr. Macdonald didn't choose to go into detail on why the commissioned Williams study was inadequate as a basis for action. He felt a long paper and bibliography prepared by the Library of Parliament was more useful in its coverage of all the relevant considerations in other jurisdictions and past Canadian history.

The Williams paper is unbelievably dull and impersonal.

The detachment of the Williams prose carries into the recommendations which would seem to require disclosure of financial interests and property holdings of ministers, their assistants, top civil servants, MPs and Senators to a board or boards which would not publish the specific personal information, but which would have it available in case of need.

Perhaps its main effect would be that those who made the disclosure, knowing the evidence was there, would either declare their interests in specific legislative situations or abstain from participation.

In summary, the problem of conflict of interest is with us, but it is not a live or at least a deep concern of either the government or most parliamentarians.

There's unlikely to be action until there's some urgency.

Musings of an Examination Cop

By JAMES EAYRS

(From an article which first appeared in the Toronto Daily Star and has since been reprinted in a number of campus publications.)

The setting is for a Kafka trial, surrealistic and forbidding. A cavernous gymnasium, its flooring sheathed in plastic, basketball nets lifted on high by gantries.

In pour several hundred young men and women, many feigning exuberance, some pale and withdrawn.

They fan out as sappers across a minefield, obeying with remarkable precision a sign telling candidates in English to face the front of the hall, candidates in psychology the rear.

It's examination time again. On tables "placed at least five feet apart" (regulations for the province of Ontario, section 7, sub-section 37) the young people deposit their personal effects — a watch, a packet of kleenex, an array of T-Ball jotters, a roll of wild cherry lifesavers and other talismans in time of trouble.

Complying with No. 5 of the "Rules of the conduct of examinations, University of Toronto," the ladies "dispose of their purses by placing them on the floor underneath their chairs."

The chief presiding officer, in whom there lurks a regimental sergeant-major struggling to escape, shouts for silence, which at first he does not get.

"If I had a microphone," he bawls, "I'd blast you all from the room." The candidates are quiet now. The papers are distributed.

English 100 is an essay-type examination. It requires discussions of how the storm scenes in King Lear show the development of its protagonist, of the character of Ishmael, of the teaser "If man was created perfect, how could he fall?"

Having familiarized himself with forms, cards, codes, special pencils and the rest of the apparatus of higher education, as the pilot of a 707 checks out its controls before taking to the air, the candidate confronts the first of his multiple choices.

He may or may not be unsettled by preliminary instruction No. 5: "You are to choose the ONE BEST answer to each question, even if other alternatives may have some truth in them."

For the next couple of hours there is little for an assistant presiding officer to do, apart from thinking impure thoughts as he strolls among the miniskirts. He is present to ensure, as commanded by his orders for the day, that "candidates shall not communicate with one another by writing, signs or words or in any manner whatever" (rule 10).

In 20 years on this hateful patrol I have never spotted candidates communicating in any manner whatever, and would quickly turn away from such a scene.

Half-way through someone raises his hand and asks to be escorted to the men's washroom. I tell him he is old enough to go by himself, thereby contravening rule 7: "No candidate shall be permitted to leave the hall except under supervision."

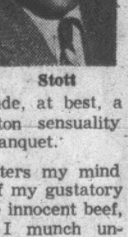
Scratch a professor, as Jerry Rubin says, and you'll find a cop. That is the most mordant remark heard in Convocation Hall this year.

To be required to take part in such a travesty of intellect is to be filled with a loathing for examinations so intense that one forgets that in their time they were a great reform.

Essentially they serve society as a device for divvying up its spoils—jobs, prizes, deferment, power. Divvying up has to be done one way or another, and other ways of doing it are few and far from fine.

Born Free—To Kill What?

By ART STOTT



Stott

All vegetarians and anyone who lives in Gandhi-like emaciation on goat's milk and cheese enters court with clean hands to argue against man's inhumanity to animals. I don't qualify. I eat meat and fowl. A Dorian Gray picture of me as a my knife slices through the glistening brown tenderness of the top of Sunday's roast would, at worst, show a face with salivating mouth from which fangs protrude, at best, a sort of Charles Laughton sensuality cushioned at a Lucullan banquet.

The thought never enters my mind that the ultimate price of my gustatory delight is the life of some innocent beef, calf, lamb or porker. I munch untroubled by the concern that someone had to kill to gratify my palate.

This wilful unconsciousness does not stop me from rising in righteous anger against cruelty to animals. The two characteristics are rigidly compartmentalized in my personality—the gourmandizer in one box, the animal sentimentalist in the other. This minor schizophrenia is a familiar feature of our society. It's the kind of thing that allows some of us who are constitutionally disinclined to hunt because we don't like to kill game to justify fishing, which is another form of taking life.

It also allows me to preverve my sentimentality toward creatures of the wild, in spite of some rough treatment administered by better informed people to my concepts. When I phoned an ornithologist, looking for sympathy because cats were killing robins down my lot, he bruised me with the suggestion that if I hadn't converted the brushy wild land of my property into a cultivated lawn, I wouldn't have deprived small song birds of a sustaining environment and turned it over to robins. There were too many robins anyhow, he said.

Others, gentle men, have pointed out to me that nature isn't quite the kindly mother some of us picture her. Wildlife, they explain, seldom dies comfortably in bed. It pursues the struggle for survival and survival goes to the fittest. The predators prey on those they can kill and when they lose the ability to kill, the predators die.

Nature plays it that way. A salmon reaching spawning grounds, lays thousands of eggs. From them hatch countless fry which go through the cycle of their species and, in the process, usually perish. The scheme of things is accomplished, my authorities tell me, if a couple of salmon from the entire hatch survive to spawn in the natal stream and start things all over again.

I have tried, on occasion, to treat sick ducks huddled on the shore rocks, and once I cleaned and nursed one back to the point at which it could be returned to the water. But my friends who know tell me that it would probably fall easy prey to some other creature because the nurturing I had given it reduced its capacity to avoid its natural enemies or withstand the elements.

When the outcry arose over the slaughter of the seal pups my sympathies were roused—not so much by the fact that the small creatures were being killed, but by the manner of their killing. Brutality in any form is usually repulsive—even in what some people call the manly art of self defence.

And when, the other day, I finally caught up with the picture "Born Free," I found it touching. As you recall, the lady raised the small lion cub, made it tame, fed it and converted it into a house pet. Eventually she had to give it up, realized that the creature had never learned to fend for itself and went about encouraging in it the natural survival methods of its kind. That, incidentally, was largely a matter of killing for food.

So the former little cub, grown to full size, returned to its natural habitat and made a go of things—a happy ending to the story for the lion. To me it seemed an extremely unhappy ending for sundry herbivores who became breakfast, lunch and dinner for the rehabilitated lion.

The thought carries over to the case of the new white killer whale on its way to captivity in Oak Bay's Sealand of the Pacific. Apart from the views attributed to Cliff Carl—who, in my opinion, knows much more about such things than a lot of the protesters and who says the new addition will probably live the life of Riley in the enclosures — there are others who will have few qualms about this deprivation of liberty.

Old whalers have told me about the cruelty of these wolves of the sea who badger a big whale into exhaustion, wait until the leviathan's tongue lolls out and then wrench it from the mouth as a tidbit. I'm prejudiced, of course. Killer whales and I are not on terms of intimacy. When they approach my fishing grounds, I leave in a huff—which is survival drill for me. Callous, perhaps, but I shall not weep for the white whale with its guaranteed meal chits in a swim pool I'd like to own.

This Is the Group That Jacks Built

By MICHAEL BENNETT

During the last week in April, "Keshi No Kazoku" will walk onto the stage of the Canadian pavilion in Osaka and Expo '70 will get its first look at the hottest new rock group in Canada today.

"Keshi No Kazoku" is a literal Japanese translation for The Poppy Family, four young musicians from Vancouver whose single, Which Way You Going, Billy? sold more than 100,000 copies—the Canadian equivalent of a gold record.

And it is really a group that Jacks built.

Terry Jacks, a 25-year-old would-be architect, writes for, manages and produces The Poppy Family, which features his wife Susan as lead singer, Craig McCaw on guitar and sitar and an East Indian "tabla freak"—percussionist Satwant Singh.

They have a refreshing, down-home sound, one of the reasons their first album, named after their smash single, was recently voted the best-produced Canadian record of 1969.

"We have roots in classical, rock, folk and country, but the biggest influence on the group is an individual writer—me—writing for an individual vocalist—Susan—especially when they live together," said Terry, who managed to fit a coffee-shop interview into his hectic schedule of one-nighters and personal appearances.

"I've been writing music for six years and you get a feeling about what people like.

"Everyone puts down commercial music, but it's the sound the majority of people dig."

The Poppy Family was No. 1 on the Top 40 charts from coast to coast in January and is booked solid on a cross-Canada tour until the end of March. Two nights' work—four hours—now means about $6,000 for the group, and there are no more bus trips to northern British Columbia.

"When we first got the federal government's invitation to go to Japan, we turned it down because we didn't know if 'Billy' was going to break in the States," Terry said.

THE POPPY FAMILY . . . Satwant Singh, Terry and Susan Jacks, Craig McCaw

"We don't like what's happening down there—everything is too uptight, but we're willing to take their money with the odd tour."

Terry was working with a group called The Chessmen when he met Susan four years ago on Music Hop, the Vancouver version of a Monday-to-Friday pop music series on CBC television. Bu it wasn't love at first sight.

"I remember he phoned me and asked me to go hiking," said Susan.

"I thought: Oh, no. Another bird-watcher."

They picked up Craig from a house band at the Down Under Club in Vancouver in 1967 and formed a trio called Winken, Blinken and Nob, three-quarters of The Poppy Family.

"Everybody kept asking us who Nob was, but I didn't have the heart to tell them it was Susan," said Terry.

"Satwant was a student until six months ago and we made him a dropout."

As a producer, Terry is a perfectionist.

The Chessmen recorded in Nashville with some of the finest country musicians in the business and he "blew a couple of thousand bucks—all the money I had" in Los Angeles to cut a record that was never released.

"I used to write for myself, but I was handicapped by a limited vocal range and inadequate studio facilities," he said.

"I'm not talking about gimmicks, but equipment like echo units, compressors and equalizers to separate the instruments and cut out the blurs.

"I had to build the arrangements around the studio. At that time there was only one 16-track operation in Canada and that was in Toronto."

On the back of the "Billy" album is a picture of Terry's 83-year-old grandfather and his friend, Charlie, taken on a fishing trip the Jacks made to Lillooet Lake, 80 miles northeast of Vancouver.

They are standing in front of a run-down shack, flashing the peace sign.

The caption sums up Terry's feelings about the record: An album for everyone.

Conservatory Show

Directing a spotlight onto the activities and high standards of the Victoria Conservatory of Music, is the aim of a gala concert to be given March 18 in the Newcombe Auditorium.

Members of the faculty, and scholarship and other exceptional students will participate in the program.

The principal, Robin Wood, soprano Catherine Young and the Victoria Conservatory Trio will represent the faculty.

Lieut.-Governor John Nicholson and Mrs. Nicholson are to attend. Other special guests include Alderman Clyde Savage (representing Mayor Courtney Haddock), Dr. Bruce Partridge, President of the University of Victoria, and the Hon. W. H. Murray, chairman of the B.C. Clutural Fund.

Tickets for this special event are on sale at the Conservatory, 1050 Joan Crescent, at the Uvic music division and Eaton's box office.

They will also be available at the door on the night of the concert.

Take a Deep Breath—and It's Over

BECKETT

OXFORD, England — Samuel Beckett has written a new play — "Breath." It lasts 30 seconds, has no actors and no dialogue, and its props are "miscellaneous rubbish."

The would premier of "Breath" takes place at Oxford Playhouse Sunday, during a gala evening in aid of the Samuel Beckett Theatre Appeal Fund.

The producer is Francis Warner, an English don at St. Peter's college, where the theatre is to be built underground. Excavations have just begun in a quadrangle at the college.

Warner went to Paris last weekend to collect the play from the author. Warner says: "If I tell you anything more about it there will be nothing left.

"His play will be seen three times during the first part of the program, which will consist of readings from Beckett's works.

Beckett's only venture into films opens the second half: a film — called "Film" — starring Buster Keaton, for which Beckett wrote the script. It has no dialogue and the only sound is "ssh."

Huw Wheldon, the broadcaster, will act as master of ceremonies, and Patrick McGee, Laurence Harvey, and the American architect, engineer and designer, Buckminister Fuller, who designed the American Astrodome in Expo '67, will also take part. Fuller has designed the Beckett Theatre free of charge.

Beckett has promised to come to Oxford to produce the first play in the theatre, says Warner.

Love's Been Good to Him

By BERNARD McCARRON

Carnegie Hall was the setting for Rod McKuen's 1969 birthday celebration. A sell out crowd enthused over the most popular, best selling poet, musician, performer since Shakespeare.

Visually, Rod McKuen impacts in colors: blonde, blue, white, black; blonde of hair, blue of eyes, white of skin, black of chino pants. The missing pieces of this informal portrait are filled in by sweater and sneakers.

His movements are in the style of the French chansonnier: simple, unaffected, moving. The total affect is one of genuine sincerity.

If he is to sing, a baritone, gravelly but true to pitch; if he is to recite the same voice softens, bends with the rhythms, lulls, hypnotizes. In both song and verse Rod McKuen presents themes of love, alienation, loneliness.

Henry Mancini was the one who encouraged him to write his songs and he has written over one thousand. Glen Yarborough first sang them and soon many of the top singers adopted them: Frank Sinatra, Petula Clark, the Kingston Trio and recently the Anita Kerr Singers.

Rod McKuen works through modern media. He has written the musical score for such an excellent movie as "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie." He is currently working on the score for the motion picture version of Helen MacInnes' "The Salzburg Connection."

ROD McKUEN

The cool medium is especially an outlet for his talents. He provided the music for Albert McCleery's CBS Television Workshop. In a half hour special "Rod McKuen: Loner," he roused wonder and criticism; criticism because he lacked technique, wonder because of the over-all affect of his projected presence. He did reach his audience.

No Viet Nam War protester, nor civil rights marcher is Rod McKuen though he admires those who are active. The closest he came to being anti-establishment was during his army career.

While stationed in Korea in 1953-54 be became so angered by the corruption and waste in the distribution of goods by the army that he wrote his only prose, "Elephants in the Rice Paddies." It was circulated widely in Asia but never made the scene in the States.

Ask at a Victoria book store, "Is Rod McKuen popular?"

"Yes, he is. Though not so much now as he was at Christmas."

"What age group requests him?"

"Oh most by young adults. Others do too. A lot depends on their mood you know."

"Is any one of his books more popular than others?"

"Perhaps 'Listen to the Warm.'"

"Listen to the Warm," "Lonesome Cities," "Stanyan Street and other Sorrows" were among the best sellers in non-fiction during 1968.

"In Someone's Shadow" and "Twelve Years of Christmas" have been on the best selling list in recent months.

Inquire at the Victoria Record Shop, "Is Rod McKuen popular?"

"Quite! You see the older teen-agers like him. So many of his songs are his poems set to music."

There is much interest in this "Sagebrush Chansonnier." I met him first through the sound of his voice, particularly in "The Sea, The Earth, The Sky" (with Anita Kerr) — Warner Bros., and was quickly captivated.

It is the boast of Rod McKuen that one does not need to have a dictionary or a copy of Alice in Wonderland handy in order to read his work with understanding. I agree. There is so little for the mind.

Compare him to your own favorite lyricists. His message is "Love's been good to me." It is regrettable that he shall never have coy mistress" as did Andrew Marwell, nor will he ever speak of "the marriage of true minds" as did William Shakespeare. True humanism is lacking in McKuen.

Poet Karl Shapiro in "Book World" November 24, 1968, wrote: "It is irrelevant to speak of McKuen as a poet. His poetry is not even trash . . . The downhill speed of American poetry in the last decade has been breath taking . . . We are entertained with the fecal-buccal carnival of the naughties who have their own magazines and publishing houses, and thelovelornalienates and his affiliates who croon their way into the respectable publishing establishment. McKuen falls into the latter category . . . He is himself intelligently modest about his accomplishments. It is his publicists who fail him."

Nevertheless, Rod McKuen is an immensely popular poet, a singer or ratherchanso nnier; he is a consistent composer of best selling non-fiction.

Uvic Concert Band Performs Sunday

In its first venture off campus, the University of Victoria Concert Bank under its director, Howard Denike, will present a program Sunday afternoon at 2:30 in the McPherson Playhouse.

Among numbers programmed are Bartok's Petite Suite, the march, Colossus of Columbia, by R. Alexander, Alfred Reed's A Festive Overture and Vaughan Williams' Folk Song Suite.

Also on the program at the special request of the students, is Howrd Cable's new arrangement of the Broadway musical Promises, Promises.

Cable directed the band in the first reading of this music during his visit to the city last month.

Members of the concert band range from first year to fourth year students.

Each year one student entering the music department at Uvic is awarded the Harbord Scholarship of $500. The three winners for the years 1967-68 and 69 are all playing with the band.

They are Ian Franklin, oboe, Donna Zapf, clarinet, and Susan Stancombe, clarinet.

A Concerto by Handel for symphonic band, with two solo flutes and two B flat clarinets, will feature James Kennedy, Owen Underhill, Betty Harbord and Susan Stancombe.

Also featured during the afternoon will be a trombone solo by Rick Carswell, flute solo by James Kennedy, and clarinet duet by Don Mayer and Donna Zapf.

Franklin, Carswell, who is vice-president of the band, and bassoonist Alan Denike have all been selected for the 1970 National Youth Orchestra.

The concert band numbers over 40 members. It was first organized in 1962 under bandmaster Denike. The president is Susan Stancombe.

Reaffirmation of Man's Genius

By HILARY BUTLER

Without question this is a most beautiful book. It is beautiful to look at, beautiful to handle, beautiful to read. And then, when you get into it, you find a beautiful mind felicitously handling a beautiful subject.

Where does one begin to review such a rounded combination of the arts of the scholar and publisher? Perhaps by explaining how the book came to be produced at all.

For, oddly enough, it was not written as a book in the first place. The material was arranged for a series of television programs that the BBC asked Kenneth Clark to produce in the spring of 1969. So successful were these programs that the promoters persuaded the author to reproduce them in book form.

"Going through these scripts," writes Clark in his foreword, "and comparing them in mind with the actual programs, I am miserably aware of how much has been lost . . . I cannot distinguish between thought and feeling, and I am convinced that a combination of words and music, color and movement can extend human experience in a way that words alone cannot do. For this reason I believe in television as a medium."

CIVILISATION by Kenneth Clark. Longmans. $16.75.

If the TV series was more moving than this book it must have been an astonishing experience. Open the cover, and you are taken into a majestic planetarium where the celestial luminaries of western civilization beam down in a panorama of genius to light the way and lift the heart.

Kenneth Clark's authoritative voice speaks from the handsome pages with an urbane erudition only equalled by his unaffected simplicity of style.

The 238 black and white reproductions are so diamond clear that even a magnifying glass reveals no fogging, and the 48 colored plates are so faithful that minute defects in the original canvasses are plain to see, and the figures stand out from the page in something finer even than glorious technicolor.

The civilization which he surveys is that of western Europe since the collapse of the Roman Empire. "Civilization . . . I had no clear idea what it meant," writes Clark, "But I thought it was preferable to barbarism, and fancied that this was the moment to say so."

This about sums it up. The book, like the TV series, no doubt, falls into the lap of our fearful seventies like a maternal reminder of all the lovely things our cultural home has provided us, all the exquisite insights, aspirations and accomplishments that our age of violence is threatening to destroy.

'I have tried," we read towards the end, "throughout this series to define civilization in terms of creative power and the enlargement of human faculties."

But this one-time associate of Bernard Berenson recognizes that "throughout the great ages of human achievement which I have been discussing, the mass of voiceless people have had a hard time. Poverty, hunger, plague, disease: they were the background of history right up to the end of the nineteenth century, and most people regarded them as inevitable."

These "voiceless" ones are Chesterton's "Secret People," who dumbly served under kings and bishops and squires and marshals and now serve under "a new people," the bureaucrats.

"They look at our labor and laughter as a tired man looks at flies.
And the load of their loveless pity is worse than the ancient wrongs,
Their doors are shut in the evenings; and they know
no songs . . .
Smile at us, pay us, pass
us. But do not quite forget."

And Clark does not forget. While he stirs us to understand and be ravished by the artistic and musical geniuses of the past (he stops short before contemporary art), he never forgets the background of the secret people, the people whose labors and sufferings made it all possible.

And so he does not, like some highbrows, despise Rococo, because, he said, it tries to make people happy: "The founders of the American Constitution, who were far from frivolous, thought fit to mention the pursuit of happiness as a proper aim for mankind, and if ever this aim has been given visible form it is in Rococo architecture — the pursuit of happiness and the pursuit of love."

In this dismal age of architectural functionalism and of art that is mostly Angst, it is delightful to be assured that we may still admire the lush curves and colors of Rococo cupids.

LAWRENCE FERLINGHETTI

Time Removes Poet's Sting

By STEVE HUME

One of the pitfalls of social poetry is that today's incisive comment is tomorrow's inanity and the far future's quaint joke.

Some of Lawrence Ferlinghetti's poetry avoids the trap of social comment with a universalized grace that indicates an obvious skill and command in the medium of print, the art of language.

But when Ferlinghetti is bad he tends to be out of date by the time his verse is published, worth a joke or two before the year is out.

Like middle-class morals or the bourgeois environment he criticizes, Ferlinghetti's social poems tend to obsolescence. Their relevance is anchored to a specific point in time.

THE SECRET MEANING OF THINGS and TYRANNUS NIX by Lawrence Ferlinghetti. McClelland and Stewart paperbacks. $1.50 each.

That is the main fault with two recent books by this aging apostle of youth.

One, The Secret Meaning of Things, is a collection of shorter poems dating to 1967. The other, Tyrannus Nix, is a long poem of criticism attacking President Richard Nixon.

Of the two, The Secret Meaning of Things is clearly superior. The poems are well crafted, the imagery is clear and delicate, and Ferlinghetti has managed to universalize his themes to the point where the social comment blends with the poetic elements in a highly satisfying manner.

Assassination Raga laments the death of president John Kennedy and the proliferation of violence throughout the United States without succumbing to polemic or pedantry.

Elsewhere in the book Ferlinghetti presents happier themes.

"Every man his own myth," he cries, "butterflies in amber hurrying through eternity." There is a joy in the verse that argues the poet is most at home with his own lyrical perceptions rather than the depressing task of criticizing man in society.

Love and Life are obviously what he enjoys writing, and there is a touch of whimsy that is delightful:

And every day
a line of love's battleships is sunk by invisible fish
And there are days
when I see all too clearly and there are days
when I am everyone I meet.

All Too Clearly and After The Cries Of The Birds are poems that manifest Ferlinghetti's delight in language; easy to read and a pleasure to look at. The words flow and the images are posed and juxtaposed with the fine skill of a master.

It is when he turns to flaying society almost as though it were the poet's burden, that Ferlinghetti begins to labor.

It is labored verse because it is pretentious: like the grandiose claim in the title The Secret Meaning of Things, suggesting Ferlinghetti is the key to the code of existence.

Tyrannus Nix is like the lesser poems of the first book, but carried to an absurd extreme.

It is 92 pages of pseudo-lyrical ranting that, in effect, says Nixon is too irrelevant for words. The poem negates itself so completely one wonders why anyone would spend the energy to write 92 pages attacking Nixon by saying Nixon's not relevant enough to waste time on.

Aside from the poetic flaws, Tyrannus Nix perpetrates one of those technical pretensions that disturb the eye. The entire book is a reproduction of Ferlinghetti's script.

Original scripts can be interesting, but when they are badly reproduced on poor quality newsprint they not only look grotesque, they are damned hard on the eyes.

And Tyrannus Nix is just as hard on the retinas as it is on the brain.

Ukrainians Changed Land In Own Image

By BERNARD McCARRON

The earliest Ukrainians to come to Canada were from Galicia, part of the Austria-Hungary Empire. For the most part they were uneducated peasants used to being ground under the heel of government agent and church pastor.

Not only did they have many miles to travel before arriving at the "Free Lands" in Western Canada, but also they had several decades to struggle through before arriving at the status of members of a Western democracy.

J. G. MacGregor is primarily a local historian. Though he does strive to balance an infinity of detail with interesting anecdotes I found him wearying at times.

VILNI ZEMLI by J. O. MacGregor. McClelland and Stewart. $12.50.

The problems accompanying the Galicians in their journey to Alberta are recounted too often and the reader feels the burden of their troubles with customs officers, with passenger agents, with politicians, and above all, with language.

Once they left Galicia, the Ukrainians were truly isolated and at the mercy of any who would exploit these trusting immigrants.

Understanding the history of Ukrainian Canadian friends and acquaintances helps me to see why they are so involved now in education, politics, law and medicine.

From the beginning the Ukrainians were most anxious to educate their children. Their struggle to establish separate schools, the gradual acceptance of the public school system, their present roles as teachers and department officials — all are presented by MacGregor as he traces the group's history from 1890 to today.

The efforts put forth by the Ukrainians to achieve Old Country ideals is especially interesting in the area of religion. They were basically very religious and their needs in ceremony and worship could be met by priests from either the Greek Catholic or the Russian Orthodox Church.

As the people sought priestly assistance they became involved with hierarchies governing Greek, Russian and Roman Catholic churches. From that involvement came a most pointless and expensive lawsuit which was carried all the way to the Privy Council. Religious concerns divided this people who were otherwise welded together by common origin, culture and needs.

MacGregor provides every possible perspective. Under his kindly gaze individuals and families are observed, their food, customs and costumes vividly described. Discussions are recreated, joys and sorrows revived, early dwellings revisited.

The names featured are not the ones commonly associated with Canadian history. A few of the more famous names are: Iwan Pylypow, Wasyl Eleniak, Dr. Oleskow. Not familiar? Perhaps others will be. Melnyk, Lakusta, Hawrelak: these are names of men active today in education and politics in Alberta.

MacGregor's conclusion is most appropriate as he conducts a tour along Alberta's Highway 15 east from Fort Saskatchewan. His respect for these farmers from Galicia shines through as he views the lands which they had taken and formed in their own image.

A Man's Musings Don't Always Make a Book

By ED GOULD

From time to time even the dullest of us is struck with a thought that at the time seems so brilliant, so original and so right, we feel almost forced to write it down.

These thoughts may come to teachers while marking dull exam papers, to clerks filing documents, to cops patrolling dull beats or to pavement evaluators determining how much asphalt to bung into a dull pothole.

Written down, the flash of insight can be assessed, enlarged upon, or discarded.

STRAWS IN THE WIND by Harry J. Boyle. Doubleday. $5.95.

Published, they can be passed on for posterity and the edification of others.

Unfortunately, there are few musers like the late Dag Hammarskjold (Markings) and fewer still like Kahlil Gibran (The Prophet, the Wanderer). However, any author who has had a number of books containing a few kernels of wisdom published stands a pretty good chance of getting even some of his chaff into print.

Which brings us to Straws in the Wind by Harry J. Boyle.

In 162 well-padded pages, Boyle muses on such lightweight subjects as pussy willows, garbagemen, jogging, barns, twilight, mud, noise and squirrels.

There is little new here. Most of it has been said before. In fact, many of the pieces appeared first in the Montreal Star and Weekend Magazine.

Boyle explains that the editors—he dedicates the book to them—are "concerned journalists" who feel we shouldn't lose sight in these days of McLuhanism of some of the pleasant things still around.

Some of these "pleasant things" have already been mentioned.

Others: Christmas trees, autumn mists, picking berries and crickets. Even arranged in a seasonal march past, they are a disappointing substitute for a full-grown work. Better if Boyle had staved off Doubleday's demand for a quick return on its advance a little longer.

He earned extra time on the backs of his other works: Homebrew and Patches, A Summer Burning, Mostly in Clover and With A Pinch of Sin. These crackling good reminiscences of a boyhood in rural Ontario have all the tang that a lover of W. O. Mitchell would demand of an Easterner.

The reader is treated to glimpses of this wit and wisdom throughout the book but vintage Boyle emerges only fully in a chapter entitled "The Changeless Magic." Here, in matchless journalistic detail, he describes a return to a familiar hamlet, now surrounded and stranded by freeways and dying from a lack of youthful blood.

Boyle gives a block-by-block description of a Christmas Eve drive around the town with the police chief that will have many a smalltown boy counting his blessings for the good things still around.

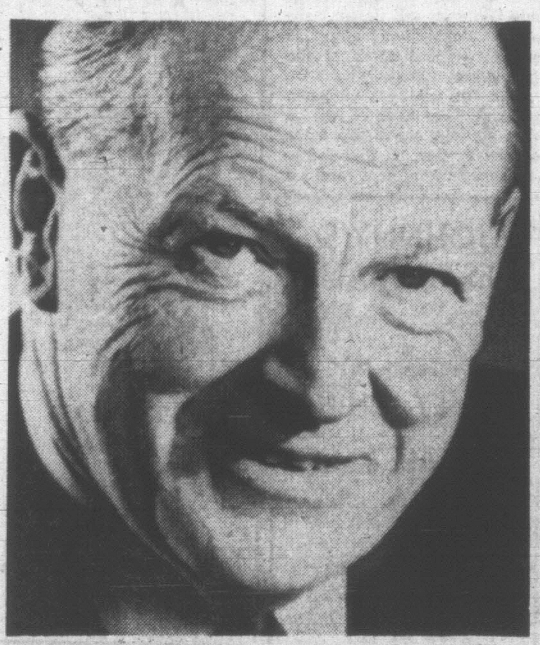
This is Boyle at his best. Not that there aren't good parts elsewhere. Boyle has fun with telephone pests when he discovers that stabbing the telephone dunner first is more fun than putting extra holes in computerized reply cards.

He points out that there was a common sadness among the neighborhood kids whenever a hoarding surrounded a favorite vacant lot. For grownups and rich folks today, "a vacant lot is an eyesore depicting a lack of progress."

Boyle, who is mayor of Mariposa during the 1970 Leacock Centennial and teacher of creative writing at Banff School of Fine Arts each summer, is a kind man. His shafts don't break the skin. His barbs are barbered.

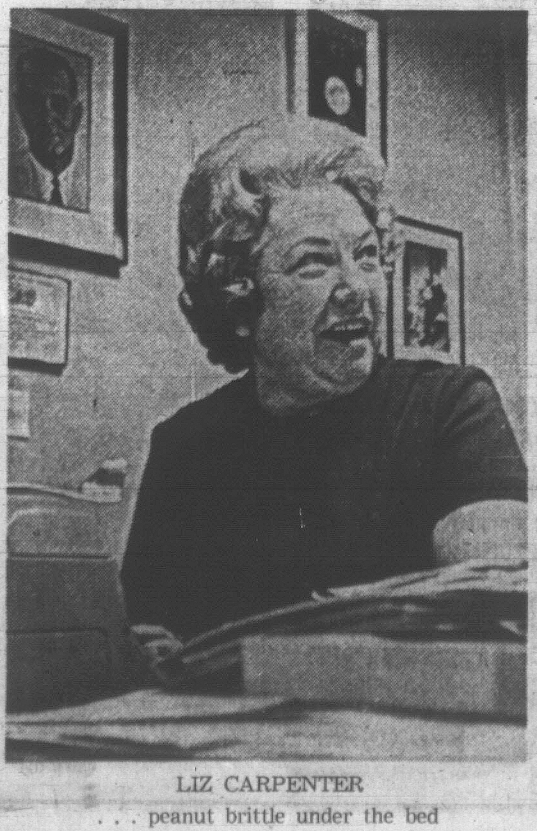
The charm of this book lies in the sadness of things that are daily going missing from our lives and nostalgia for the good part.

Maybe it will start a little chain of musings going in your own mind. Collect enough of them and, if you are fortunate and talented enough to get a few other volumes published first, who knows?



HARRY J. BOYLE

The Great Society — From the Inside



LIZ CARPENTER

. . . peanut brittle under the bed

By JOHN SLINGER

Sitting listening to the news the other night — the CBC version, News at 6 — there was the damndest feeling that before Armageddon arrives the whole world is going to be bored to death.

Not quite believing, I picked up the paper, went through it again, yawned, and found the feeling growing stronger. Boredom.

The news, so far as I could determine was that the world is continuing its trip down the mainline to Hell on a handcar and it struck me that the radio could have saved a lot of air and the newspaper a lot of ink by simply announcing "Today Same As Yesterday; Possibly Moreso" and leaving it at that. Period.

Look at it this way — the last Significant Thing that happened in Canada was Barbra Streisand's visit to Ottawa. And wouldn't you believe it, the hounds of the Capital's press corps couldn't even find you where she was staying.

Ha. I know where she was staying or should have been staying and all my vicaries were a-tingling because, dammit, our Prime Minister might be bartering our Arctic Sovereignty for a mess of pottage and he might be producing a revival of Hard Times on the Prairies and he might be withdrawing from NATO in order to carry out a secret operation to prevent the takeover of this province by B.C. Hydro but he is also carrying on with this tremendous broad with a well-documented cleavage and, well, right on!

It was the same with Jackie Kennedy. She said that if she spent as much money on clothes as was being reported in the public prints, she'd have to be wearing mink underwear and then it comes on that's exactly how much she was spending, so did she wear the fur side inside or out? Well?

RUFFLES AND FLOURISHES by Liz Carpenter. Doubleday. $8.50.

Then there was her and Roswell Gilpatrick and that beautiful day in Delaware or wherever that was enough to buoy her up for a whole week. No kidding. And it came out about how FDR had a mistress or something. Too much.

Old Prince Charles and the cherry brandy. The Conservative cabinet and Gerda. (Even Gerda must have thought that was pretty funny.) Whatsisname Profumo and Christine it wasn't, but it was ours and Geritol stock boomed.

That's news man. And that's why we keep on taking the paper, isn't it? So when Something Good happens, we'll know about it. Be honest.

So when this woman Liz Carpenter who was Staff Director and Press Secretary to Lady Bird Johnson puts out her book about her time with the Great Society, I could barely contain myself.

So now I know that Lady Bird had a secret stash of peanut brittle under her bed. That George Hamilton and Lynda were nothing more than "good friends."

I know that the story about Lyndon driving through Texas at 90 miles an hour tossing beer cans out of the window of his Lincoln was a filthy fabrication (I don't know what the true story was, mind); I know Eartha Kitt only came to the White House for luncheon once (Guess Who's Not Coming to Dinner Again); and I know any number of other things I'd rather not write down because just thinking about them gives me goose pimples.

The thing is, like it or not, the Johnsons were just not all that glamorous. They didn't make the covers of the movie mags. And whatever redeeming features they might have had were largely obscured by the huger horrors of the 1960s.

That's where Liz Carpenter's book becomes at least curious ("The warm and tender story of a simple girl who found adventure in the White House.") Because it's a sympathetic (which is rare) and inside view of an administration that might just have pitched us over the brink of control. Whither they goest, baby, we will go.

Poor Lady Bird's greatest crime seems to have been that she was not a Jackie Kennedy. But then, Mrs. Carpenter seems to be suggesting that it was a Kennedy cancer that became the American malignancy.

She seems to suggest that the Johnson administration had to resort to the stick because the carrot had gone rotten. And she seems to suggest that Lyndon Johnson was considered a varlet not for what he did, but because he came from Johnson City, Texas.

Mrs. Carpenter writes with some wit, some considerable joy and a gratifying awareness that it was not because of her presence that the Great Society did or did not do whatever it did or didn't. Call it Chuckle In at the White House.

CHARM HER WITH MUSIC AND ETC.

By ROBERT H. WILLIAMS

Having invested a thousand dollars or more in a stereo hi-fi system, now all you have to do is plug it in and enjoy it right?

Wrong, of course.

If you have been following the men's magazines through the years since the introduction of modern electronic sound systems, you will realize that the art of stereo listening lends itself to a life style if you will.

The life-style investment can be as large or as small as you choose to make it, but certain basic elements seem to be mandatory, particularly for the male listener (the female, the men's magazines seem to agree, needs only a feather boa and a witless smile).

The first necessity is a smoking jacket with pockets large enough to hold static cloth, pipe and tobacco, Chinese finger trap (for the occasional laugh), throat lozenges and either a diamond or zircon bracelet, depending upon your budget. If the clerk sneers when you ask for a smoking jacket, a natural silk pongee robe is available at Bergdorf Goodman at $60; plus $8.50 for a monogram. Neither should be worn with levis.

You will, of course, have laid in a supply of fireplace wood ($30 the cord, see your yellow pages under "wood"), and your seven-foot zebra skin rug will have arrived from A Man's World, Lake Success, where you sent $150.

With these basic elements at hand, let us glance at the secondary — although important — accountrements for an evening of gracious listening:

- ● A mustache comb, 2¾ inches long, available at Estu Export-Import, Pasadena, Calif., $5 (if you are unable to locate mustache wax, a good substitute is clarinet cork lubricant, available at most music stores).
- ● A chafing dish (from $15 at most department stores) with an alcohol burner for which you should buy neutral grain spiritis (potable) rather than commercial solvent (poison).
- ● Three or four eggs to go into the chafing dish.
- ● A bar (a small cellarette, $80, will do).
- ● A fifth of 12-year-old Scotch.
- ● A 1962 imported red Burgundy.

Three or four (but not more than six) etchings. Good, solid, inexpensive numbered works are available, but the magazine advisers seem to prefer printed reproductions of familiar works by well-known artist.

You can go either way on this: the latter require no great intelligence to identify and can be passed over quickly, not to mention the possibility that she has the same etching in her digs, and isn't that amazing? The original etchings, however, have the advantage of opening up limitless conversational opportunities, i.e., snow jobs.

Posters, such as "Wanda Embry," 12 inches by 63 inches ($4.95) and "Marie," 29¼ inches by 52½ inches ($1.98). The latter has the advantage of being able to be fitted to a window shade roller, because dawn does come and mother does come to visit. You will, of course, use your own ingenuity to add to the above list: perhaps a yachting cap jauntily tossed on the mantel, a pair of driving gloves on the floor, a ski pole leaning in the corner, a scuba mask atop the refrigerator, Kahlil Gibran on the coffee table. The possibilities are endless.

Finally, of course, you will need a record or two.

'Music and Child' Panel Discussion

A panel discussion on the subject, "What Can Music Education Do for the Child," will be held Monday starting at 8 p.m. at Victoria Conservatory of Music, Craigdarroch Castle.

The event has been arranged by the Victoria Chapter, Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto Alumni Association.

Panelists are Mrs. A. Calder, parent; Dr. Derek Healey, music division, University of Victoria; Trevor Jones, Greater Victoria Schools, and Rodney Webster, Conservatory of Music.

The moderator will be W. K. R. Sample, music instructor in the Victoria schools system. Anyone interested may attend.

AN ELF with a tail? Whoever heard of such a thing? Not the Queen, her daughters and attendants who are making fun of the stranger's appendage. In this scene from Land of Jesters, the Elementary entry from St. Margaret's School in the Schools Drama Festival, Elspeth Futcher plays the elf. From left Lynne Dunsmuir, princess, Andrea Ernst, queen, Beverley Waterfield, princess. Kneeling, Elizabeth O'Malia and Megan Davies, jesters. The play will be seen Tuesday afternoon at Blanshard School.

Airlines All Up in the Air Over Movies

By ROBERT LINDSEY

NEW YORK — On Trans World Airlines, passengers aboard the Boeing 747 will be watching Robert Redford glide over the ski slopes in "Downhill Racer."

At the same time, other passengers aboard the same 342-passenger jumbo jet will be watching Redford in a love scene with Katherine Ross in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

On the flight, the inaugural trip for its 747 service between New York and Los Angeles, T.W.A. will become the first airline to show two different movies in flight — one for general audiences and one for passengers with more mature tastes in films.

"We're using our definition of what is 'mature,' incidentally, not the ratings used by the industry," said Charles Zambello, T.W.A.'s director of in-flight entertainment. "Both 'Downhill Racer' and 'Butch Cassidy' were rated M by Hollywood, but I consider 'Downhill Racer' suitable for a general audience."

On the ground, the designation of a move as one for general taste would indicate that people of all ages would be admitted to the theatre showing it, while the movie for those with mature taste could also be seen by all ages, although parental guidance is suggested.

KATHERINE ROSS

The designations, which are made under the motion picture code and rating program, also include an R, with people under 17 having to be accompanied by a parent or guardian, and X, which bars children under the age 17.

T.W.A.'s decision to create two separate "theatres" is the newest innovation among the airlines to take advantage of recent emancipation of Hollywood from past restrictions.

As movies have become more expressive in their exposition of sexual and other themes, the airlines have been finding it tougher to book movies they can show on their flights, which almost always include some young choldren.

"Because of this shortage of suitable films, we've had to decrease the number we use from 52 pictures a year to 36," said George Edwards, manager of in-flight entertainment for United Air Lines. "Of all of the movies we screen, only about 5 or 10 per cent are suitable."

John Snigg, who selects movies for American Airlines, said, "Either we have a movie that makes a businessman write in and complain, say 'I can get pablum at home,' or a parent says it is too sexy."

Sex is only part of the airlines' problem. The explicit treatment of violence in films and a tendency to tackle formerly taboo political and racial subjects are also giving the airlines shivers.

Several major airlines have quietly deleted scenes from some movies in recent years because of sex, violence, an aircraft accident or the appearance of a competitor's airliner.

Although it is not certain, it is highly unlikely that any airline will show the movie "Airport," which includes a scene of a bomb explosion aboard a passenger jet.

"Anything to do with an aircraft accident is usually out of the question," said Seymour Berman, Pan American's manager of inflight entertainment.

Mrs. Marilyn Evans, supervisor of Pan American's inflight movies, said her company would not show movies with nudity, sex, violence of "sensitive" racial or political issues.

"We also stay away from war pictures, because we go into Germany and Japan," she said. "And even after 25 years, we find some of the people are very sensitive."

Pan Am last year stopped showing "For Love of Ivy," a film starring the Negro actor Sidney Poitier, on flights into Johannesburg after it received complaints from South African residents.

"Since we go into Russia, politics is also a problem with some of these espionage films that show Americans winning," Mrs. Evans added.

Berman said, "We wouldn't show the James Bond movie 'From Russia With Love' going into Moscow. And, if there was a movie showing Israel winning the Six-Day War, I don't think we'd show it beause we carry a lot of Arab passengers."

'Andromeda' Filmed

By BOB THOMAS

SHAFTER, Tex. (AP) — A U.S. helicopter hovers over a Western hamlet and two scientists gaze down at a chilling sight. Residents of the town lay dead in the dusty streets, with buzzards hovering over them.

This is one of the opening sequences in a new film, The Andromeda Strain, based on Michael Crichton's best-selling novel about what might happen if earth were contaminated with deadly substances from outer space.

To film the desolation of a bypassed southwest town, Producer-Director Robert Wise brought 100 Hollywood actors and crew to Shafter, a bustling silver-mining town of 3,000 until the boom ended in 1942. Now only 26 inhabit the place, a scant 20 miles from the Mexican border.

The film company is based at Marfa, 40 miles north. From Marfa the Universal Studio Company hired most of the natives to pose as victims of the Andromeda Strain.

On a chill morning, Wise lined up a shot of the two scientists, played by Arthur Hill and James Olson, wandering through the dead town. A hole was dug so the camera could shoot skyward at two towering trees.

"The other day I heard the wind blowing through the trees, and it was a fine, eerie sound," Wise says. "But now there's no wind, so we've got the wind machines trying to do the same thing. I want to capture the sounds of a place that is dead.

Robert Wise is a man who cherishes mood. This may not be so apparent to those who have followed his latter-day career, especially the award-winning West Side Story and The Sound of Music. But there is another side to Wise, who made his directorial bebut with The Curse of the Cat People, a low budget but memorable RKO film of 1943 that brought him out of the cutting room.

Despite his adventures into musicals and dramas — Executive Suite, I Want to Live, Somebody Up There Likes Me — Wise had long harbored a fondness for the out of this world.

He made his last three films at 20th Century-Fox, and Universal sought to lure him away with galley proofs of a novel by a young physician, Michael Crichton. Wise was enthusiastic about The Andromeda Strain, and Universal bought it for him. The price: $250,000, plus $50,000 if it became a long-run best-seller, and $25,000 to help exploit the book.

Wise assigned Nelson Gidding to write the script. They made only one basic change in the novel: one of the leading scientists became a woman.

"There is no change in the character," Wise says. "But because there was no love story and no women in the original, we felt it advisable to introduce one note of feminity. It didn't bother Crichton at all."

SOME of the notable artists brought to this city by Victoria Symphony are, clockwise from top centre, Malcuzynski, Karine Georgian, Zabeleta (returning next season), Bela Siki (also returning), Moura Lympany, Rostropovich, Veronica Tennant, Royal Winnipeg Ballet (returning), Jean-Pierre Rampal, Christian Ferras.

City Enriched by the Symphony And Visiting Artists It Attracts

Sounding Board

. . . By Audrey Johnson

If you drop a large object into even the most placid pool you are bound to create ripples, displacement, and other changes.

If the object is, relative to the pool's size, a fairly massive rock formation, over the course of time new sorts of growth may appear. The shape of the pool may alter, perhaps there will even be a difference in the inhabitants as the changed conditions create a new environment.

That's somewhat analogous to the presence, over the last five years at least, of the symphony orchestra in this city which has always had a reputation as far as activity is concerned, for verdant placidity.

It's a mighty big rock for this size pool and it has certainly had an effect on the environment.

By the end of the coming week, with the March 15 and 16 concerts with world-famed flautist Jean-Pierre Rampal, the Victoria Symphony Orchestra will be ending its 29th, and at the same time preparing to launch its 30th season.

A good time to take stock and to consider just what the impact has been. To ask the question, what exactly has the symphony done for the city?

It is generally agreed by the people who are capable of making judgments on these things, that it is vital that a city or a community of any size should have a well-spring of live music.

Back on the Map

And what can better nourish such a well-spring than a properly organized, at least fairly competent orchestra, be it symphonic or chamber.

Among major contributions the Victoria Symphony has made through its three decades, have been the inspiration and the orchestral performance experience it has provided for students.

And then there have been the thousands of citizens, from the very young to the old age pensioners who have found keenly anticipated pleasure in the concerts, especially on a winter Sunday afternoon.

At a fractional cost too, for the society has always struggled to keep its ticket prices moderate in general, and in particular, such as for children and the pensioners, even lower than that.

Out of the orchestra's ranks since the time of conductor Hans Gruber have grown students who have been able to make early starts on satisfactory professional careers.

And in the last two seasons, still another service has been added which, if a little unorthodox, is one of major significance.

By assuming the role of impresario, the Victoria Symphony Society has brought to the city a galaxy of artists who have enriched our musical experience but who certainly would not have been available to us otherwise.

With such distinguished names as Rampal, Segovia, Rostropovich, Ferras, Zabaleta, Lympany and Malcuzynski, the Symphony Society has put this capital city back on the international concert map after several years absence.

Actually it's quite obvious that a real affection for the orchestra has grown up among thousands of Victorians, and that it is accompanied by an increasing sense of pride.

Mutual Gratitude

A mutual gratitude exists which was expressed by conductor Laszlo Gati when, at the Janos Starker recital this week, he thanked Victorians for the support that has made such an outstanding season as this one possible.

More than 3,000 people had heard Starker, Gati commented as he promised his listeners that another treasure chest will be opened for them in the 30th season which will also celebrate the Beethoven bi-centenary and the B.C. centenary.

Impressive Line-Up For Next Season

Included in the roster of major artists who will appear with Victoria Symphony in the 1970-71 season, are the great Spanish harpist Nicanor Zabaleta, and the Czech pianist Bela Siki who so brilliantly replaced Alicia Mitchenko earlier this season.

Pianist Anton Kuerti, the Moscow Trio and the Bach Aria Group which includes renowned Canadian singers Maureen Forrester and Lois Marshall, will also be here.

The Romeros, famous Spanish guitar family, will appear both with the symphony and in an individual concert.

The Moscow Trio consists of the Soviet pianist Dmitri Bashkirov who was a notable guest soloist two seasons ago; Igor Besrodny, violin, and Michael Chomitzer, cello.

In addition, the symphony is bringing the Canadian Opera Company in a performance of Offenbach's Orpheus in the Underworld, and the Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

A performance of Beethoven's Ninth (Choral) Symphony is planned by Gati to honor the bi-centenary.

James Mason Signs

TORONTO (CP) — Movie veteran James Mason has been signed by Ross Film Productions, Ltd. of Toronto to star in the Canadian-produced movie, The Yin and The Yang, being filmed in Hong Kong. The movie is being directed by Burgess Meredith, who wrote the screenplay and also stars in it, and is part of a move to produce more Canadian movies in the international market.

Freedom, Confidence in Uvic Student Show

Looking at Art

. . . With Gordon Rice

One should not miss the chance to see the display [illegible] artwork by University [illegible] Victoria students now [illegible] Provincial Museum, through March 15. Some 36 students, each displaying several works, are represented in this large show.

A not very well marked trail leads you through the cavernous gloom of a darkened passegeway on the second floor and into a large lighted area toward the rear of the building.

As with the review of the University students' work last year it does not seem fair to single out the names of a few students here, and omit many others. Therefore it might be better to discuss the show in general terms.

What you notice about the show even after a quick look is the care with which things have been made, and the wide variety of individual, sometimes very personal styles which the students have employed.

There seems to be a considerable sense of confidence behind each piece of sculpture, drawing, painting, or printmaking. What is more remarkable is that amid this very free sense of diversity there is little that seems spotty or unfinished.

One has been used to thinking of student work as unoriginal, uncertain, something not carried far enough to be unique or worth remembering.

I think there are many times when the students here pull far beyond this kind of limitation and really find footholds in their own artistic territory. This will be evident when a close examination of the work is made, and to do this one should plan to set aside a little time. Otherwise you can hardly do justice to such a large show.

The drawings, for example, are hardly what one could consider "sketches." Not only are they finished works, but they are mostly elaborate, detailed, and very carefully done things. The prints in many ways carry this elaboration even further, and seem to promise that printmaking, one of the real strongpoints of the art of the Pacific Northwest, will continue to be interesting.

The paintings explore by and large new areas of technique; shaped canvasses, irregular (non-rectangular) formats, use of spray paints, and so on. Some of them are really striking in the unusual ways color and space have been explored.

The sculpture carries the viewer into areas of real oddity. Not everything is "new" (or has to be, for god's sake), but some of the sculpture pieces are mind-stoppers. They force one either to come to terms with them or flee. Not even a brief description here of the more striking works would give you an idea of what they are about, so I can only urge you to see the work for yourself.

Several themes seem to recur throughout the show, as subject matter. Oddity has been mentioned, and it could be said that strangeness, far-outness, that is, a quest for fresh and new viewpoints, is a major theme here.

One painting, for instance, examines toes, fingers, and paws as a subject, relating shapes, colors, and ideas in a very fresh context.

Another painting uses fragments of images taken from photographs of football players. These are re-combined in a way that reminds one of heraldry, with color and a sense of abstract form predominant.

Sexual imagery, a technique with many pitfalls, is handled here generally with ease and naturalness, and sometimes highly poetic metaphor (womb-cushions, plant-organs, etc.

Themes of protest, war, pollution, of astrology and occult arts, pop and op work, calligraphy, and even traditional views of flowers and nudes are all presented.

The range of styles and subjects employed by the students displays a free and independent thinking that is altogether healthy and ultimately affirmative.

On Stage Next Week

The sold-out sign went up weeks ago on the Andres Segovia recital Sunday at the Royal, top event of the coming entertainment week.

Monday through Saturday this week, and every afternoon but Friday, anyone interested in young people's creative activity can visit sessions of the Greater Victoria 30th annual Schools Drama Festival.

Programs of plays begin at 2 and 8 p.m. in various auditoriums. For locations check daily ads.

Two alternate live entertainments on Sunday are a concert by the University of Victoria concert band at McPherson Playhouse at 2:30 p.m. and an experimental evening combining poetry, ballet, light and sound, conceived and arranged by Bob Miller at Langham Court Theatre. This is one of the Victoria Theatre Guild's studio series. It begins at 8 p.m.

There is also a Sing Out Victoria program at Newcombe Auditorium at 8 p.m.

The Arion Male Voice Choir will appear in a concert sponsored by St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Choir, Monday evening at 8.

Contralto Eleanor Duff is the soloist and the place is the Kirk Hall, Courtney Street.

Noon concerts at University of Victoria, Tuesday and Thursday, will present students of the Department of Music at the first, and Collegium Musicum directed by Roger Bray in a program of medieval and renaissance music, at the second. Both begin at 12:30 p.m.

The Happy Time, a delightful family comedy set in French Canada, occupies the McPherson stage Tuesday through Saturday evenings, but Friday and Saturday only are public performances with curtain at 8:30.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Rise in Violence 'Alarming'

A 21-year-old man was sentenced Friday in court to 18 months definite and 18 months indeterminate in prison for robbery with violence.

Ronald K. Sparling, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty Feb. 26 to beating and robbing Bela Domjan of Vancouver Jan. 22 in an alley. The theft involved about $700 in cash.

Judge William Ostler in passing sentence said the increase in this type of offence was "alarming" and it was up to the court to demonstrate that the community would not submit to crimes or threats of violence.

Ostler noted although Sparling had a record this was his first conviction for a crime of violence.

A 22-year-old man who attempted to elude police during a car chase by driving backwards for two blocks was fined $400 for dangerous driving.

John Peterson, 1837 San Pedro, pleaded guilty to driving dangerously on several city streets March 5 before being apprehended at Yew and Reed.

During the chase that reached speeds of 45 m.p.h., police testified, the accused braked hard at one point and the police car slid past. Peterson then reversed his car for two blocks before stopping.

Peterson said Friday he at first didn't know the unmarked vehicle with the officer in plain clothes was a police car and he panicked although he heard the siren.

"I don't think you realize the enormity," Judge William Ostler told the accused after learning there were children playing in the area of the chase.

Ostler also suspended Peterson's driver's licence.

Daniel V. Headdy, 22, of 1277 Oscar, was sentenced to one month in prison when he pleaded guilty to shoplifting.

He was observed taking a carton of cigarettes, valued at $4.08, from the Canada Safeway store, 707 Fort, March 5, without paying for it.

He had a previous theft conviction.

Gordon R. Sillars, 34, of 1040 Princess, was fined $200 for assaulting a woman during a domestic dispute.

"You seem to think you are a splendid person," Ostler told the accused after listening to Sillars' explanation.

Ostler noted Sillars described at length reasons for the assault March 1, although he pleaded guilty, but had not provided "a word of justification."

For Brothers, It Was $1.49 Day

It was $1.49 Day in the legislature Friday, but there was no bargains for Education Minister Donald Brothers when the NDP tried to reduce his annual salary to that amount.

The move to drastically cut the minister's salary came at the ninth hour of a twelve-hour debate on the government's education estimates that began Thursday.

FINAL APPROVAL

The estimates, totalling over $362 million, were given final approval at 6:30 p.m. after the legislature began to sit through the supper hour.

Toward the end of the discussion the house broke into an uproar as Premier Bennett and former NDP leader Robert Strachan became embroiled in a name-calling match.

The salary vote was defeated 33-15 by the government after an uproar over the unorthodox form of non-confidence motion by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett.

The usual non-confidence motion for a cabinet minister is to reduce his salary by $1. In B.C. this would mean reducing it to $19,999.

GRIT SUPPORT

Barrett rose in the legislature at 3:30 p.m. to say that after more than nine hours of questioning Brothers, the opposition was convinced that he was "inadequate in terms of fighting off the demands of the minister of finance" and in getting education established as a major priority of the government.

Liberal Leader Pat McGeer threw the Socred backbench into a tizzy by supporitng the motion with the following remark:

"We have to have in this province a minister of education who can wear long pants. Someone who can fight for the ratepayers of this province."

Opposition critics said Brothers had failed to indicate any willingness to discuss the controversial school finance formula which is "emasculating" local school districts; to ease the regional college burden on local districts; to help students from across the province in attending university; to clarify the department's policy on "essential" classroom construction and shift classes; and to give a coherent philosophy of where education in B.C. is heading.

INSULTING

Eileen Dailly (NDP — Burnaby North) said B.C. is headed for a "second-class learning environment" under Brothers.

Replying to government shouts that the opposition was "insulting" Brothers, McGeer said that on the basis of Brothers' performance "I'm not sure this side is not being generous" with Brothers.

During the vote Bennett told the oppsition that the "people" will laugh at them for the motion, but Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell extended the humor by rising to ask the supply committee chairman for a procedural ruling:

"There is a bill on the order paper having to do with the minimum wage . . ." he said, amidst laughter. The minimum wage is to be raised to $1.50 an hour in May.

SOCRED JOKE

"Make it a $1.50 and it's a deal," Herb Capozzi (SC — Vancouver Centre) joked after having earlier called McGeer's reference to long pants "unfair" to Brothers.

Brothers' full salary of $20,000 was voted immediately after the non-confidence motion was defeated.

Alex Macdonald and Robert Williams, both NDP MLAs for Vancouver East, charged that the educational system in B.C. was oriented toward the "privileged classes" in the province.

POOR DEPRIVED

Poor children, said Macdonald, are deprived of the opporutnity to become doctors and lawyers. Williams said all people should be given equal chance to attend university.

While grants to school boards were being discussed, Strachan called Bennett a dictator and added he was "unworthy" to be the premier of the province.

Bennett replied by calling Strachan "a Marxian socialist."

LABEL DENIED

Strachan denied the label, and asked that Bennett withdraw the remark, but the premier refused.

As the house became increasingly chaotic as a result of the exchange, Bennett asked for a five-minute adjournment until 6:05 p.m.

The bedlam was compounded when deputy speaker Herb Bruch was halfway out of the chamber before members realized that no vote had been taken on adjournment. However, the MLAs returned for a half-hour sitting to finish off the department's estimates.

Strachan Lashes Brothers For Universities Budget

By VIC PARSONS

The granting of provincial government funds to universities was blasted Friday by opposition spokesmen as "an incredible demonstration of how not to conduct public business."

Education Minister Donald Brothers faced the heaviest barrage of criticism since discussion of the education estimates began Thursday during the afternoon sitting when $92 million allocated to operating and capital grants to the three public universities were debated.

Former opposition leader Robert Strachan (NDP—Cowichan-Malahat) related an alleged shortage of doctors in the province to the "failure" of the government to provide funds for expansion of the medical centre at UBC.

Last year, he said, 600 applications for entrance to the centre were turned down.

Strachan asked Brothers if he had ever discussed the expansion of medical training with university authorities.

"No," the minister replied.

"Surely," Strachan said, "you must have discussed needs . . . I ask you, I beg of you, ask them if any (of the grants) are to be used for medical facilities."

Strachan suggested that there be a hotline between the university and the minister so there can be a dialogue between them.

Brothers said the universities—UBC, Simon Fraser, and Uvic—want to remain "masters within their house" and talk of academic freedom if the government suggests changes.

Eileen Dailly (NDP—Burnaby North), the NDP education critic, said she felt the grants were not adequate to help universities meet their needs.

Provincial support for higher education per student in B.C. was about $1,700, whereas in Alberta and Ontario it was about $2,400. she added. And the discrepancy is getting greater every year.

When Brothers sat quietly throughout most of the attack, NDP leader Dave Barrett said that by his silence the minister was indicating he was "just not able to cope."

Unless there is greater planning in education, Barrett warned, the province will face problems of social upheaval similar to those in Quebec.

The minister would then be blamed because he did not stand up for the youngsters at the doors of the university, Barrett added.

Reading Given

EDMONTON (CP) — Legislation to establish a three-man pollution control authority and a 12-member alcohol and drug abuse commission was given first reading Friday in the Alberta legislature.

When you fly with us, there are a lot of people to look after you.

When it comes to looking after you, you can count on us. Count on your trip being comfortable, convenient and friendly. Count on us getting you there in time. Count on us for twelve hundred reasons, each one of them a human being concerned with your welfare. Take a minute and look at a typical dozen:

Len Fraser checks out each aircraft after everybody else has checked it out. He's been doing it for 11 years. Charlie Stewart checks them before Len does. He's Deputy Chief Inspector. Ray Poitras. He checks over every square inch of the equipment before it is allowed to take off. Nothing like making sure.

There's Rusty Harris. With Pacific Western since 1957. As Vice-President and General Manager, he makes sure that Pacific Western is an airline that looks after you. Next to him, Diane Kornegay. She looks after the stewardesses who look after you. 10 years have given her a lot of experience.

Alex Kozar. Reserve Captain puts in 85 hours every month at the controls of Javelin Jet-Props and Boeing 737 jets.

Ron Stunden. He operates the flight simulator which keeps flight crews up-to-date on what's happening in the air. And that's one more reason why you can count on us.

There's Hank Kuhl, station attendant and Bernie Muller, Manager of Passenger Services, who is very much involved in looking after you.

Ted Toy of communications, who looks after a lot of things, including up-to-the-minute weather information. And Doris Toy, supervisor of office services. And last, but not least, Rowe Hanson. He's there when you check in, keeping his eye on things in a quiet way.

That's your dozen. As we said, there are 1200 people in all, checking, re-checking and looking after you. And that makes Pacific Western an airline you'll like the next time you fly. After all, who doesn't like to be looked after?

Count on us.

Basic Principles Key to Successful Pruning

Tips For Home Gardeners

By JACK BEASTALL.

The pruning of bush roses is the main job for March in coastal areas. Although some gardeners have heart failure at the thought, it is really a simple job if the basic principles are grasped.

The tools we need are few and should be of good quality, a pair of hand secateurs, a keyhole or small pruning saw, a rake, and a garden cart or wheelbarrow.

Since jagged pruning cuts are slow to heal and are potential spots where disease can start, we must be sure our cutting tools are sharp and clean.

There is so much pleasure in doing a clean workman-like job with little effort, I feel that the few dollars invested in new tools pays big dividends both mentally and physically

A bush rose at this time of year should be about three to four feet high with a lot of new leaf growth in evidence. Ignore this new growth; if we let sentiment rule, the bushes will never be properly pruned.

Before making any cuts, stand back and study the bush from all angles. This is the first rule for any pruning job.

Note all the small twiggy growth, and all the growths that have gone inwards to fill the centre of the plant, also dead twigs and stubs that have turned brown.

First remove all the dead twigs and stubs, then cut out all twiggy growths (live growths) that are smaller in diameter than a lead pencil. With this much out of the way we get a clearer picture of good and useful wood.

Opening the centre of the bush is the next step, for light and air are essential for ripening the wood to produce flowers, also for reducing fugous diseases. Any branches growing into the centre of the bush should be removed back to their point of origin.

This should leave us with from three to five stout healthy canes rising from the crown to a height of three or four feet.

How much of these canes should be removed is a bone of contention among rose growers, and no two will agree. So, we have to make our own decision.

Most home gardens are seeking a good garden display and some nice blooms for friends and visitors, plus a few for indoor decoration. This means quite a lot of blooms, therefore we must leave a good number of growth buds to obtain them.

Pruning for this purpose should be what is termed "high", which means about 16 to 18 inches above soil level. So we cut each cane to a strong growth bud which is located approximately at this height.

Before we make the cut we must see that the bud to which we are cutting is facing ourwards, that is away from the centre of the bush. The only exception is when the bush is near a path and the resultant growth would catch passers-by; in this case choose a bud pointing right or left rather than one pointing inwards.

Each cut is made on a slant, the high point of the cut just above the bud so that no stub is left to die back, and the low point of the cut on the opposite side of the cane level with the centre of the bud.

For roses of exhibition standard we need quality rather than quantity, so we prune to a height of 10 to 12 inches. This leaves less growth buds to give stronger shoots and better blooms.

It is worth noting that the newer varieties of roses do not take kindly to the severe pruning their older cousins enjoyed, so that cutting the canes to five or six inches in height is no longer considered a good practice.

All prunings should be dropped into the wheelbarrow or garden cart as each cut is made. Nothing is more annoying than getting a rose thorn in the hand when pulling out a weed later in the season.

Rake up all the old leaves and debris from the rose bed because this material carries disease spores. Burn it together with the prunings and put the ash on the compost heap.

If you still have doubts of your ability to do a good job you can bolster your courage by attending the two rose pruning demonstrations sponsored by the Victoria Horticultural Society.

The first will he beld at the parking place in Beacon Hill Park (by the animal pens) starting a 2 o'clock sharp on Wednesday, March 11.

The Bevan Memorial Rose Garden in Windsor Park, Oak Bay, is the place chosen for the second demonstration on Saturday March 14, again starting at 2 o'clock.

Try to attend at least one of the demonstrations, for it is so much easier to understand when you see the way a professional tackles the job.

WEEK'S WORK

Sow outdoors these hardy annuals: clarkia, godetia, cosmos, nigella, coreopsis.

Dahlia tubers can be cut into planting sections, each with a growth bud on the top section. Dust with sulphur or charcoal and set to sprout in dampened sand or peatmoss.

If Flowers of Spring cabbages are now showing signs of heading, give them two feedings of fertilizer a week apart.

Plant garlic cloves, and shallots if not done last month.

Trim old sage and thyme plants. Also hyssop and rue.

Hypericum shrubs (Rose-of-Sharon or St. John's -wort) of all kinds, upright shrubs and the ground covers, should be hard pruned in March. New growth breaks freely from all stems and produce the best flowers.

STAMP NEWS

Issue Honors Whalers

By ROBERT G. OLIPHANT

Today the United States issued a 6-cent stamped, embossed envelope in New Bedford, Mass., once the main whaling port in the world, It honors both the whaling industry and the American writer Herman Melville, the author of Moby Dick.

Each envelope sells for 2 cents above face value. The States' last commemorative envelope, put out in 1964, marked the New York World's Fair. The oval, white and blue stamp on the new envelope, which was designed by Bradbury Thompson, features the white sperm whale Moby Dick. Above it is "Herman Melville." Below the whale is "Moby Dick," and beneath that name is "United States," and a 6 is in the lower right hand area.

Herman Melville was born on Aug. 1, 1819, in New York City. His best known work, Moby Dick, a novel published in 1851, relates the vengeful search by Capt. Ahab, master of the Pequod, a whaler, for the immense whale Moby Dick. Within that classic, the author displayed great knowledge of whaling. (Melville once was a member of a whaling ship's crew). His writings mostly forgotten, he died on Sept. 28, 1891.

On March 13, Denmark will release an engraved 60-ore plus 10-ore semipostal for the Save the Children Fund, which is observing its 25th anniversary this year.

Musical instruments are portrayed on four adhesives placed on sale by East Africa (Uganda, Kenya and Tanziania) Feb. 16.

March 9 will be the date on which three pictorials from the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg will be out. A 1.50-franc value observes the 50th anniversary of the Luxembourg Society for Protection and Study of Birds, and it pictures a goldcrest perched on a branch. The other two are for Europe's Nature Conservation Year. Shown are: 3-francs, pasque flowers; and 6-francs, a hedgehog family.

The grand duchy of Luxembourg is bordered by France, Belgium and West Germany, and it's 999 square miles in area The U.N. (of which Luxembourg is a member) in 1968 estimated its population to be 336,000. Their first adhesive postage stamps, issued in 1852, bear a portrait of Grand Duke William III, who was also king of the Netherlands. Luxembourg's present head-of-state is Grand Duke Jeann, who succeeded his mother Grand Duchess Charlotte, when she abdicated in his favor in 1964. (Both have been shown on quite a few stamps of L.).

On March 12, the day on which the Royal Family is scheduled to arrive in New Zealand, that country will release a 10-cent definitive. It features the New Zealand coat-of-arms in silver, and a silhouette portrait of H.M. Queen Elizabeth II in Prussian blue. The background is white. Mr M. Cleverley of Auckland, N.Z. designed this horizontal-in-format stamp, and it was photogravure printed by Harrision and Sons Limited, London.

Seven-cent, 8-cent and 18-cent New Zealand pictorials commemorating Expro '70 will be out April 8. Expro '70, Japan's first world exposition, will be held near Osaka from March 15 to Sept. 13.

Anglican Church Recital Planned

Peggy Day of Colwood will sing some of her own lyrics and music in a 20-minute recital at St. Mark's Anglican Church, 501 Boleskine Road, Sunday at 7 p.m.

Relacing the sermon, the program will include Mrs. Day's song, Come to Me, set to music from Dvorak's New World Symphony, and her own published poem, God Climbed Upon A Hill.

Caution Keynote

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets were steady this week after a strong three-week rally.

The rally began on hopes of a loosening in the tight money policies that have plagued North American stock markets since last June.

Fuel was added last week when three small United States banks reduced their prime rates to eight per cent from 8½.

During the three-week rally, Canadian markets followed America markets almost on a day-to-day basis.

But this week, while American markets reacted decisively to prime rate reductions by more small American banks and to talk that more reductions could follow, Canadian markets displayed caution and moved in a fractional pattern.

Statistically, on index at the Toronto Stock Exchange, industrials were up .25 to 184.17, golds 9.46 to 157.55 and base metals 1.27 to 115.74. Western oils dropped 7.50 to 196.49.

Volume was 9,769,000 shares compared with 9,883,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 387 to 371 with 235 issues unchanged.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up 41 to 181,32. Combined volume was 5,197,000 shares compared with 5,756,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 179 to 164 with 115 issues unchanged.

Bonds Spurred

TORONTO (CP) — News of further drops in the prime rates of some United States and British banks spurred the Canadian bond market even higher in moderately active trading this week but dealers are growing cautious as to the markets' future.

Following an almost five month recession, the market has been steadily improving over the last three weeks sparked by rumors of a decrease in the U.S. prime rate.

The rumors became reality when the Lincoln National Bank of Philadelphia and the Community Nation Bank of Bakersfield, California both dropped their prime rate to eight per cent from 8½ per cent last week.

Investor optimism was further fuelled this week when Britain's central bank reduced its prime rate to 7½ per cent from eight per cent. There is already speculation that the U.K. rate will be lowered to seven per cent.

Most Toronto dealers are beginning to doubt that the market has enough strength to continue its present good showing and are beginning to guess that the marekt will witness a minor recession in the near future.

Consolidation Phase Marks Week at N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York stock market posted a moderate gain this week as it lolled for most of the time in what analysts termed a consolidation phase after recent strong advances.

Only on Tuesday did the market show a spark of enthusiasm that had marked previous occasions when hopes of lower interest rates flared.

An unfounded rumor that a major New York bank would cut its prime lending rate—the interest charged the biggest and most creditworthy borrowers—sent the market surging late in the session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted to a gain of 7.19.

Glamor issues were hard hit as institutional investors began switching from these former high flyers into blue chip stocks whose prices have been depressed.

Losses for the week among the glamor stocks included Itek 11⅝ to 71¼, Memorex 11⅛ to 122⅝, Mohawk Data 11½ to 65, Telex 6¾ to 127½ and University Computing 9 to 50⅞.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials advanced 6.53 to 784.12 for the week. The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 3.4 to 278.8. The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks dipped 0.06 to 50.04. Standard and Poor's 500-stock index slipped 0.06 to 89.44.

LOWS HAVE EDGE

Of the 1,763 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange during the week, 976 advanced and 654 declined. New 1969-70 lows exceeded new highs 58 to 40.

Big Board volume for the week increased to 58,204,850 shares from 48,476,050 shares the previous week, which was shortened to four trading sessions by the George Washington birthday holiday.

Biggest percentage gain of the week was 29.9 by MEI Corp., up 3¼ to 14⅛. Western Airlines, up 3⅛ to 18⅛, showed a gain of 20.8 per cent. Biggest losers on a percentage basis were Kresge, off 13 to 44¼, or 22.7 per cent, and Buffalo Forge, off 9⅝ to 42⅜, or 18.5 per cent.

Among the week's most-active issues, 13 declined and seven advanced.

The five most-active issues on the New York Stock Exchange were: Jersey Standard, off ½ to 53½ on 774,700 shares; Kresge, off 13 to 44¼; Benguet, off 1⅞ to 8½; American Telephone, up 1¼ to 52½, and Occidental Petroleum, up ⅝ to 22⅞.

The five most-active issues on the American Stock Exchange were: Phoenix Steel, up 2¼ to 7¼ on 458,200 shares; BTB Corp., up ⅞ to 7⅞; Campbell Chibougamau, up 2⅜ to 13⅝; Macro, up ½ to 6⅜, and National General Warrants, up ½ to 5⅜.

YOUR TAXES

Negligence Can Prove Extremely Costly

By I. H. ASPER

Tax time is drawing near. In a few weeks Canada's eight million taxpayers will begin the complex task of rendering their annual accounting to government in respect of their income for last year.

For the person with employment income only, the job is fairly simple since their employer provides him with T-4 slips showing what he earned and the amount of tax deducted at source. Even those who received investment income aren't too badly off because the companies in which they invest are required to provide them with T-5 slips showing their interest or dividend income.

The bookkeeping chore is significant for the person who has business income, no matter how small. Whether he is a sole proprietor, a self-employed professional, a farmer or a partner in an unincorporated business, he must keep accurate and detailed records of all income and outgo.

COMPLEX JOB

The job of preparing his tax return is long and complex. This accounts, in part, for the proliferation of companies whose business it is to prepare tax returns. Most taxpayers in these circumstances now hire an accountant or similarly qualified person to prepare and file their returns.

At this time of year it is appropriate to bring to taxpayers' attention the fact that the income tax law imposes substantial penalties upon those who run afoul of the rules.

Apart from the penalties, fines and jail sentences awaiting those who attempt to evade taxes there are serious penalties for much lesser offences. For example, one even pays a penalty if he is late in filing his tax return.

One of the stiffest and, in recent years, more frequently levied penalties is applied where a taxpayer, through gross negligence, understates the amount of tax payable by him. Under these circumstances, the tax must be paid, plus interest (non-deductible) of 6 per cent per annum, plus a penalty equal to 25 per cent of amount of tax which wasn't paid. Obviously the penalty is enough to convince most taxpayers to engage professional help in preparing their returns.

The professional fees wouldn't be as much as the penalties they might have to pay if, preparing their own return, they made accounting mistakes which amounted to gross negligence.

STILL RESPONSIBLE

However, the mere hiring of a professional accountant to prepare one's return doesn't necessarily absolve the taxpayer from responsibility for mistakes or miscalculations. After all, the taxpayer signs and is presumed to have read and concurred in the return, regardless of who assembles the data and makes the calculations.

Indeed, there have been several cases in the courts on precisely this point. The taxpayer's accountant has made out the return and being grossly negligent, has omitted some income. The revenue has discovered the error, assessed the correct tax and levied the 25 per cent penalty against the taxpayer, who protests on the ground that he gave the accountant the full information but that the accountant garbled it.

In all cases to date, the court, although commiserating with the taxpayer, has pointed out that the accountant is merely the taxpayer's agent and the taxpayer is responsible for the acts and omissions of his agent. Presumably the taxpayer can sue the accountant for the losses suffered through his negligence.

However, a few weeks ago the Exchequer Court handed down a landmark decision which may have far-reaching effect.

The facts of the case were classical. The taxpayer, a Saskatchewan farmer, kept scrupulously accurate records but hired an accountant to prepare his tax return because, as he told the court, he "considered that to be the job of an accountant, not a farmer."

PROVED TOO MUCH

According to the evidence, the last hectic days before the filing deadline proved too much for the accountant. He made substantial errors and understated the tax owing. There was no suggestion of attempted wrongdoing. It was a mistake, pure and simple.

The taxpayer casually checked the return and having complete faith in the accountant's skill, as do most taxpayers, approved it. Later, when the accountant discovered the gross errors, they were reported to the authorities who levied the 25 per cent penalty against the taxpayer.

The taxpayer objected and took his case to the Exchequer Court, despite the number of cases already decided against the taxpayers on this very point by the Tax Appeal Board. To the surprise of most professional tax advisers, he won. The court, speaking through Mr. Justice Cattanach, first ruled that the gross negligence was committed by the accountant, not the taxpayer.

BLAMELESS

As to whether or not the taxpayer could be held responsible for the accountant's negligence, his lordship held that for this to be the case, the taxpayer would have had to have done something actively to concur or acquiesce in the tax misrepresentation. Since his records were accurate, and nothing had alerted him to the mistake, he was considered blameless and the penalty charged against him was ruled invalid.

This case breaks with past precedent. In many respects taxpayers can vicariously celebrate this taxpayer's victory.

However, the decision should not be interpreted as excusing all taxpayers from penalties for gross negligence in reporting their income where the return is prepared by an accountant.

If the circumstances are such that the taxpayer himself was reckless or careless, or if he should have known that the return was wrong, the penalties will likely still apply.

In other words, cost of sloppiness in preparing tax returns, is still high enough to warrant a careful and meticulous scrutiny of their returns by all taxpayers. One may be certain that the revenue will do likewise.

Rate Hike To Reduce Hot Money

LONDON (CP) — The sharp rise in West Germany's central bank discount rate is likely to reduce the flow of "hot" money to Britain and discourage other European countries from making rapid reductions in their own interest charges.

British officials said, however, that the Bundesbank rate — push up to a record 7.5 per cent from six — might have been boosted to eight per cent but for Britain's move Thursday to cut its own central bank rate by one-half percentage point from the record eight per cent.

The problems of German-British currency movements were discussed when Chancellor Willy Brandt conferred with Prime Minister Wilson earlier this week. There was speculation at that time that if Britain did not cut its central rate, Germany would have to increase its own to discourage a heavy shifting of funds from that country.

RESTING PLACE

It appears that the British cut was not big enough to convince the Bundesbank that the outpouring of funds would decline significantly. With rising prosperity in the British economy and strengthening of the pound, more foreign funds are finding a resting place in the London financial farkets.

British financial authorities were concerned, however, that the movement of foreign capital to Britain was accompanied by a great deal of "hot" money, brought to London for quick exchange rate and other gains and perhaps rapid deployment elsewhere when the pound no longer seemed to be rising on the exchange markets.

PROBLEMS SEEN

These authorities were convinced that much of this "hot" money was coming from West Germany which, since revaluation of the mark last October, has shown some signs of internal economic problems accompanied by the drainage of huge foreign funds which have been awaiting profits from the revaluation move.

Pushing up the Bundesbank discount rate not only increases interest charges to borrowers and thereby restrains credit and business activity, but tends to atract foreign funds looking for rising profits from higher interest charges.

The "hot" money may thereby shift back to Frankfurt and other German financial centres and act as a restraint on the power of the pound.

Phone Call Lured New Brier Champ

Duguid Clinches Crown With Last-Rock Victory

By BILL WALKER

WINNIPEG—It started with a phone call and it ended with the Canadian curling championship.

Don Duguid of Winnipeg won the 41st Macdonald's Brier competition here on Friday with a record of nine wins and one defeat. But he didn't win it until the very last rock of the very last game. It was that kind of a Brier.

And for the third straight day, the feature draw packed the Winnipeg Arena, setting a new attendance mark of 60,255.

Actually the ticket sales totalled 79,292, but not all the ticket holders got to the arena. And some who got there couldn't get in. The doors were closed.

WALKER

Duguid, who lost only to Lyall Dagg of B.C., and in an extra end, thus becomes the 17th Brier champion out of Manitoba and a fitting titlist as this is Manitoba's centennial year.

But is almost didn't come about for Duguid, who had curled third for Terry Braunstein when they won the championship at Saskatoon in 1965.

"I wasn't thinking much about curling this year," he said after his victory, but that phone call did it."

The call was from Rod Hunter, and it was to ask "Dugie" if he would like to skip a rink in the Manitoba bonspiel.

"Actually we only had half a rink, Jim Pettapiece and I, when I got in touch with Donnie." said Hunter. "At first he said no, he was too busy, but then he decided to give it a try. We got Woodie (Bryan Wood), and here we are . . ."

The victory was a climax to a tremendous season.

The Duguid Rink won the Grand Aggregate in the 82nd Manitoba Curling Association bonspiel, then the Consols championship with the loss of only one game in each competition.

Mabey Wrecks Pickering's Hopes

This week he was the most sensational of all the skips.

He gambled when he felt it was needed, and he played it cosy if he thought this might be the proper approach. Never was he afraid to go for the double or the big end.

And he saved the best for the last — the last game against Bob Pickering of Saskatchewan.

It was expected that this might be the game that would decide the championship.

For Duguid it was, but not for Pickering. He was in as a possible spoiler because he had blown himself out of contention with a loss to B.C. on Thursday night and a stunning defeat at the hands of Hap Mabey of New Brunswick, Friday morning in an extra end game.

B.C. too, had gone the way of all flesh in the morning, losing to Hec Gervais of Alberta.

A quiet tap-back of a well guarded B.C. stone by Gervais in the 11th end, to count three, broke the back of the B.C. bid.

Dagg had recovered remarkably well after giving up a five ender to the Alberta skip on the fifth.

Pickering's Percentage the Lowest

And so it was Saskatchewan who stood in Manitoba's path with Gervais waiting in the wings.

He was taking care of New Brunswick while watching the action two sheets over.

If Saskatchewan could win, he was ready for the sudden-death climax. He never got that chance.

Duguid had all the shots to match Pickering in what undoubtedly was the best-curled game of the Brier.

The figure filberts showed everyone with 75 per cent or over. Garnet Campbell, the Saskatchewan third, was high at 89 per cent and Pickering low at 75. The others were in between.

And it was tense all the way. First Saskatchewan appeared to be in command. then Duguid would get down to business.

Thats the way it went until the climactic 11th end. Pickering was one down and facing a well-guarded shot rock of Duguid's when he came up for his last stone.

But he was equal to the test. He used the double raise technique and they came home tied at 7-7.

Then in that final end, Pickering got a rock behind cover, and the war of nerves, for the players and fans was on.

Stone 'Picked Up a Load of Hay'

The break came, for Duguid, when Pickering, attempting to guard shot rock, "picked up a load of hay" as Saskatchewan second Jack Keyes described it.

"I heard it suck as it crossed the first hog line," he said as a result the guard failed. Shot rock was open. Duguid simply ran it and the next Pickering stone out of the house. He was counting in the 12 foot and that was the winning rock.

Manitoba, a team with a tankard on its mind, had won the championship of all curling.

And it obviously was a far different scene than in the first curling match played in Manitoba on Dec. 11, 1876.

This time there were over 9,000 fans in the arena, greeting their home-town heroes who were piped down centre ice to receive their award—the Macdonald's Brier Tankard from the sponsoring firm's president, David Stewart.

In that first match, the prize was a barrel of oatmeal. It was donated to the hospital.

Now its off to Utica, N.Y. for the Duguid rink where they will commence in the World championships March 17-21.

Duguid may find his new foes tougher than Pickering, or Dagg, or Gervais. But it's doubtful.

For as he said afterwards:

"I needed a couple of breaks and I got them, especially the one against Gervais."

Newfie Crew Manages to Win Four

That was on the first draw when Duguid has to steal on the 12th to win. After that, only B.C. which finished third, with seven wins and three defeats marred his progress.

And the common curler can rejoice, too. For Newfoundland, which has carried the standard for have-nots for lo these many years, set a record.

Les Bowering's rink won four games.

FROM THE HACK. — When they shut the Winnipeg Arena doors on Thursday, they forgot one man . . . the sponsor, David Stewart was told by the door attendant that he was not welcome, the arena was full . . . Fortunately, the attendant was persuaded to change his mind . . . Another who was just a face in the crowd was four-time Brier winner Ernie Richardson . . . He had to stand, and couldn't get a ticket to the Brier dinner, either . . . And left-handers can rejoice . . . Three of the skips here were wrongsiders—Paul Savage of Ontario, Mabey and Bill Kent of Quebec . . . The Eastern rink won the press bonspiel, naturally, because the personnel included former Victorian Ray Dagg and your agent . . . The best description heard of Hec Gervais in the hack is "like an elephant on roller skates" . . . Ted Thonger's theory is that stolen points are the real key to a skip's performance . . . They tell a more graphic story . . . .

In the B.C.-P.E.I game, there were 16 points stolen . . Then in the Alberta-Ontario clash there were 17 . . . How graphic can you get? Tough luck rink had to be Northern Ontario, which lost two one-point decisions on the first draw, to Saskatchewan and Alberta . . .

Students Stop Stockers

Dave Cousins and Bill Westover jolted Stockers with a first-period barrage Friday night and it will be the University of Victoria Vikings against Butler Brothers in the Vancouver Island Hockey League final.

Westover and Cousins each fired two goals in the first period at Esquimalt Sports Centre Friday and Stockers North Americans never fully recovered.

Vikings went on to defeat Stockers 5-2 and take the best-of-three semi-final in straight games.

Stockers, who were outshot 42-24 by the students over the route, trimmed the deficit to 4-2 with tallies by Dave Williams and Bill Allen in the second session, but Cousins wrapped things up with the only goal of the final period.

Vikings, who nipped Stockers 5-4 in the series opener, now meet the league-champion Butlers in a best-of-five final, which starts next Wednesday at the Sports Centre.

ESSOS REBOUND

Cats, Rockets Resume Series

Vernon Essos bounced back Friday and that's what Victoria Cougars, who have only lost one B.C. Junior Hockey League playoff game in the club's short-lived history, would like to do tonight.

Cougars and Kamloops Rockets, all square after swapping victories (6-4 and 3-2) in Kamloops earlier this week, resume their best-of-seven semi-final series tonight at Memorial Arena.

Fourth game is scheduled Sunday evening, starting at 7 p.m., and the fifth on Monday.

And that's as far as Cougar coach Doug Anderson would like to see it go. He isn't particularly anxious to return to Kamloops.

FIRST SETBACK

Cougars' 3-2 loss to Kamloops on Thursday was the team's first BCJHL playoff defeat. Victoria missed the playoffs in its first season of operation, then captured league honors last season with a 7-0 sweep of two playoff series.

Anderson's main worry heading into tonight's game, starting at 8:30, is a hand injury suffered by defenceman Gerry Bond. The Cougars' captain is expected to play although he has difficulty in applying a "firm" grip to his stick.

Essos, meanwhile, broke a 2-2 deadlock with four-unanswered goals in the third period to defeat Vancouver Centennials 6-2 in Kerrisdale. It was the first series' triumph for the league-winning Essos, who dropped 5-4 and 9-6 verdicts on their own ice.

The fourth game also will be played tonight in Vancouver.

OSINCHUK SHINES

Gord Osinchuk sparked Vernon by scoring two goals and setting up a third. John Price, Jack Marsh, Larry Quechuk and league scoring champion Wayne Dye supplied singles.

Defenceman Murray Swales and Ray Todd scored for the Cents, who held a wide territorial edge but were stymied by the goaltending of Gary Osborne.

A crowd of 2,141 saw referee Bunker Hill hand out 30 minutes in penalties in the first period, including four fighting majors.

Palmer Charges To Course Mark

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Arnold Palmer, playing with the flair and drama that has become his trademark, carved out a brilliant, course-record 64 Friday and soared into the first-round lead in the $150,000 Florida Citrus invitational golf tournament.

The incomparable Palmer, 40, who snapped a lengthy slump with victories in the last two tournaments of 1969, didn't go over par on any hole, didn't miss a green and counted eight birdies in his eight-under-par round on the 6849-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course.

Palmer, however, held only a one-stroke lead over Dick Crawford as the field of 100 found the playing conditions nearly perfect.

Locked at 66, two strokes off the pace, were Homero Blancas, Bob Lunn and veteran Howie Johnson.

More than half the field matched or broke par.

In a group at 67 were Mike Hill, winner of last week's Doral Open, Australians Bruce Crampton and Bruce Devlin, South African Bobby Cole and Mason Rudolph.

A big bunch at 68 included Grier Jones, Charles Coody, Rod Funseth and Tom Weiskopf.

The day, and the king's share of the gallery, belonged to the dynamic Palmer, now 40, but still the greatest drawing card in the game.

"I can't recall the last time I had a 64," he said, then grinned that famous grin. "Maybe 150 years ago."

Actually, it was almost three years ago, in April of 1967.

He rimmed out an 18-footer on the 16th, mde it from the same distance on the next, and hit the hole — only to see it bounce out — on the final hole. It was on that one, the putt that he missed, that the huge gallery around the final hole gave him the biggest ovation of the day, standing and shouting while he grinned and waved.

George Knudson of Toronto carded a 73.

Evanshen Accepts Three-Year Pact

MONTREAL (CP) — Flanker Terry Evanshen is back where Montreal football fans think he belongs—in a Montreal Alouettes uniform.

Evanshen, obtained earlier this week by the Eastern Football Conference club from Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference, Friday signed a three-year contract to play with the Alouettes. No details were announced.

The five-foot-10-inch Evanshen is a product of local high school football and was voted rookie of the year in the EFC and named to the Eastern all-star team while with Montreal in 1965.

He set a record with Calgary in 1966 when he caught 96 passes for 16 touchdowns.

The Als received Evanshen in return for 24-year-old centre Basil Bark, a Montreal native, and a future draft choice.

His signing ended speculation that he would try to make Denver Broncos or Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League.

"I was guaranteed security and money in the U.S. but the offer here was a better one," Evanshen said at a news conference following the signing.

Hawks Step Up While Rangers Continue Skid

By The Canadian Press

Chicago Black Hawks continue to turn the tables as the National Hockey League season wears on.

There was a time, back on Oct. 12, when Chicago was considered a prime candidate for last place in the East Division's final standings. And on that date Oakland Seals were able to walk out of the East Division city with a 2-1 victory.

But Friday night the Hawks went into Oakland and came out with a 3-2 win and third place in the east, four points behind the once-leading New York Rangers and five back of the pace-setting Boston Bruins.

The Rangers failed to regain the lead from Boston Friday when they dropped a 3-1 decision to St. Louis Blues who hold a comfortable 16-point lead over second-place Pittsburgh Penguins in the West Division.

It was a black day also for Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman Jim Dorey, hit with a suspension by league president Clarence Campbell following a three-hour hearing in Toronto Friday night.

BROKE TIE

The Hawks victory broke them out of a three-way tie with Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens who battle it out in one of five games tonight.

Stan Mikita, the league's leading goal-getter, collected his 37th of the season to give Chicago the win before an all-time record crowd of 12,042 at Oakland.

Bobby Hull, who suffered a knee injury in last Sunday's game at New York, returned to action and helped set up a goal by Pit Martin that tied the game 1-1 in the second period.

Martin scored again a minute later but Oakland's Bill Hicke tied it up 2-2 before the period ended.

Carol Vadnais started the scoring for the Seals early in the middle period.

ESPOSITO SHINES

Tony Esposito provided strong goaltending for the Hawks, stopping 29 shots while Chicago had only that many tries at Oakland's Gary Smith.

At St. Louis, the Rangers suffered their fifth consecutive game without a victory.

Bill Fairbairn gave New York a 1-0 lead on a first-period goal but Phil Goyette tied it up in the middle session and Gary Sabourin and Tim Ecclestone scored in the final 20 minutes to put the game away for the Blues.

New York defenceman Rod Seiling was the victim on both of the last two goals, allowing Sabourin and Ecclestone to break in alone on goalie Ed Giacomin.

OUTDOOR MEET SUNDAY

Victoria Track and Field Association has scheduled an all-comers' meet at Centennial Stadium Sunday, starting at 1 p.m.

First outdoor meet of the local season, the outing will serve as a training session for next weekend's Vancouver Island team trials at Nanaimo and Victoria.

The Island team will be competing at Vancouver on March 21 and 29.

Barry Sadler Suffers Injury

Victoria O'Keefes may well be without the services of star goaltender Barry Sadler when resuming action Sunday with a Pacific Coast Soccer League match against Vancouver Firefighters in Callister Park.

Sadler injured his shoulder in training during the week and is a doubtful starter.

Gil McIlreath will replace Sadler should the need arise.

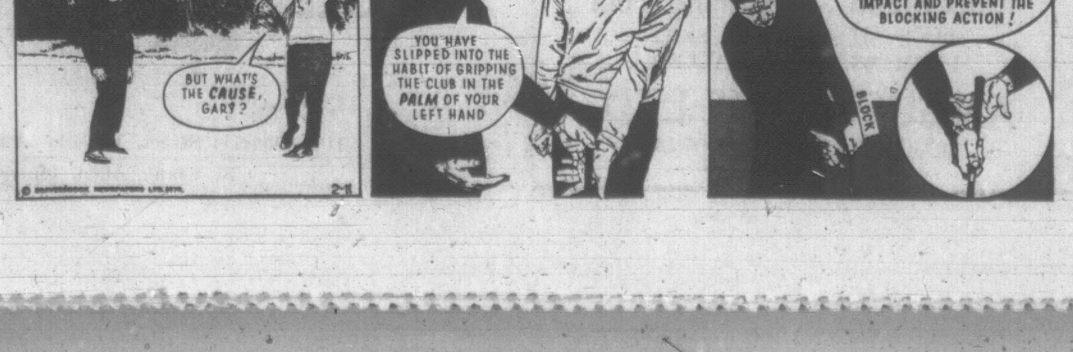
Advice for slicers



THAT'S A VERY BIG SLICE — EVEN FOR YOU, TOM!
BUT WHAT'S THE CAUSE, GARY?
YOU HAVE SLIPPED INTO THE HABIT OF GRIPPING THE CLUB IN THE PALM OF YOUR LEFT HAND
THIS IS CAUSING YOU TO BLOCK THE SHOT AND LEAVE THE CLUB FACE OPEN AT IMPACT
THE CLUB SHOULD LIE DIAGONALLY ACROSS THE LEFT HAND AND MUST BE GRIPPED MORE IN THE FINGERS THAN THE PALM. THIS WILL ENABLE YOU TO SQUARE UP THE CLUBHEAD AT IMPACT AND PREVENT THE BLOCKING ACTION!

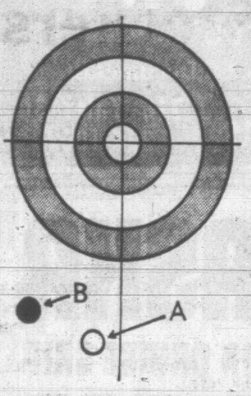
Curling Tips

By Ron Northcott

(Three-time World Champion)

In today's situation, blacks are one up without last rock while playing the final end and this is the picture as the second of blacks goes to throw his last stone. He can play the running shot at "A" and hope to spill both "A" and "B" and the shooter; or come around "A" and attempt to steal a point to win the game.



THE STRATEGY: Hitting and spilling three rocks is very tough, and most unlikely, so I would go for the steal.

The big problem with trying to hit is that if you are unsuccessful, you are almost sure to give your opponent an easy chance to score two points to win.

If you attempt to steal, your chances are fairly good because "A" is guarding a big portion of the four foot ring. Even if you don't steal, you stand an excellent chance of holding your opponent to one and forcing the extra end when you will have last rock.

TODAY'S TIP: Sweepers, if you have a serious problem with blisters and callouses, try wearing surgical rubber gloves.

These are worn in all bonspiels by my lead, Fred Storey, and he has found them a tremendous help. Even playing in spiels when we have three games a day, his hands are never a problem if he wears these gloves.

A tip about putting them on, use baby powder so they slide on easily, and make sure they fit snugly.

SOUTH BOYS SWEEP

Bays, Claremont Win First Games

Six teams from the Victoria area were still in contention for Vancouver Island high school basketball titles as play in two tournaments continued today.

Oak Bay and Claremont both chalked up victories in opening-round battles of the senior girls' tourney at Lake Cowichan Friday while four south Island squads — Central, Colquitz, Lansdowne and Elizabeth Fisher — swept first-round games of the junior boys' meet at Campbell River.

Defending the Island crown, Central defeated Ladysmith 47-39 Friday and was to meet Lansdowne, a 29-24 victor over Campbell River, in one semi-final this afternoon.

Slated to clash in the other semi were Colquitz and Elizabeth Fisher, which opened with a 45-39 triumph over Woodlands of Nanaimo. Colquitz started with a 53-41 win over Parksville.

Winner of this afternoon's semi-finals will clash for the tournament title tonight at 8:30.

At Lake Cowichan, the Claremont girls blasted Port Alberni 57-22 and Oak Bay turned back Courtenay 36-21.

Oak Bay tackled Nanaimo, which trimmed Lake Cowichan 54-25, in one of today's semi-finals while Claremont went against Campbell River, a 38-33 winner over Victoria High.

Championship game in the tourney, from which the top three teams advance to the provincial meet, is scheduled for 8:30 tonight.

LAKERS OUSTED

At Princeton, in the B.C. senior boys' championship for schools with fewer than 200 boys in Grades 11 and 12, Lake Cowichan was eliminated Friday.

Hazelton defeated the Lakers 44-42 in a second-round game on the losers' side.

North Vancouver, which tripped Princeton 57-50, and Grand Forks, a 54-40 winner over Kamloops, were to clash for the title today.

In a B.C. high school hunior boys' invitational tourney at North Vancouver, Notre Dame of Vancouver, MEI of Clearbrook, Rutland and North Vancouver's Delbrook won opening-round games Friday.

COAST TITLE ON THE LINE

Saanich Braves tackle North Shore Winter Club from Vancouver in the opening game of a two-game, total-goal series for the Pacific Coast bantam hockey title tonight at 8 in Pearkes Arena.

Final game of the series is set for 11 a.m. Sunday on the same ice.

Seyfert Rated Skater to Beat

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Gabriele Seyfert of East Germany was rated a strong favorite to win the women's singles title at the world figure skating championships today, the last day of the competition.

Miss Seyfert, the defending champion, was in second place in the singles standings going into the final day but most observers said there was little doubt the pert East German would win the crown with her free skating performance tonight.

Beatrix (Trixi) Schuba of Austria took the lead in the standings with a solid show in the compulsory six figures event Friday. She compiled a total of 1,244.13 points and 9.0 ordinals or judging points—a 24.1-point lead over Miss Seyfert.

But the East German is a far better free skater and figures to clinch it in the final tonight.

Even Miss Schuba admitted she had no chance of winning the title, and said she was hoping to win the silver medal. But she may face a strong fight for the silver from Julie Lynn Holmes of the United States, who moved into third place Friday with 1,162.2 points.

KAREN IS SEVENTH

Karen Magnussen, the 17-year-old Canadian champion from Vancouver, was in seventh place after Friday's six figures with 1,115.8 points and 63.5 ordinals.

Cathy Lee Irwin, 17, of Toronto, was in 13th place with 1,026.4 points.

During Friday's competition, the Soviet pair of Ludmila Pakhomova and Alexander Gorshkov won the dancing title with a narrow victory over U.S. and West German teams.

The Russians, who had trailed Judy Schwomeyer and Jim Sladky of the U.S. by 1.5 points after the compulsory dances, came through with a brilliantly-conceived and -executed free dance to win with 511.4 points. They edged out the Americans by only one-tenth of a point while Angelika and Erich Buck of West Germany took third place with 501.3.

RUSSIANS GRAB GOLD

It was the Soviet Union's second gold medal of the championships. Irina Rodnina and Alexander Ulanov, the defending champions, got the first gold in Wednesday's pairs competition.

The Canadian team of Mary Church, 22, of Toronto and Dave Sutton, 21, of Guelph, Ont., finished 14th in the dancing Friday with 433.5 points and 118.0 ordinals.

It was the first time the Soviet Union has ever won the dancing title, an event long dominated by British skaters. Britain's 1969 champions, Diana Towler and Bernard Ford, now are professionals and did not compete here and the best the British could manage was a fifth-place finish by Susan Getty and Roy Bradshaw.

With the victory, the Soviet Union established itself as a solid dance power, an area where the Russians have been notably weak in the last few years.

Seattle Quartet Finishes Second

HASTINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Art Tallackson Jr. skipped his Grafton, N.D., curling rink to the United States national championship with a perfect 11-0 mark in the week-long round robin that ended Friday.

Seattle's Ed Risling finished second with a 9-2 record.

Baseball Season Is Here

Times News Services

Baseball's first full day of spring exhibitions got off to a proper start Friday with Willie Mays belting a home run for San Francisco Giants.

Off the field, Baltimore Orioles connected with their last two holdout problems and Cleveland Indians' manager Al Dark is putting the squeeze on slugger Tony Horton.

Horton, the only Indian still not signed, wants $60,000. The American League club's last offer was $40,000, a raise of about $10,000. Dark said Friday he will reduce Cleveland's last money offer by $100 a day for each day Horton refuses to sign.

BIRDS SIGN

In Miami, slugger Boog Powell and 20-game winner Dave McNally both came to terms with the Orioles, each signing for $65,000 after missing 16 days of spring training.

Mays, No. 2 on the all-time home run list, connected in the third inning as the Giants went on to whip Chicago Cubs 7-5.

AROUND OUR SHORES

Yachting Clubs Grow

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Not surprisingly, in a city almost surrounded by water, Victoria supports a fair number of organized yacht clubs and boaters associations.

Two of the most thriving groups cater strictly to dinghy sailors, and both are making great strides toward acquiring better facilities and equipment for their membership.

Hewett

ELSA, the Elk Lake Sailing Association, was but a gleam in an avid centreboarder's eye at this time last year. Now, the group is applying for membership in the Canadian Yachting Association, and, through the BCYA, is applying for a grant from the Physical Fitness and Amateur Sport Fund of B.C.

Work on the Club's foreshore area at Elk Lake has been progressing throughout the winter, thanks to volunteer weekend work parties. There now is an 80-foot wide passage cleared to open water, with considerable clearing also along the shore.

Eventually, the plan calls for a boat storage area covered with sawdust, protected by an 8-foot chain link fence. Also scheduled for construction is a 60x8 foot finger float extending from the shore to deep water.

Spring activity will include regular sailing on the lake; a very informal program which will consist mainly of a set time when there will be a safety boat available and other people to play about with.

The major ELSA sailing function function will be the Elk Lake Regatta scheduled for March 22.

University of Victoria Sailing Club has for years existed by the grace of other organization's boats and facilities. Recently, Uvic took a major step forward by purchasing six Ian Practor-designed Minisails.

At the present, the group meets at the Gyro Park on Cadboro Bay, and launches straight from the beach.

Uvic teams have placed well in the regular regattas on the North West Intercollegiate Association circuit (which also includes Royal Roads). Next scheduled events are the district eliminations for the North American single-handed championship, to be sailed in Kites at Seattle, March 21-22.

SHORT TACKS: Newly-elected executive for Uvic sailors includes commodore Doug Hemphill; vice-commodore Tony Dobson; fleet captain Bob Skinner; secretary Sue Martin; treasurer Trevor Barnacle; and public relations officer Leona Jickling . . . Uvic has also entered several yachts in the forthcoming Tsehum Haven "Open" racing event this Sunday . . . Denny Coverdale, race committee for the Royal Vic-sponsored event, is still accepting entries at 479-5775 . . . Next weekend, March 15-16, will see the annual invasion of frostbite dinghy sailors from the mainland for the Intercity Frostbite Regatta, sailed in Cadboro Bay.

Siberia Opens Up For Air Travel

SEATTLE (AP) — Siberia is being opened up to summer vacation flights by North American tourists.

The 3,800-mile aerial service by Alaskan Airlines between Anchorage and Khabarovsk received final approval of the Soviet Union Thursday.

At Khabarovsk, the tourists will be taken over by the Soviet state airline Aeroflot for trips to places such as Bratsk, which claims the world's biggest hydroelectric plant, and Lake Baikal, the world's deepest fresh water lake.

Transportation Consultants International, a travel organization, has booked 10 flights for a total of 1,200 persons, beginning June 6 and ending Sept. 27.

Their trips will last 8 to 15 days, and those on the longer ones will go on from Siberia to Samarkand, Tashkent, Kiev and Moscow.

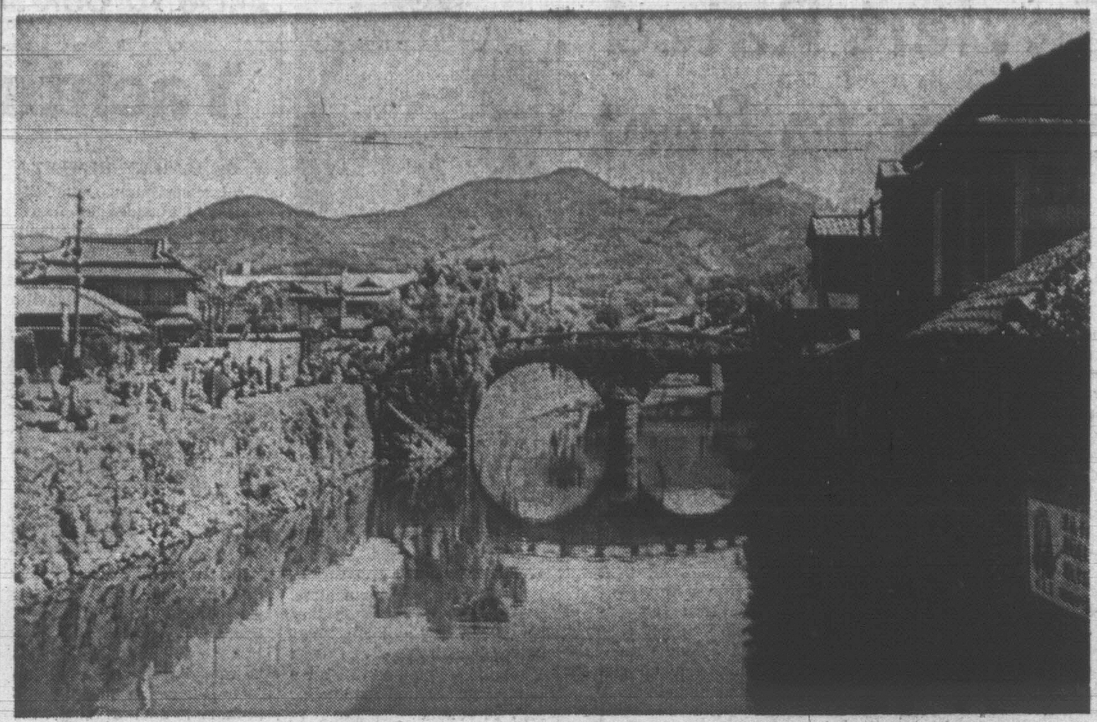
Twin Dies After Surgery

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (Retuers) — Penny Durbin, the weaker of Siamese twins born in Illinois four days ago, died here Friday following an operation that separated her from her sister, Patricia.

Doctors at Glennon Memorial Hospital said Penny's condition had deteriorated since the operation. The babies had been joined together from breast bone to navel.

Patricia was reported in satisfactory condition.

The twins were born in Decatur, Ill., Monday to Mrs. Duance Durbin, 21. The Durbins have another child, Mark, 18 months old.



Japan Offers Interesting Sights

Expo 70 visitors in Japan who venture as far south as Nagasaki on the Island of Kyushu, will see the Meganebashi (Spectacle Bridge) built in 1634 by a Chinese priest and still in use (top), also the home and garden of the original Madame Butterfly, high on a hillside overlooking the harbor (below).

Color slides of Nagasaki and other "must-see" places will be shown by Times columnist Elizabeth Forbes at Oak Bay junior secondary school on Friday, March 13, at 8 p.m. The presentation (open to the public) is sponsored by the Greater Victoria School Board Adult Education Division. Miss Forbes spent two months in Japan when it was emerging from the scars of war and starting its climb to the position it holds today.

She lived in Japanese inns and private homes, ate Japanese food and travelled in crowded second and third class trains. During her travels she learned much about the people and their customs. Her slides and commentary feature them at work and play. Included in the showing will be the sacred deer of Nara, silk dyeing in Kyoto rivers, geisha dances, a hydroponic farm and many age-old customs and traditions sacred in the land of the rising sun.

Passport Agency 'Not Sanctioned'

OTTAWA (CP — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp Friday advised Canadians not "to waste their money" by paying travel agents to help them apply for passports.

Mr. Sharp was answering a Commons question by Marvin Howe (PC—Wellington-Grey), who referred to a press report that a travel agency had been charging a fee to assist applicants with their forms.

The minister said the agency's action did not have "the blessing of the government." He said the passport office would process applications with equal speed whether they came from travel agencies or individuals.

Replying to questions from Grant Deachman (L—Vancouver Quadra) and Alfred Hales (PC—Wellington), Mr. Sharp said the government would announce the opening of passport offices in Vancouver and Toronto "in a few days." An office in Vancouver is to be opened next week.

Passports cost $10 and are valid for five years. They are not renewable.

United Church Men to Meet

Delegates from United Church AOTS Men's Clubs on Vancouver Island and the mainland will participate in a day long roundup in Centennial United Church, Victoria, Saturday, March 21.

Delegates will be invited to ask questions and a general discussion will follow.

Filling Jumbo Jets Big Problem

By BENOIT HOULE

PARIS (CP) — With the 350-seat Boeing 747 jumbo jets coming into service this year, airlines are faced with the question of how to fill them.

"These giants," says Gerard Larrault of the Paris office of Air Canada, "must be filled. We cannot have them crossing the Atlantic with only 25 passengers."

Pan American Airways was the first to put the 747s into service. On the airline's Paris-New York run, three Boeing 707s were replaced by three 747s. The giants also fly to London.

All this means that Pan Am now can handle 1,086 passengers. With the 747s, we must its Paris-New York flight.

"With our three 707s," says Boris Troyan of Pan Am, "we needed a total of 216 passengers. With the 7.s, we must find 380 passengers a day to stay in the black. This seems impossible when we consider we'll have to compete with the 747s of Air France, Trans-World Airlines, Air-India and Air Canada."

Air France is putting four Boeing 747s into service in May, one on the Montreal-Paris run.

To fill the giant craft, as high as a five-storey building, airlines will have to seek passengers from among the millions of persons who have never travelled by air.

These potential customers, it is believed, will turn up when prices are substantially slashed.

And prices are dropping. A flight from New York to London cost $675 in 1939. Today, the fare is $174. A Montreal-Paris round trip costs less than $200 today if one is part of a large group of passengers.

Charter flights doubled over the North Atlantic between 1968 and 1969. It is cheaper today to travel by group—a scheme organized by travel agencies—than to travel individually.

Airlines are experiencing a sharp drop in profits year by year. It has been estimated that profits dropped to 3.9 per cent in 1968 from 10.6 per cent in 1965. This is mainly blamed on increased competition, higher wages for employees, a doubling of the tax load in the last 20 years and the purchase of new products before those already owned have been paid for.

And the price tag on each Boeing 747 is $20,000,000.

If within four or five years air traffic has not increased greatly, many airlines will find themselves in deep financial trouble. But the International Air Transport Association estimates that the number of persons travelling by plane will quadruple by 1980.

Frustrating System Breeds Drug Use—Psychiatrist

The craze for higher education is largely to blame for drug addiction amount young people today, a Victoria psychiatrist said Friday night.

"It has produced the kind of frustration that leads to drug-taking," said Dr. W. A. Gary Wilson, addressing a public meeeing at Centennial United Church organized by its minister, Rev. John Travis.

"Education has become the most inane, useless kind of test to see if you can make a buck. If you want to be assistant manager of a department store, you must have a degree.

"The piece of paper is a kind of exercise you have to go through to prove you are capable of doing something useful.

"Labor unions have encouraged this and have set stringent demands as to who is fit to work. Twenty or 30 years ago, if you didn't want to study in school, you quit and got yourself a job.

"Today we have a system where young people feel they are failures unless they meet certain academic standards. Grade 9 means X number of dollars; Grade 10 means X numbers of dollars—and so on.

False Concept

"This is a false, materialistic concept of education."

Wilson said the old-fashioned idea of a student was one who had such a genuine desire for education that he would work in a coal mine to get through college.

"Today a young person is made to feel he is useless unless he gets a college degree.

"Our criterion of success is two cars, a big house and a boat with a swimming pool. Yet success in living means so much more than that."

Wilson said enlightened youngsters know that happiness is not dependent on affluence or material possessions.

"Through mass media they are aware of what is going on in the world and they are dissatisfied with it. They say we don't stop wars, such as those in Vietnam, because it is good business."

Disillusioned Kids

Wilson said countless young people take drugs because they are disillusioned and deeply dissatisfied with life around them.

"It's an in-kind of thing to do—to escape from brutal reality."

Answering questions from the audience, Wilson said he could not give any concrete solution to the problem of drug-taking because there are none at present.

"A member of the legislature said drugs are a kind of cancer. I think they are symptomatic of the profound changes in our society, particularly since the end of the Second World War.

"The worst thing in our day was alcoholism, but it had not undermined our society. The church was still alive; it had meaning. Today it is struggling to find a place in a new kind of society and it is having a terrible job finding it.

"We don't have the stability we used to have."

Wilson agreed with a man in the audience that disruption of family life is responsible for much of today's delinquency.

"We used to talk of a total family; now we speak of a biological family, because the children may have several different fathers. And we end up with families in which the only communication is fighting.

"This, allied to our false educational system, is a major factor in drug-taking."

A middle-aged woman suggested TV causes unrest by constant emphasis on the things people can buy.

TV Slapped

Wilson agreed. He said the general appeal of television advertising is "be young and be sexy." Youngsters derived a great deal of information from it but the information wasn't integrated with any philosophy of life.

"This is a contributory factor, but the main cause of drug-taking, in my view is a feeling of inadequacy; of being made to feel a failure by our artificial standards."

Wilson said the attitude of many youngsters to their elders is: "You have your alcohol, we have marijuana."

"Is marijuana more dangerous than alcohol?" he was asked.

More Anxiety

Wilson said there is much difference of opinion in medical circles. From clinical experience he found that most young people taking marijuana were in a depressive state of anxiety and some attempted suicide.

A middle-aged man said he thought adolescents of his generation had just as much anxiety as those of today.

"No," Wilson replied. "Adolescents now have far more anxiety and it is an anxiety based on fear of the future. Many kids are uptight and sensitively aware of the problems of tomorrow.

"It seems we are either going to blow ourselves up, over-populate ourselves or bury ourselves in our own pollution."

Wilson spoke of a "deplorable lack" of individuality in much of society today.

"Most of you tonight are carrying a social insurance card with a number on it. We have each become statistics because that is the only way our kind of world can handle us."

Questioned on parental control, Wilson said:

"If we had the sense to raise our children as we plan our garden, we would have far better results."

Wanderlust Hits Hubners Again

By DON VIPOND

Those Hubners are away again.

They are a city couple in their 60s — who must be distantly related to Columbus. They've covered more ground in later life than most of us in a lifetime.

From September of 1964 to October of 1965 the Hubners, in their camper-style Mercedes van, toured Europe, the Middle East and North Africa.

They brought back a lot of 16-mm film, assembled it into a movie called The Big Blue Bus, and packed in local audiences for a program organized by the Greater Victoria School Board.

They're rich, you say?

Not at all. Paul Hubner is a machinist who retired from Island Tug and Barge in August. Mrs. Hubner has been a laboratory assistant at St. Joseph's Hospital. Their year-long trip cost about $5,000.

They know what they want and how to save for it. And they've got that little extra steel in their backbone which pushes them beyond dreaming to doing.

A week today the Hubners depart on another odyssey, in the same bus now painted brown ("it won't show the mud so much"). There's no time limit but this one could last two years or longer.

From New Orleans they sail for Barcelona on a freighter. Then Morocco, on to Portugal, France, Germany, across Russia to Moscow where they'll leave the bus to travel on the Trans-Siberian Railway to Japan, Hong Kong and as much of China as they're allowed to see.

They'll fly back to Moscow for the bus, then on to Turkey, Iran, Iraq, Afganistan, Pakistan, India and eventually South Africa where Mrs. Hubner was born and where the couple met.

"If we're not too tired," they'll visit South America on the way home.

When they last returned to Victoria and showed their film, many people told them they hadn't quite mustered the courage for such travels although they had the funds and the time.

There's nothing to fear in such journeys, says the slight and quiet Mrs. Hubner.

"We've sent a lot of people on their way since then."

'Nude-In' on U.S. Campus

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A huge plastic bubble ballooned on the Washington University campus Friday and a small co-educational group of students stepped inside to disrobe and stage a "nude-in."

While two fans kept the bubble inflated, fully-clother students moved in and out through two tunnels to see the show.

"This is a nude-in, join us," proclaimed a sign painted on the bared back of a nude boy.

A few students accepted the invitation.

As soon as university officials heard about the attraction, they put an end to it. A spokesman said the affair lasted no more than a few minutes.

Some students, however, said the show continued for more than an hour.

The bubble was made of squares of black and transparent plastic. It rose about 35 feet high at its peak.

PROMISING NEWCOMER Fredricka Myers (above) is featured on Sunday evening's episode of The Bold Ones. (See details below.)

WEEKEND'S TOP SHOWS

Tonight

MOVIE TO WATCH this evening is at 9 on Channel 8; 11:20 on Channel 6. It's an excellent drama, My Sweet Charlie, starring Patty Duke as a pregnant Southern farm girl and Al Freeman Jr. as an educated Negro man on the run. Together they take refuge in a boarded-up summer home on the Gulf Coast. It's based on a play by David Westheimer.

COUNTRY TIME, 7:30, Channels 2 and 6. Singers Julie Lynn, Johnny Gold, Joey Carver and Doug Bell are guests. Don Tremaine is the host and highlights include such numbers as I Fall to Pieces, Crystal Chandeliers and Louisiana Man.

SATURDAY NIGHT AT THE MOVIES. 9, Channel 5. "The War Lord." (1966). Charlton Heston stars in this costume spectacle with some intelligence in production, direction and script—for a change. He plays a governor of a coastal village in 11th Century England who falls in love with a local girl, which triggers many conflicts and finally leads to tragedy. It's well done with excellent performances by Heston, Richard Boone, Rosemary Forsyth and Maurice Evans.

JIMMY DURANTE PRESENTS THE LENNON SISTERS, 9:30, Channel 4. Leslie Uggams, Vic Damone and "Laugh-In's" Arte Johnson join Jimmy and the Lennons for an hour of fun and melody. Highlights include Jimmy's serious rendition of "I Still See Elisa"; Leslie Uggams' production number to "If My Friend Could See Me Now"; Vic Damone's ballad, "Didn't We," and the nonsense of a sketch set in Paris with Arte Johnson playing the pint-sized artist genius, Toulouse Lautrec.

MANNIX. 10, Channel 7. Fairly interesting murder case makes good use of TV replays, studio gadgetry and the presence of Don DeFore as a rasping TV commentator. DeFore's character is a cocky first-class rat, a man who reports the truth, or one-eighth of it, and he receives no love from hero Mannix. DeFore's scenes are the key ones, as the private eye attempts to clear twin sisters in a twisting murder plot that is often hard to follow. Some moments in chase scene with a plain, wise-cracking spinster hiding Mannix, supply the only light humor in the hour.

Sunday

MOVIE TO WATCH is 633 Squadron, at 6 on Channel 12. it's a 1964 English production set in the Norwegian Resistance of 1944. British Mosquito fighers aid the resistance fighters and there are some very impressive flight and air battle sequences. Cliff Robertson and George Chakiris star.

TOMMY HUNTER. 7, Channels 2 and 6. The entire cast stages a fun-filled protest against Unhappiness. Selections include Sing a Happy Song, Don't Cry Daddy and Brother Love's Travelling Salvation Show.

ED SULLIVAN. 8, Channels 2, 6, 7, 12. In addition to the customary over-stocked barrel of guests which includes Nancy Sinatra, Wayne and Shuster, Joan Sutherland, Rodney Dangerfield and Bobby Vinton, Ed has come up with the celebrity-laden National Urban Coalition Glee Club singing "Let the Sunshine In" as part of an elaborate public service commercial and Coalition has put together. The roster of business, political and show business luminaries in that Glee Club would provide Ed with ample stars for a year's programming.

GLEN CAMPBELL. 7:30, Channel 8; 9, Channel 7. Guest John Davidson makes a pleasant musical combination with Glen because they are two clean cut pleasant types which grown-ups enjoy. They sing a medley of last year's vocal hits and Davidson solos to "I'll Never Fall in Love Again." Lily Tomlin, "Laugh-In's" phone operator. talks about computer dating and Mike Connors joins Campbell to kid non-violent westerns, then reappears in a finale about private eyes and gangsters. Country musician Glenn Ash is also on hand and Mr. Campbell's solos include "Games People Play" and "Bridge Over Troubled Waters."

THE FORSYTE SAGA 8, Channel 9. "Strike." The dramatic fervor of Jon and Fleur's romance, which dominated the series before the two lovers parted, is rekindled once again adding new interest for fans. Their face to face confrontation doesn't come until the final moments but in between we see a new Fleur tackle the important and taxing job of running a food canteen for volunteer workers during England's dire railroad strike.

MISSION IMPOSSIBLE. 10, Channels 7, 12. Carl Betz, once good guy lawyer Judd, surprises here as a villainous dictator after an escaped politicial prisoner. Story centres on his efforts to find the prisoner who's hidden by the Mission crowd. To outsmart Betz, Phelps hides his man in a conspicuous spot and then practices one of Mission's favorite ploys, spreading dissension among enemy leaders.

THE BOLD ONES. 10, Channel 5, "Memo from the Class of '76." The pressing problem of narcotics in the high schools is given dramatic treatment by this series tonight. Although some of the plot devices are much too contrived, the story does make its point about the rampant use of drugs by high school kids and their complacent attitude about its dangers.

GOOD NEWS FOR POOH FANS

Honey Tree Episode Set

By CHARLES WITBECK

HOLLYWOOD — Networks have done it once again — scheduling two family entertainment shows head to head Tuesday, March 10th at 7:30 p.m., as ABC (Ch 4) pits a Jacques Cousteau hour, on the history of diving equipment and the display of mini subs, against NBC's half-hour theatrical Disney short, "Winnie the Pooh and the Honey Tree," (7:30, Ch. 2 and 5).

Kids are bound to quarrel, and the only out lies in starting with A. A. Milne's plump teddy bear. If the cuteness of Pooh, who becomes stuck in a rabbit hole after a honey feast, sticks to the throat, turn to those crazy Frenchmen gliding through the deeps in aqua-lungs, cruising ocean floors at 1,900 feet in stubby yellow mini-subs.

Seeing Disney drawings on a Tuesday night jolts the time sense. After an especially high-rated season, is the studio expanding its TV time? Not at all. A sponsor, Sears, bought "Winnie" for a one-shot occasion to push its product. Though the Milne short, with songs by the Sherman Brothers, had run in theatres, it seemed a good buy, and should lead other sponsors into purchasing properties from the Disney film library. Instead of hoarding for the Sunday night program, the studio will sell to outsiders these days.

"Winnie the Pooh and the Blustery Day," show number two, walked off with an Academy Award last year, and it is scheduled for a fall TV date on a weeknight.

FOLK SINGER Gordon Lightfoot (above) is guest of Wayne and Shuster Sunday night at 9 on Channels 2 and 6.

Spring Announced

EDMONTON (CP) — Vancouver Mayor Tom Campbell brought daffodils and a promise of spring into the Alberta legislature Friday. Rules of the house were suspended briefly to enable the mayor to present a bunch daffolils to the speaker and invite MLAs to visit the west coast.

Permission Revoked

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge revoked Friday the permission he had given to Charles M. Manson to act as his own lawyer at his trial on charges that he and members of his nomadic "family" killed actress Sharon Tate and six others.

"I'm satisfied that if you went on trial before a jury on charges as complex as these . . . it would be a fundamental denial of due process," said Judge William B. Keene.

"You are incapable of acting as your own attorney," the judge said.

Keene named lawyer Charles Hollopeter to represent Manson, who along with five others is charged with murder and conspiracy in the killings. Trial for all but one is set for March 30.

Lily Is a Mistress Of Mad Monologue

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lily Tomlin is not your everyday, run-of-the-mill kook — she just seems that way on "The Rowan and Martin Laugh-In."

She is the versatile comedienne who plays the switchboard operator on the show and rambles through a mad monologue which she alone comprehends.

When not being funny, Lily is lovely. She also is single, lives alone at the beach and insists she doesn't know anyone.

Lily left her Yonkers apartment last August with misgivings. Her one-bedroom apartment overlooked the Hudson River on which she anchored a 17-foot outboard, fiberglass boat.

The vessel was swamped during a storm last year shortly before Lily moved west.

Now, boatless, she resides at Malibu in a single bedroom house right on the beach. It was already furnished in chartreuse, orange and lime, not exactly representing Lily's taste.

She did remove an enormous nude painting from the bedroom.

Lily finds the Pacific Ocean too cool at this time of year for swimming, but plans to plunge in at the first sign that the Japanese current is warming.

HOOKED ON JAI-ALAI

The actress spends 45 minutes each morning on the freeway making for NBC in beautiful Downtown Burbank.

Her conveyance is a late-model, medium-priced sedan which was driven to California from New York by a professional service.

On weekends Lily motors south to Tijuana to watch jai-alai matches.

"I got hooked on them," Lily says. "And I like Mexico. I bought a guitar down there and have learned one or two chords. I strum and sing real loud. It's a popular technique.

"The only song I play and sing is 'La Cucaracha.' "

A dingaling? Maybe.

Much of Lily's free time is devoted to inventing new characters to add to her repertoire. She tries them out on fellow cast members for their reaction.

"If you feel a character is right, then people like it," she says. "Sometimes I find a character I can ad lib for hours."

Lest one jump to the conclusion that Lily sits around ad libbing for hours, the record should be clear this occurs only rarely. She also goes to movies and out to dinner, not infrequently alone.

She had been dating one fellow rather regularly, but he left town.

Lily does not attend many parties.

She is awaiting two trunks which were shipped from the east.

They contain almost all her worldly possessions, excepting the fibreglass boat, of course.

Her wardrobe is limited, not to say skimpy. It consists of five dresses, all crocheted, three pairs of cotton pants and two fancy pair which she wears to rehearsals.

Lily's lack of interest in frocks, gowns and other feminine frills can be traced to her distaste for shopping.

This attribute alone is certain to please her husband when Lily marries.

Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt

Zoning By-Law Amendment Notice of Public Hearing

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Municipal Council of the Corporation of the Township of Esquimalt proposes to amend By-law No. 759, being the "Zoning By-law 1957" by the repeal of Sections 6.7 (5), 6.10 and 12.3.2 and the substitution thereof as follows:

6.7 (5) "Notwithstanding anything contained in this Section, open balconies without vertical supports to the ground on Multiple Dwellings only shall be permitted to project a maximum of five feet from the wall of the building over the front, rear and side yards specified in this Section, provided that such balconies where vehicular traffic and driveways can be affected shall not be less than fourteen feet from ground level."

6.10 "Offstreet parking shall be provided upon each lot for all dwelling units in any building situated thereon provided that no parking of motor vehicles shall be permitted within eight (8') feet in front of windows of habitable rooms."

12.3.2 "Multiple Dwellings shall be provided with parking units in a number not less than 135 per cent of the number of dwelling units on the same site as the main building and that 10 per cent of this number be provided for small cars: and in no case shall the parking units be closer to the front lot line than the main building and no driver or owner of a motor vehicle shall park such motor vehicle or permit the same to remain parked closer to the front line than the front line of the main building."

All persons who deem their interest in property to be affected thereby will be afforded an opportunity to be heard on the matters contained in the proposed amending By-law at a Public Hearing to be held at the Esquimalt Municipal Hall, 1229 Esquimalt Road, on Monday, March 16th, 1970, commencing at 7:15 p.m.

The proposed amending By-law may be inspected at the office of the undersigned on any working day except Saturday, between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

Pontiac's new Catalina.
Long 122-inch wheelbase.
Wide 64-inch track.
Big 255-hp V8.

Priced to make it
1970's most exciting buy!

GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

You like your car big but the price not so big? Meet Pontiac's new Catalina.

Catalina is even bigger than most other full-size Pontiacs.

And it's priced to be your happiest surprise this year (it certainly shook up our competition).

Wide-Track Catalina moves out on G78-15 bias-belted tires, a 64" track front and rear, full coil suspension all 'round and a 122" wheelbase.

Power rates at 255 horses or 290, depending on which Catalina you choose. And there are six models to choose from.

You get fabric-and-Morrokide or all-Morrokide upholstery, simulated walnut-grained inserts, Upper-level ventilation comfort with full-glass styling, hidden radio antenna, hidden windshield wipers and color-keyed Endura molding protecting both sides.

And the up-front look of a luxury Pontiac Grand Prix!

These are only some of the standard features of Pontiac's big new value leader (and Catalina's prices make extra-cost options very attainable).

See Pontiac's new Catalina!

This is the way driving is going to be.

'SECRET DEALS' ARE MADE . . . . . . AND, SUDDENLY, POLLUTION

This Man Knows How to Express Our Love for the Land

By DON VIPOND

Roderick L. Haig-Brown is a prophet not without honor in his own country.

To defy such a time-honored verity is no mean feat. It's a measure of the man.

When he speaks, people listen. Because he has proved himself eloquent on the nebulous love affair many of us have with the land.

It's a hard courtship to frame in words but in a whole shelf full of books he has found the way.

In Campbell River he is a judge. He is now also chancellor of the University of Victoria. But for decades his books mark him as naturalist, an angler in the richest traditional meaning.

Inevitably this means "conservationist," too, so he was among many at the university today speaking on the Environment Crisis.

Friday night he and his wife slept in a trim motel cottage alongside Cadboro Bay. Early this morning, before the teach-in began to roll, he sat with a cup of coffee alongside and talked about the world we live in, what we're doing to it.

Pulp mills. Oil drilling. Logging. Poisoned rivers. Faster-than-sound planes. Governments and industry wheeling and dealing.

Do you really think there's room for the individual to do anything?

"Yes I do. Very much. The group after all is made up of individuals. And if the individuals aren't thinking and paying attention and figuring things out, the group won't do very much . . .

"The big thing is to keep asking questions. And there are so many good questions to ask. What is this thing doing to us? Why don't we know more about it? What are we going to do about it?

"Individuals can ask those questions of their members, of all kinds of civil servants.

"They can ask them of industry, industry particularly needs to be questioned.

"Why should we call ourselves a democracy and then we have secret deals of all kinds, government and industry, the public can't know anything about until after they happen . . .

"Well, that's backwards. They should inform the public, let the public express it's opinion in plenty of time to affect the legislation.

"I think this, to some extent, is what Mr. Trudeau is trying to do with his white paper. He feeds the stuff out and let's the people shoot at it and I think that't the proper way.

"This should be the case with industrial proposals, government ideas of all kinds. Let the public speak . . ."

Haig-Brown speaks quietly, reasonably. So later when he speaks of the ominous alternative, it takes a moment to realize he is talking about blind savage violence.

"Within the next two or three decades . . . if governments and industry don't get busy on this thing and don't straighten it up then people will eventually come to see the picture clearly and they will panic and they will really blow it up."

Literally.

He talked about international problems. Environment after all knows no boundaries. It's man alone who troubles to draw lines on maps.

"We're spending a fortune developing a supersonic plane and it doesn't seem as though anybody's asked the question about what it's going to do to stratospheric pollution and is that going to wipe out the world?

"It seems to me we should be spending a fortune on that. And we just aren't."

And he talked about problems on our doorstep.

"Then you've got the question of this oil drilling in the Gulf of Georgia. It's pretty obvious we shouldn't go for oil in the Gulf of Georgia. It'd be a disaster if we found it . . .

"One point that isn't often mentioned . . . if you had a significant spill of oil in the Gulf of Georgia, you'd probably close down every pulp mill around the gulf . . . that alone should make people think a bit."

And on logging:

"It's really deadly on the headwater streams if they don't keep away from it. Now they can keep away from it . . . the fisheries people can get in there and check once in awhile . . . but the Forest Service is around all the time. It is really their responsibility to make sure the streams are protected. It really isn't hard if they set their minds to it.

"Canadian Forest Products is giving a good example of that sort of thing up in the Nimpkish Valley, quite outstanding. And they have companies right alongside them that are absolutely disgraceful . . ."

On polluted rivers:

"The lower Fraser I think is a disgrace and we should be cleaning that up before it goes any further. And keep it clean.

"It probably is damaging salmon; you can't prove it but I'm almost convinced it is . . ."

On the economics of pulp mills and polluted rivers:

"We have to have a new brand of economics, that is all. We know this. It's a matter of time until someone figures this out. There are outfits like Resources for the Future Inc. that are working on it.

"Not enough. We need much more sophisticated work."

Are you hopeful the environment problems could be overcome?

"I think if people would maintain their interest at the present level, and not sort of flake out on it, yes, I think we could do something about it.

"But I don't know whether they're going to — particularly when they see that it maybe starts to chip away a little at the easy standard of living and so on . . ."

What will Vancouver Island look like in the year 2000?

"There's no reason why it couldn't look a whole lot better than it does today. But people are piling in awefully fast and we are doing almost no planning about it as far as I can see.

"We let mill towns grow up as best they may. And we seem to plant pulp mills without rhyme or reason.

"We are, I think quite obviously and have been for many years, overcutting our timber. I don't know where this is going to end us up."

THERE'S SOMETHING of the hawk in the gaze of Roderick Haig-Brown. New chancellor of the University of Victoria, he joined with other experts to take part today in Canada's first teach-in on cur environment, a day-long program organized by the university's Biology Club.

KILLER WHALES: FEW SAVE MANY

How does Haig-Brown look upon last Sunday's capture of killer whales off Race Rocks, including the rare albino?

He's of two minds.

Killer whales on display have taught people they are not the horrible creatures they were said to be, he notes.

"I remember not too long ago we were talking about dreadful things like machine-gunning them in Seymour Narrows and putting great big knives on the prows of the fishery patrol boats that were supposed to plow into a school of killer whales and cut them all up.

"Bringing the killer whale into civilization has cured this nonsense. And so I think a few killer whales on display are good for the killer whales. One or two are sacrificed for the good of them all . . ."

Pollution Teach-In Draws 1,500 to Uvic

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Man must learn new values if the world is to survive, a panel of scientists told an environmental teach-in at the University of Victoria today.

More than 1,500 people of all ages are attending the teach-in organized by the biology department.

It was opened by Dr. Bruce Partridge, the university's president.

Object of the one-day meeting is to inform people of the environmental crisis facing the world due to pollution and the misuse of land, water and air.

Ways and means of stopping rampant pollution are also being discussed.

NEW VALUES ESSENTIAL

Scientists were unanimous on one point: that no effective measures to prevent environmental decline will be possible until people learn and accept new values.

Failure to do this will lead to the extinction of man, they said.

"What we need is a new culture, new politics, new religion," Dr. Henry Regier, professor of zoology, University of Toronto, said.

He said there is an immediate need for action. Man had already destroyed large bodies of water like Lake Erie, Ont.

The climate in regions like Toronto is changing due to pollution and the misuse of natural resources, he said.

Dr. Richard S. Miller, Yale University wildlife ecologist, said people would have to change their ideas of progress if brakes were to be applied to the decline of environment.

"Is more and more speed necessary?" he asked.

As an example he questioned the value of supersonic aircraft to man.

'ACT NOW' — CHANCELLOR

Roderick Haig-Brown, conservationist-author, Uvic chancellor, said people must act now to stop pollution, must press politicians to take action.

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said people should work to make the public at large aware of the environmental problems facing the world.

"The more people become aware of the problem the quicker governments will act," Anderson said.

However, he pointed out that solving pollution problems is expensive and people must be prepared to share the cost if any effective action is to be taken."

Bob Fortune, CBC television man, said indirect harm through the destruction of natural environment is ultimately as lethal as direct poisoning.

BLACK-TOP BLIGHT

Fortune said 1 million square miles of land is being black-topped every year to take care of 9 million additional automobiles.

This is only a small aspect of the problems arising from automobiles, he added.

Other speakers pointed out 140 billion tons of carbon dioxide are added to the earth every year, as well as 7 million tons of pesticides.

After the opening session, the teach-in split into five separate panels which are being held in the McLaurin and Elliott Buildings.

Trash Causes 'Deadly Dezzes'

Pollution is a word worn threadbare these days.

It takes the Grade 3 class of Mrs. Eileen Johnson at MacKenzie school to bring it back to life.

"I think Pollution is gas, paper, glass, old bark off trees, oil, apples, banna peels and polluting the air is one of the worrst problems that I can think of," says a little chap named Greg in his essay on the subject.

"Polluting is exzost, the smell of the mill and that is the worrst," he adds for good measure.

"If people who drive cars wood stop throwing trash out of there windos we wood not have to pick it ut," writes Phillip.

"I wood not like to pick up traash because I could pick up a deadly dezzes."

Michael notes that "smoke polluts the air and make people sick. And some people die from air."

"Don't have a magnifying glass and paper," warns Vivian. "Or you'll bern something up."

The kids are full of warnings.

"We shuldn't drink pollution watr for it makes you diee," according to David.

Steven sees some hope.

"I can stop pollution by putting up a singht," he says, "and telling my mother and father. thay will tell ther frends. And ther frends."

The disposal problems may be tedious but they can be licked, writes Tina.

"We can help by butting trash and litter in trash cans in stead of water. If a trash can is full but your litter in another trashcan. If all trashcans are full, but it in your trash can at home . . ."

It's not as simple as picking up trash, notes Michael.

"Pollution is when jets fly over and let out smoke. Pollution is when a car lets the smoke come out. Pollution is when a motorbike puts on his brake and kept his motor on."

In the same vein, Bill advises "tell your mother and Father to get a devise for the car."

When eight-year-olds get enthusiastic about such a subjust, it's liable to stretch the family drive and maybe daddy's nerves.

"If your father throws a pice of paper out of the windo tell him to stop in pick it up," suggests Calvin. "If you see any garbich on the rd. pick it up."

Today's pupils discuss current topics more than in the past, says Mrs. Johnson.

"They enjoy it. I think they're quite aware."

Water Rate Increase Expected Next Year

Greater Victoria residents can expect their water rates to increase by an average of 80 cents per individual next year.

Speculation predicting the increase followed a move Friday by the Greater Victoria Water Board which increased wholesale rates to municipalities by two cents per 1,000 gallons.

The increase was the first of a two-year plan by the board to boost wholesale rates by four cents per 1,000 gallons.

PASS ON COST

It was expected municipalities would pass the increase on to householders.

The predicted increase to individuals was calculated from water board estimates that water consumption in Greater Victoria averages 40,000 gallons per individual yearly.

Water commissioner Ron Upward said the increases are necessary to provide "water security" in coming years.

He said Victoria could face grave water shortages unless immediate steps are taken to upgrade and increase existing supply systems.

The wholesale rate increase is designed to inform municipalities of the water board's concern regarding a deteriorating water supply situation.

Upward said population growth is on the verge of exceeding the Greater Victoria board's capacity to guarantee a continuous supply in emergency situations.

"Greater Victoria is growing so fast that we can't really guarantee a continuous water supply now if the big pipeline were to go out of commission."

Victoria is served by two pipelines bringing water from Sooke Lake, a rugged 25 miles away.

Upward said the smaller of the two lines could not handle the overload flow if the big pipe were put out of action.

"We don't expect to have trouble with the pipeline," he said, "but it is our job to be able to cope with such a situation.

COULD HIT INDUSTRY

"If the big pipeline went now we'd have to put serious restrictions into effect for the six days or so required to do repairs. No water would be available outside houses, and we might even have to shut down some industry.

"Our pipeline system is stretched to the limit now.

"It's going to cost us $1 million a year from now on to finance expansion of water system facilities to provide security for the Greater Victoria area," he said.

ECLIPSE INVISIBLE

An eclipse of the sun, total in eastern North America, went unseen in Victoria this morning.

An official of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain said no sightings were recorded there.

"From this area the moon would cover less than 20 per cent of the sun," he said.

Observers within a line 60 miles wide stretching from Mexico to Newfoundland along the Atlantic Coast saw the eclipse as total.

It occurred between 9 and 10:30 a.m. Victoria time.

SOMETIMES THE WILderness yields up those whom it has taken. But not always, and the outside world may never learn what happened to the occupants of a light plane that crash-landed on a Roderick Island mountain slope last November 10.

Searchers know that the pilot and his woman passenger survived the crash.

A log book and a diary found in the plane by a ground party last month revealed that the two had set out for the island coast. With a rifle, sleeping bags, compass, signal flares and food for about four days, they were better equipped than many who are forced down in wild country.

Yet they vanished without trace, and four months after they began their trek to Finlayson Channel, they are still missing.

Until Tony Karup filled me in on Roderick Island this week, I knew only that it was a land mass perhaps 15 miles long and eight broad that rides the tides approximately 120 miles south of Prince Rupert.

Karup, inspector for British Columbia's commercial fishing branch, knows more about that sinister upcoast island. He was its lone inhabitant for a spell in 1953, and has no wish to return to it.

He remembers it as a terrible place, matted with coastal jungle and seamed with precipices, one of which almost claimed his life. But not until he had come safely away did he learn that it was also reputed to be the Island of Bad Animals.

Roderick sits in an area of magnetic disturbance. It was this fact that brought Karup to it on a prospecting venture in a fishboat manned by Bella Bella Indians.

Magnetic yawing can be a clue to mineral deposits worth investigation.

Karup arranged with the fishermen to take him off in 10 days. Then, with his gear and supplies in a rowboat, he scouted out a landing spot.

What impressed him immediately was the near impossibility of travelling in any given direction. The rain-fed thickets and the massed salaal brush reduced progress to a step-by-step struggle. He had tackled bad going before, but Roderick Island gave bushwhacking ugly new dimensions.

However, he got around as best he could, with an eye peeled for interesting outcrops.

One day while he was fighting salaal on a tangled slope, the earth dropped from under him. Falling, he snatched at the tough stems, and managed to check his plunge. There was no going down, but he managed to haul himself up over the edge of the cliff that had all but trapped him.

The tenth day came, and he waited for the fishermen to arrive. They failed to show. So next morning he launched the rowboat. Determined to put the hostile island behind him, he began the long haul to Clemtu. It wasn't long until he spotted the fishboat. He hailed it, and the Indians tok him on board.

They had been circling off the island, they explained, waiting for him to come out.

Why hadn't they put in for him?

It was plainly an awkward question. He asked another. Why, when the island offered plenty of fur, did no one run a trapline on it?

This time he got a sketchy answer. Well, Roderick was one place they'd sooner keep away from. Bad animals lived there.

But they wouldn't reveal what kind of animals, and it was only later that a wholesale fish-buyer provided enlightment.

The creatures they had in mind were Sasquatch . . . hairy red giants, which, according to Bella Bella legend, made Roderick Island their stronghold.

Tony Karup saw, sensed and heard nothing during his unrewarded stay that would lend credence to the legend. However, he wonders whether the magnetic mixup that lured him to Roderick could have contributed to the crash by affecting a low-flying plane's instruments.

A compass, which footsloggers wouldn't normally abandon, was found by RCMP searchers with other small gear a couple of miles from the plane this week.

What happened to the lost ones?

Karup saw no sign of deer on the island, but a man with a rifle might shoot the occasional blue grouse while his ammunition lasted. Maybe beaver too, if they weren't iced into their lodges, and possibly he would find coons on the beach.

But the pickings would be slim and the winter long on the Island of Bad Animals, and who can say . . .

CZECH CRAFTSMEN CHECK GLASS FOR CANADIAN HOMES

Decorative glassware from Czechoslovakia is a popular item with Canadians. In the picture at the left, a technician engraves one of a series of delicate Bohemian glass vases. The pattern is first marked on the glass, then the workman makes it permanent by cutting with a sandstone or carborundum wheel. Polishing with fine abrasives or etching with hydrofluoric acid (the only substance that will dissolve glass) restores lustre to the pattern. The centre picture shows a vase from the Prague museum which has provided inspiration for many modern goblets. It is believed to date back to 1605. At the right a master grinder in a factory in Anin in the Sumava Mountains inspects lead crystal glass.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Sharing Bad Omen

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, who is 30 years old, lives with his mother who has been a widow since he was very small. (He always has.)

What puzzles and disturbs me is the sleeping arrangement at his house. He sleeps in the same bedroom with his mother. (Twin beds, but in the same room.)

There is another bedroom in the house, but it is full of junk, and they never seem to get around to clearing it out so he can move into it.

Do you think there is something abnormal here, and if so, is there any hope for a normal husband-wife relationship with a man like this? He has many wonderful qualities, such as attentiveness, belief in God, and faithfulness. I trust him completely and know he would be a good husband, provider, and father. But I keep wondering if this relationship with his mother might later ruin our marriage.—Puzzled.

DEAR PUZZLED: The only advice I can give you with the limited information you have given me is, don't marry this man until you are sure that he can live without his mother. I would not take lightly the fact that he and mama still share the same bedroom. It's not the healthiest omen.

DEAR ABBY: Our married children are always telling us they would like a photo of mom and dad, but they don't offer to pay for it, and we have better use for our funds.

Photographers go to schools and take beautiful photographs of children for a very reasonable price. Stores offer coupons to take lovely photos of babies for as little as 99 cents. But a regular studio photo of a couple costs a fortune.

Why don't some of these photographers get smart and offer picture coupons to us senior citizens at prices we can afford to pay? It wouldn't take nearly as much time to get us posed and "smiling," as it would a baby. Then our children would have a decent likeness to show to their children and grandchildren.

To future generations, a picture of "grandma and grandpa" together after 40 or 50 years of marriage might be someting to brag about. What do you think, Abby?—Old Folks.

DEAR OLD FOLKS: I think it's a great idea, and undoubtedly so will some sharp photographers—if they haven't already thought of it. But there will be some who will think it's for the "birdies."

DEAR ABBY: How can I keep a dear little old lady in her 70s from taking my newspaper every day? She tells me she doesn't think it's a good idea for my newspaper to be outside my door because it is a "signal" to burglars that nobody's home.

Abby, I work the 3 to 11 shift, and sometimes I sleep late, but when I get up I want my newspaper to be there!

Most of the time it's gone, so I knock on my little old neighbour's door and she hands it over, telling me she's had it at her "daughter's" house, or her "brother's house, or even to a friend's house down the street.

Any suggestions!—Annoyed.

DEAR ANNOYED: Yes. Tell your little old neighbor that you appreciate her thoughtfulness, but in the future you'll take your chances with the "burglars," so please leave your newspaper alone.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what you think of a 23-year-old married woman getting braces put on her teeth!

My husband says it's up to me, but he doesn't thing I need them. My parents think I am crazy. Please don't laugh, but do you think it would interfere with my kissing? If it would, I'd have to forget it, because I don't want anything to harm my happy marriage.

Abby, I have always wanted my teeth straightened, so please give me your best advice.

The dentist says I will have to wear braces for about a year and a half if I decide to have them.—J.J.

DEAR J.J.: If you want your teeth straightened, and it can be done, by all means do it. I doubt whether it will "interfere" with your kissing sufficiently to "harm" your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: You gave some good reasons why a man, if given a choice, prefers to date a divorcee over a widow. But you forgot one of the most important.

When a man takes a widow out, she usually spends the entire evening telling him what a great guy her husband was. But when a man takes out a divorcee, she's not about to rave about what a great guy her ex-husand was because if he had been all that great, she'd still be married to him—Lenny.

DEAR ABBY: I don't see what the controversy over sex education in the schools is all about. It's the parents who need the education, not the children. After all, it's the parents who are always asking, "Is that a boy or a girl? I can't tell the difference."—Salli.

Confidential to Worried Sick in Kansas City: I cannot guarantee that psychiatric treatment will change him. But it could help him to understand his problem. Accept it, and learn to live with it.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get if off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Among the live guests at the dinner marking the 200th anniversary of the opening of Madame Tussaud's Waxwork Museum in London was Baroness Spencer Churchill, widow of Sir Winston Churchill. Here she chats with Admiral of the Fleet, Earl Mountbatten of Burma. (AP Wirephoto)

Famous Figures of Past At 200th Birthday Party

LONDON (AP) — Madame Tussaud's wax museum celebrated its 200th birthday Thursday night at a gala dinner in the grand hall attended by 350 world famous guests. Half of them were alive.

Speaking for those enshrined in wax, Earl Mountbatten looked at his effigy across the room, identical down to the 10 rows of ribbons, and deplored how much hair he had lost since he was portrayed by the wax works 25 years ago.

Behind him on the dais, robust in freshly rouged wax, stood President Nixon, astronaut John Glenn in ghostly conversation with deceased Russian cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, Egypt's President Nasser peeking over the shoulder of Jordan's King Hussein, Fidel Castro in freshly laundered fatigues; Winston Churchill, cigar at the ready, leaning over his easel.

At the banquet tables were the living versions of Home Secretary James Callaghan, jockey Lester Pigott, recently knighted actor Kenneth More, Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe, Earl and Countess Longford, model Penelope Tree and a number of others with an artificial alter ego somewhere about the hall.

The famous waxworks had hit upon the idea of having as guests of honor at its birthday party anyone present in effigy in its halls.

On a shelf was the head of Canada's John Diefenbaker.

Policewomen Granted Equal Pay

CALGARY (CP) — The police commission has granted wage parity to the city's four policewomen.

But the commission decided the women will have to work as long as the men to earn the money.

Policewomen had been paid 7.6 per cent less than male members of the force but had worked 3½ hours less over a two-week period.

The commission was told that only policewomen in Windsor, Ont., had been worse off than those in Calgary, receiving 16 per cent less than the men. Seventeen policewomen in Edmonton have had wage parity for some time.

Police chief M. J. Kent said one reason for the difference in wages was that policewomen were primarily involved in the less dangerous areas of juvenile, fraud and morality offences.

But things had changed, with the city's policewomen integrated into the patrol division and performing a greater variety of duties.

CAC Presents Brief To Senate Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers Association of Canada would like to keep a critical eye on the quality of news in the same way that it watches standards in garments and soap, the special Senate committee on mass media was told Friday.

However, CAC representatives added, the organization lacks the necessary funds and personnel for continuing research to see whether Canadians are getting their money's worth from newspapers, radio and television.

Meantime, the right of consumer groups to initiate articles and programs should be recognized. Failing that, a press council should be set up to watch media standards, its members appointed by government.

LACKS STAFF

Senator Keith Davel (L—Ontario), committee chairman, said he had the impression that the association has been preoccupied with foods, drugs and textiles. Would the group not consider news at least as important a consumer product?

Frances Balls of Ottawa agreed, but said the association lacks the necessary research staff. Mrs. W. A. Brechin of Toronto said the association would like to study services, including news, but so far had lacked funds and personnel.

SEEK PROTECTION

The questions were prompted by a statement in the CAC's written submission that exponents of the consumer viewpoint in the media should be protected from "unfair reprisal from advertisers, government or its agencies or other interests which may be unduly sensitive to honest and forthright comment."

Asked for examples, Mrs. Balls said the CAC's Hamilton branch had cited a case in the last few weeks in which the local credit bureau had asked The Spectator not to publish contents of a CAC comment on credit reporting agencies. The report was not published.

She said the credit bureau had said the criticisms in the CAC report did not apply to it.

URGE CONTROLS

The CAC also urged legislative controls on monopoly, multiple ownership and foreign control in Canadian mass media.

In a brief to the special Senate committee on mass media, the 23-year-old organization for consumers said the legislation is required to prevent limitation of consumer access to information and ideas.

The association said it is concerned about cities which have only one newspaper and about single ownership of two or more media outlets in a single city.

"Multiple ownership of mass media throughout the nation presents the same threat on a national scale."

POTENTIAL DANGER

Media owners denied existence of censorship or manipulation of editorial functions, but there were potential dangers because of monopoly and multiple ownership.

The association also was concerned about majority financial control of mass media falling into foreign hands. Stringent curbs were needed to prevent loss of national autonomy and identity.

Also sought, although not through legislative action, was the right of consumer groups to initiate programs and articles in mass media.

They May Look As If They're Just Staring . . .

NEW YORK — A unique children's television program, which shamelessly borrows the techniques of commercial sponsors and uses them to educate, is having a profound effect upon some five million children of pre-school age.

The hour-long show, which is seen five days a week on some 200 stations including Channel 9, has rapidly become one of the most talked-about television series in years. Mothers and teachers enthuse about it; even the critics are unanimous in their praise.

Entitled Sesame Street, the program is watched in some two million homes, plus a number of day care centres, by courtesy of the Ford and Carnegie Foundations and the U.S. government. After a long period of research, the plan for Sesame Street was drawn up by capitalising upon what was already known about the worst effects of television upon small children.

NOT ZOMBIES

It was known, for example, that before the average child reaches the age of six he has watched 4,000 hours of television, often at the rate of 30 hours a week.

It was known that all young children absorb an amazing amount of what they see on the screen, even though they may seem to be sitting in front of it like zombies. At best they can recognise, from watching TV commercials, the different packages of detergent and cookies in the local supermarket long before they can read the words.

At worst they have personally witnessed, with increasing indifference, hundreds of acts of crime and violence.

All this has long been documented by child psychologists. But what had never been tried until three months ago, when Sesame Street started, was to teach children something worth while by using the most appealing television techniques.

AIMED AT SLUMS

Primarily, the program was aimed at the children who watch the most television and who have the least opportunity for learning — the preschoolers from age three to six who live in city slums.

These are the children whose early years pass by without having heard coherent speech, without being read a book or having anything explained. They start school at a dreadful disadvantage and with every year the educational gap between them and the children from more literate homes widens, often irrevocably. The aim of Sesame Street was to help close that gap.

Researchers found that 90 per cent of American homes, including the poorest ones, have television sets. They found that what appeals most to children on TV are quick changes of scene, plenty of action and frequent repetition of catchy jingles — the ingredients of most successful commercials. So in Sesame Street, which has no real commercials, they provided a number of "station breaks" in every program.

Typically, one of these breaks begins with the announcement — just like a real commercial — that "this part of the program is brought to you by the letter W," followed by a slick pictorial explanation of what the letter W looks like and stands for.

Each program opens in the setting of a racially-integrated tenement street, reminiscent of East Harlem. The regular characters, who introduce various sections of the program, include a Negro couple, a storekeeper, children of various colors and several fanciful animals and puppets.

Surprisingly, this background is accepted without comment by middle and upper-class white children, who may never have known a Negro or seen a slum but whose parents form the most enthusiastic body of supporters of Sesame Street.

IMPROVE MINDS

A considerable amount of soft sell teaching goes into every program — to the extent that a recent survey showed a marked improvement in general knowledge and vocabulary among the children who had been consistently watching Sesame Street for several weeks.

Researchers also discovered that although the program is aimed at three to six-year-olds, children as young as two have been getting a lot out of it. They also found plenty of evidence to disprove the theory that little children cannot concentrate on any thing for long. Most children who watch Sesame Street have been sitting absorbed by the program for an uninterrupted hour every day.

Well known personalities have freely given their services to the show.

Mahalia Jackson sang a spiritual. Ethel Kennedy sat on the steps of one of Sesame Street's tenement houses and read the story of Sam, a little black boy who could not do anything right.

JUST RESIDENTS

There was no fanfare about their appearance. To the children who watched, they were simply additional characters who live on Sesame Street.

The current series, which ends this Spring, was intended to be experimental. But already it has proved such a success that additional grants are bound to be forthcoming to continue and expand it. In the great wasteland of American television, Sesame Street superbly demonstrates what an influence for good TV can be — if only the commercial sponsors will let it.

. . . But They Absorb An Amazing Amount

Team of Aquanettes Joins Undersea Science Project

By RICHARD D. LYONS

WASHINGTON — Aquanettes will soon be joining aquanauts in exploiting one of the last frontiers, living and working beneath the sea.

U.S. Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel has announced that five women, including the mother of three small children, would make up one of 17 teams of divers who will live for up to 30 days at depths as great as 100 feet beneath the Caribbean.

The women, four scientists and an engineer, will spend 14 days in July in a habitat moored in Beehive Cove off the southern coast of St. John in the Virgin Islands. They will study fish and plants in the area, swimming out hundreds of feet laterally, but not going to the surface.

Hickel also said at a news conference that another team would be made up of five foreign aquanauts, although the men and the countries they will represent have as yet to be selected. Hickel said the State Department had sent an invitation to the Soviet Union to send observers to take part in what is known as the Tektite 2 project, but that Moscow had not yet replied.

The Soviet Union, which was first to orbit a woman in space, Capt. Valentina Tereshkova Nikolayev, conducted underwater studies in the Baltic Sea last year shortly after the end of the Tektite 1 project in the Caribbean.

The new project, which will start April 1 and last for seven months, will make use of the habitat, or underwater living quarters of the first project, as well as a minitat. This is a smaller underwater shelter in which two aquanauts will spend as long as two weeks living at a depth of 100 feet.

The Tektite projects are aimed at finding out how well man can adapt to life and work beneath the sea. Scientists have long proposed that the continental shelf, that is the ocean floor no more than 600 feet deep of which the United States controls several million square miles, be exploited for food, minerals and oil.

Dr. Sylvia Early Mead, a 34-year-old research fellow at the Farlow Herbarium of Harvard University, said she had been diving for half her life and has spent more than 1,000 hours underwater, including expeditions to the Indian Ocean and the southwest Pacific. An algologist, or specialist in the study of algae, Dr. Mead will study the plants on the ocean floor and what fish eat which plants.

Married to Dr. Giles Mead, the curator of fishes at Harvard, Dr. Mead has three children, including an 18-month-old daughter, who will be staying with relatives in Florida while their mother is living beneath the sea.

Dr. Renate Schlenz True, who is 33, is another member of the aquanette team who is married to an aquanaut, Dr. Merrill True. Both are on the faculty of Tulane University in New Orleans. Dr. True has had six years of diving experience, including work with Dr. Jacques Yves Cousteau, the French underwater explorer. She will study organisms that live on the bottom of the ocean.

Miss Margaret Ann Lucas, 22, is the only engineer in the group. She is taking graduate work in ocean engineering at the University of Delaware. Her main job will be to keep the habitat and its life support systems operating properly.

Project Tektite officials announced the names of two other women who had tentatively been selected to complete the crew — Mrs. Ann Hartline and Alina N. Szmant, both graduate students at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography in La Jolla, Calif.

Mrs. Hartline, who is 23, expressed surprise at her tentative selection. She said she has been diving several times a week in connection with research projects at the institution, but that she had spent only the total time of an hour at the depth of 50 feet. Mrs. Hartline said that she and Miss Szmant, who is 24, will study the behavior of reef fish and the colors, shapes and sizes of other fish that the reef fish fear.

Gold Cord Presented To Salvation Army Guide

Jean Harrison of the 17th Guide Company, Salvation Army, received her gold cord recently.

Making the presentation was Jean Reading who has been Guide captain of the 17th company for over 27 years.

Following the presentation Major C. Smith, commanding officer of the Esquimalt Salvation Army Corps, paid tribute to Miss Reading for her years of service.

He also mentioned Dora Stocker, another guest at the ceremony who was district commissioner in Victoria West when the guide company was formed. Major C. J. Ivany also spoke.

Papa Pulls a Fast One With 'Family' of 60

By NESTA ROBERTS

PARIS — "Increase and multiply" is a precept that has the approval of the French Government as well as of the Holy Writ. Few Frenchmen can have acted upon it as zealously as Antonio Gikmenez Moreno, born in Barcelona, but frequently domiciled in France. He has declared himself the father of 60 children and collected family allowances for all of them.

His system had a dazzling simplicity. Several years ago, Moreno presented himself at a number of town halls in Corsica and the south of France, saying he was a refugee from Algeria who had lost all his papers in the upheaval of the revolution there.

Six here, half a dozen there, he soon collected the appropriate documents for a family of 60. Presenting the documents at various welfare offices, he pocketed the cash to which they entitled him.

Whenever an unusually curious authority tried to find out whether the Moreno children were attending the local school, their "father" borrowed some youngsters from various relatives and sent them along.

Soon the tribe learned to follow the example of its chief until retribution came in the form of the Spanish police —who found Moreno's real, and much smaller family living in sumptuous style near Barcelona, with five cars and an elegant villa — the family had declared 3,000 children to the authorities in France, Spain and Algeria.

From the French social security system alone, they had collected over $600,000.

Hospital Auxiliary Plans Sherry Party

The Women's Auxiliary to the Veteran's Hospital will hold their annual coffee-sherry party and membership drive Wednesday from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. E. D. Alcorn, 2620 Landsdowne Road. Home-cooked items will be on sale.

As well as giving the Auxiliary a chance to raise money for patient comforts, the sherry party, which is open to the public, gives those interested in joining the organization a chance to meet members and learn more about the Auxiliary's projects.

As well as supplying equipment and patient comforts for the hospital, the Auxiliary members arrange a monthly birthday party for Class 29 patients, visit patients, arrange for the bus that takes patients to outside activities, and staff a library which provides reading material for patients.

Currently the library is in need of members willing to spend 1½ hours each week taking books around to the patients.

Membership in the Auxiliary is open to all interested women, particularly wives of Second World War veterans.

Short Hair Essential With Long Skirts

By ANGELA TAYLOR

NEW YORK — If there is anybody left who is quibbling about the advent of long skirts, it's not the hairdressers. To them, the long hemline is a fait accompli—or at least will be by summer.

After a professional look at the calf-covering hemline the group known as Intercoiffure has come out with an unequivocal "off with their heads!" meaning short, neat hair close to the head and none of those overblown confections so dear to the men behind the teasing combs.

With a firmness and logic that was refreshing in any group of hair stylists, Intercoiffure took a stand.

The day of the long mane is over," announced R. Keith, the New York stylist who acted as commentator for the spring and summer collection shown at the Pierre Hotel recently. "You just don't wear long hair with long skirts."

Keith also came out against the hairdressers' favorite crutches: teasing and elaborate hairpieces. And although he didn't actually say so, the hairdos displayed seemed also to have outlawed rollers — at least the big ones.

Despite, or perhaps because of, the various taboos, the resulting hair styles are both pretty and practical. They are not a return to little-boy crops, but to the finger waves of the 1930's. Hair is rarely beyond chin-length, but undulated close to the head, giving that wide-eyed femininity recalling those endearing, not overly bright blondes who used to tap dance in the Busby Berkeley musicals.

Within the limitations of short hair and no teasing, the 15 hairdressers who showed their art managed enough variations to please any number of women. The finger wave effect sometimes swirled toward the cheeks, or it produced bangs, or short page boys in back. Sometimes the back was pulled into a short pony tail or chignon or peruke. The "Napoleonic" hairdo that's been around for the past two years was less wispy than it has been — the sides and back are thicker and more controlled.

Hair was often left longer at the back than the sides, and when it was not curled under, it was swept to one side or cut into a triangular effect low down the nape. For evening, a few discreet hair pieces, mostly perukes, were added, plus hair jewelry.

Along with everything else, Keith gives the coup-de-grace to the washer-woman's pompadour, barely a year old and so dear to the hearts of charity-ball goers.

"It makes a woman look like her own grandmother," he announced, and got a few more "amens."

Bias By The Yard

If you wish to trim a sweater or dress or jacket with bias in the manner of David Goodstein, famous for his wonderful classics, you'll need yards and yards of bias strips or binding.

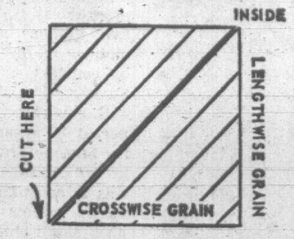
Here's a quick and easy way to get lots of bias binding from a minimum amount of fabric. Using this method a single yard of 36 inches wide fabric will yield approximately 24 yards of 1½ inches wide bias in a continuous strip. Hard to believe? Try it and see.

Cut a square of fabric as long as it is wide.

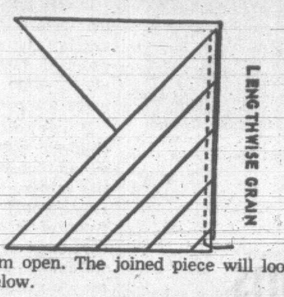
On the wrong side of fabric, mark diagonally through center on true bias.

Mark each side of center, desired width of bias strips, continuing to ends.

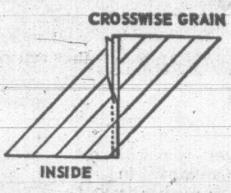
Cut diagonally in half on true bias as shown. You'll have two equal triangular sections.



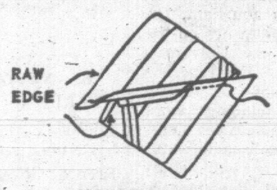
With right sides together, join together on lengthwise grain, matching lines on seam line.



Press seam open. The joined piece will look like the illustration below.

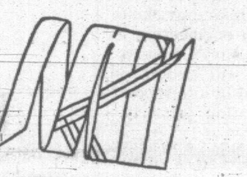


Now, with right sides together, bring the two crosswise grains together. Shift the cut bias edge at sides over to meet first marked line as shown below. Stitch crosswise seam forming a tube. Please notice that the raw side edges of tube do not meet. Press seam open.



JOIN ON CROSSWISE GRAIN

Start cutting from extending end and cut continuously along marked lines, forming one long coninuous strip of binding.



CUT CONTINUOUSLY

Too Many Rocks Fill Her Basement

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Dorothy Hays has to get the rocks out of her basement — 4,030 of them.

She says she'll sell some, give some away, keep a few and start working with smaller rocks. She's reluctant to do it, but after all, how many 20-pound rocks can you keep in a housetrailer?

Mrs. Hays is one of the foremost amateur minerologists in the United States.

Her neat, bright basement workroom houses the collection she has built up during nearly half a century. Its white showcases display the pyrites, jades and geodes about which Mrs. Hays speaks with knowledge acquired over the years.

She is 57, looks several years younger and is married to a successful businessman who is a ham radio bug.

Mr. and Mrs. Hays are soon to leave for Florida, retirement and a new mobile home. The move will mean that Mrs. Hays will have to scale down her hobby drastically. She won't have room for her collection as she does in her present spacious home

But much more than enjoyment has come out of the hobby of the lady without a college degree.

Representatives of the Smithsonian Institution recently expressed interest in her collection.

And a rock-hunting trip to Canada a few years back gave Mrs. Hays a chance to do something that the geologists for a major mining company had tried and failed.

"We were just poking around an old dump for useless rocks brought up from tunnel mines and I found this," she said, pointing out grey rock speckled with what looked like — and was gold."

But commercial aspects of her interest aren't what catches Mrs. Hays' fancy. "I started when I was seven or eight and I've always been more interested in the science aspect of it."

Her scientific interest brought her a four-year stint, 1962-66, analysing the atomic structure of minerals for the Iowa Highway Commission.

Designers Discover Juniors Get Older

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Only a few years ago, fashion manufacturers were eagerly climbing on the junior bandwagon. Now, as we move into the Seventies, some of the top junior design talent is reversing gears and moving back into the misses' field.

The reason is simple: that teen and early 20s population will be older in the next ten years, and the big population bulge of the Seventies will be in the late 20s and early 30s group

Not that the designers intend to go back to the "dumb" look for misses' clothes which once gave this size range such a bad name. They think that the fashion winds of the Sixties will mean a new kind of young misses' market which will be looking for the fashion emphasis it has grown up with.

There are other reasons, of course, for renewed interest in the misses' size range. Although fashion-oriented, the late 20s and early 30s crowd is less fickle than when they were younger, so the lure of more stability is there. Also, they have more money. Designers of junior fashions are always limited by the short purses of junior customers, and many would now like to get into better quality designing.

WINE 'GOUGERS' SOUR INQUIRY

The full wrath of the liquor inquiry commission was turned on wine price "gougers."

The commission recommends the Liquor Control Board take steps to control those "who through high markups deny many people the experience of gracious eating and drinking habits."

Markups on wine of 100 to 300 per cent in Vancouver and Victoria dining establishments were referred to as "reprehensible" and "discriminatory."

"We believe the public would hold your commissioners 'in flagrante delicto' if we did not comment upon the gouging of the consumer in the high markup of wines both by the Liquor Control Board and dining room licensees," the report says.

There may be "some justification" for LCB prices but the dining establishments should be controlled.

People of average income are being denied the "pleasure of celebrating anniversaries or other happy events by dining out and having the meal enhanced by a good wine and thus (there is) discrimination between the families of modest income and those of affluent heritage."

B.C. wine should be available in carafes of 8 and 12 ounces in dining rooms and the practice of serving imported wines in modestly-priced glasses should be extended, the report said.

In addition, an end to the ban on people carrying partly filled bottles in public would help people who are served a bottle of wine near closing time and then are neither allowed to finish it nor take it with them.

The report also calls for wine counsellors in liquor stores, charts to show the sweetness of wines, and an agent in Europe to buy the best lines for B.C. wine drinkers.

Sharp Rebuke Levelled at LCB Rules, Practises

The liquor inquiry commission has coupled a sharp rebuke of Liquor Control Board "discourtesy" with a call for a three-man board and a right of appeal from its decisions.

The report of the inquiry notes that there is currently provision for a three-man board but that it has been ruled for years by a one-man board (Col. Donald McGugan, now retired, was replaced by acting chairman William Bruce).

The current ban on appeals from the board's decisions should be removed because "we believe this to be a dangerous doctrine and it runs contrary to all sense of decency and justice.

"It cannot be justified in any country that prides itself on giving its citizens access to our courts at all . . . times."

The report also calls for the board to make public announcements of hearings so that other than people "who happen to be in the (board's) office at the time are aware of the hearing."

Hearings should be held in public places—in Victoria, for instance, at the courthouse.

The commission takes a firm tone on the need for change in the liquor board.

"Considerable criticism has been levelled at the Liquor Control Board, both at the administration level and at those employed in liquor stores.

"The attitude of the administrative staff of the LCB in the past seemed to reflect the philosophy of the government which was, and is, control and regulation.

"The uncompromising attitude of the board has resulted in an abrupt and rigid attitude in their dealings with most persons doing business with the board, in writing or in personal contact.

"Employees have been severely criticized for failing to assist the public with their purchases by refusing information or counselling to prospective purchasers . . .

"It is the opinion of the commissioners that the philosophy must change from control and regulation to one of public service, the public service to include as its primary ingredient courtesy to the public.

Retraining for employees at the board's expense should be undertaken to improve service and salary scales adjusted to fit the new qualifications, the report said.

Among other changes for the board were:

- Salaries for board members as well as employees to be commensurate with those for similar responsibilities in private industry.
- The "warehouse' type of liquor outlet to be gradually phased out in favor of self-service stores.
- Establishment of a special order department to facilitate special liquor orders, with forms to be made available in every liquor store.
- Shelf space in liquor stores to bear "some reasonable relationship" to volume of sales.
- Price lists to be printed in greater volume and reprinted more than the current twice a year.
- Co-operation with municipal authorities on location of new outlets to avoid traffic and other problems.
- An end to the present system of requiring a new hotel proprietor to build one that has at least one room more than other hotels in the area to qualify for a licence, with board discretion substituted instead on the need for a new licence.
- Centres licensed by municipalities to have annual permits to serve liquor.
- The board to seek uniformity in liquor sale and distribution matters across Canada.
- Duty-free liquor stores to be set up by the board at international airports to sell tax-free liquor to people leaving the country, as a means of making Canadian alcoholic beverages better known around the world.
- Licencees to have the privilege of selling cases of beer, and liquor and wines in bottles at a maximum markup of $1 during their regular hours of sale.
- Unsolicited gifts to B.C. residents be released at "landed costs" rather than being marked up to LCB prices.

Regulations 'Onerous, Repulsive'

The B.C. Liquor Inquiry Commission is "confident the provincial government will wish to implement our recommendations, based as they are in the 'public interest' and on the overwhelming evidence we received."

This view is expressed in the preface to the commission's report submitted Friday to the provincial government.

It describes the report as striking a middle course between extreme views favoring prohibition of alcohol on the one hand and a total end to regulation on the other.

'FEWER THE BETTER'

"The commission's view at this time is that many of the restrictive regulations promulgated over the years have been onerous and repulsive to many people and that if alcoholic beverages are to be allowed, the fewer restrictions surrounding their sale the better."

The commissioners recalled that liquor was regarded as an evil in 1921 when the government passed an act regulating its sale.

But as for the present, "the rigid rules, regulations and strictures now in effect, interpreted and implemented by an authoritarian board, permit only one conclusion — that the (government Liquor) Act is still dealing with a suspect product and a suspect public. . . .

NO GUILT FEELING

"The patrons of 1970 of our licensed premises have no feeling of guilt . . . they naturally wonder at such archaic practices as separate entrances for men and ladies; why they must enjoy a beverage in a cloistered atmosphere barred to public view and why even their very posture, while within, is regulated.

"Today, ease and frequency of travel overseas have introduced people to continental culture and habits of eating and drinking," the report says, noting also the influence of ethnic groups on such habits.

"Influenced by these avenues of communication, society today sees no validity in evaluating the morality of drinking wine, spirits or beer by such variables as kind of place, time of day, or day of week."

There have been tremendous changes in society not only since 1921 but also since 1953 when the Liquor act was last overhauled, the report says.

TOGETHER

In a conclusion headed "Ave Atque Vale" (Hall and Farewell) the commissioners stand together on their proposals.

"Not everyone will accept our judgments and consequent recommendations . . .

"It is in the nature of a report dealing with conflicting views that some will be preferred to others," the report said, adding that every question was ultimately resolved unanimously.

"Hence whether one accepts or rejects our recommendations, the plaudits or blame must be equally shared by each of the commissioners.

"We were very much united in our labors and ask only to be one in honor or dishonor."

Alcoholics Need 'Crash Program'

By VIC PARSONS

A co-ordinator with responsibility for a crash program of alcoholism prevention, education, treatment and rehabilitation was urgently recommended by the liquor inquiry report tabled Friday in the legislature.

The report's authors say the co-ordinator or "catalyst" should be a person of ministerial rank with authority to organize such a program and also to provide funds to implement necessary projects.

The commissioners refer to "the tremendous potential for good" available in the ranks of organizations interested in the problems of alcoholism.

'FRUSTRATING FAILURES'

"Surely there is little need to spell out the frustrating failures of these groups, of civic and provincial efforts and of society at large to combat alcoholism due the simple fact that they have no chief commander."

Everyone talks about the degradation, the social cost, personal penalties, broken hearts and homes, shattered wills and damaged minds, the report says, but little is done because there is no leadership and guidance.

The commissioners say highest priority should be given to the proposed detoxication centre in Vancouver, and also to a provincially-operated clinic staffed by full-time professionals.

The clinic should provide service to referral centres, halfway houses, and to all chronic alcoholics who voluntarily seek solutions to their problems.

YOUTH PROGRAM

Another priority, says the report, should be the evolution of a preventative educational program geared mainly for youth in primary and secondary schools.

Material from the Alcohol Foundation, the Education and Research Council, the Women's Christian Temperance Union, the beverage and liquor industry, and other sources could be used in the program under the ministerial "catalyst" the report suggests.

Everyone of every age group, the commissioners state, including imbibers and abstainers, agree that excessive consumption of alcohol is "totally unacceptable" to modern society.

'WORTHY VOICE'

"With this unanimity it should be possible under government leadership to harness a tremendous potential present in temperance unions and moderate drinkers . . . to alleviate the tragedy of alcoholism.

The commissioners predict that the recommendations on alcoholism might be seen by many as "the most important contribution" of the report.

The report praises the vigorous temperance efforts of Mrs. H. S. Rogers, "whose resolute and worthy voice was heard at almost every session throughout the province."

Mrs. Rogers is described as "chief protagonist" for the WCTU and a "doughty champion" whose "in-depth study and knowledge of the dangers and evils of alcohol was reflected in her challenging addresses on numerous occasions."

"If at times her words fell upon stony soil, her sincerity and zeal won the expressed esteem and admiration of all, even the representatives of the vested interests."

Gift Giving Deplored

An investigation by the attorney-general's department into gifts to Liquor Control Board employees by Ben Ginter's Tartan Breweries was recommended by the liquor inquiry commission.

The commission "deplores" the gifts, given last Christmas by the Prince George brewer's firm after the LCB had issued a memorandum banning such gifts.

The order had been issued following questioning by Ginter at commission hearings which revealed the practice was a common one.

"Mr. Ginter knew of the situation . . . and yet in spite of this, much to our amazement, instructed his company to send out gift certificates . . ."

Ginter, who played a prominent role as a witness at the commission hearings, got some support for his complaints that the liquor board required him to sell canned beer at a higher price than he wished.

Let Drinking Be Done In Public View: Report

With surprisingly little comment, the liquor inquiry commission recommended that civilized drinking be allowed in public places and that licensed dining premises serve liquor on Sunday.

Sidewalk cafes, beaches, patios and sporting events would become acceptable drinking places providing orderly conduct was maintained.

"Present legislation makes it an offence to consume liquor in a public place. We believe that such a practice no longer offends and that such legislation should be repealed.

"We should make it clear, however, that we do not condone or encourage any kind of drinking in a public place in such a way as would be offensive to reasonable persons . . .

"We believe that being exposed to public view while drinking encourages moderation and better conduct," the report says.

The criminal code or other legislation could be invoked to handle people who create a nuisance while drinking publicly, the commissioners suggest.

There was also virtually no discussion of a recommendation to allow licensed dining premises to sell liquor on Sundays between noon and 11 p.m.

The recommendations result from "the evidence and wishes of the people gleaned from briefs and letters" received by the commission.

Liquor stores should remain closed on Sundays and holidays but conventions and current restrictions.

Sunday liquor, the report says, noting many conventions are lost to B.C. because of current restrictions

Control Bay Rum

The liquor inquiry commission recommends a change in the definition of liquor to bring Bay Rum under the control of the Liquor Control Board.

"There is a large trade in this very shoddy product," the inquiry report states. "It sells for 35 cents for four ounces and apparently contains a greater amount of alcohol than an equivalent amount of whisky and further it provides a longer hangover than whisky.

"From what the commission heard, people who drink it prefer it to whisky for this reason."

A change in the definition of liquor is recommended to remove the phrase "fit for human consumption" and substitute "any substance capable of being made a drinkable liquid that is intoxicating".

This would "enable authorities to clamp down" on skid road traffic in Bay Rum sold at drug stores. The Liquor Control Board has to date declined to classify it as a liquor.

Comfort, Convenience In Design

The "comfort and convenience" of customers should be the prime consideration in design of beer parlors, the liquor inquiry commission recommends.

"We see no harm in constructing a beer parlor which permits passersby seeing patrons enjoying a glass of beer.

"However we think it much more important to encourage owners to design an establishment not only functionally attractive but worthy of viewing from either inside or outside."

The commission also recommends counter service be allowed in beer parlors, particularly for people who enter to have a drink alone.

It said the practice of serving no more than two glasses of beer at a time to a customer should continue but recommended that waiters be prohibited from pressure-selling. They should wait until patrons aks for more beer and the liquor board should issue such a directive, the commission said.

Neighborhood Pubs Seen As Answer

English-style neighborhood pubs might in future serve the public of B.C. if the government accepts a recommendation of the liquor inquiry commission.

But the commission report stresses "limitations would be necessary to avoid a club on every corner, and in weighing public demand and public fear 'caution' could well be the watchword."

People who live away from congessted downtown areas would appreciate a small outlet, with an owner who knows the needs of his local patrons and can cater to them, the commissioners feel.

The report says local pubs might help cut down on the number of impaired drivers as the outlets would be within walking distance of the customers' residences.

'SMALL NUMBERS'

However the commissioners refer to the opposition to local pubs by the residents of Oak Bay as an indication that neighborhood outlets should be carefully considered.

"The outlets should be introduced in small numbers and on an experimental basis; if experience shows them to be desirable community outlets, then more outlets should be considered."

The report says that licensees would have to ensure that patrons are orderly and behave properly.

The outlets should be authorized to serye beer by draught or bottle, with wines, liquor and food available. Entertainment of a community nature could also be permitted, the report adds.

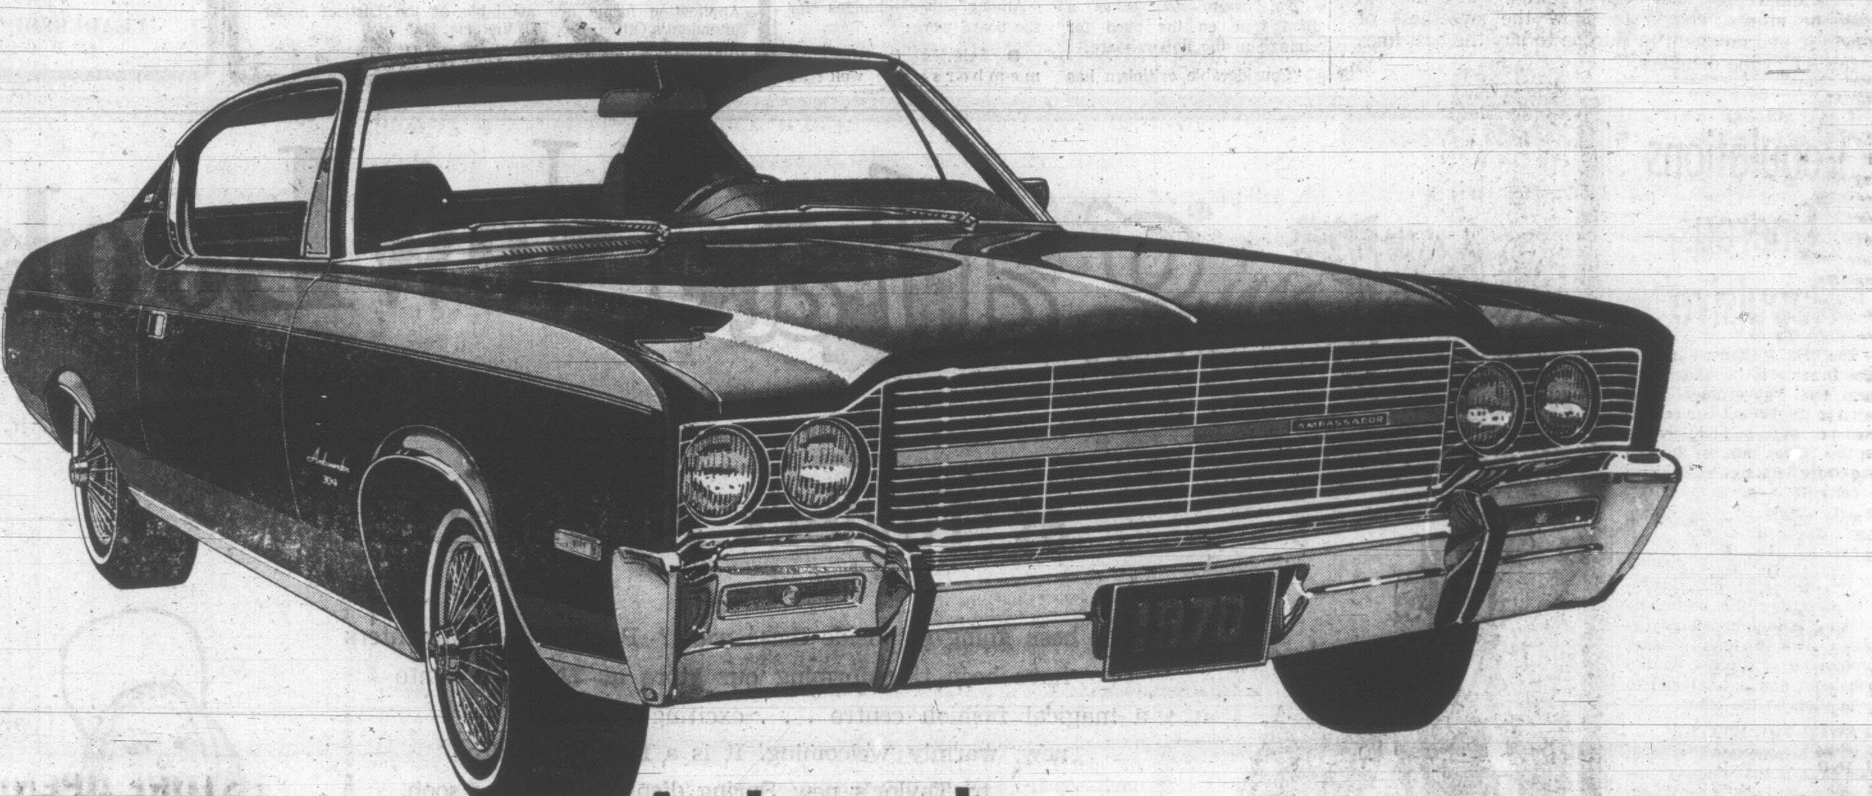
The pubs could be called "community clubs or village clubs," it is suggested, and could be authorized in areas not adequately served at present at locations arranged by the Liquor Control Board after public hearings.

The commissioners say they "see no basis for the cry of 'wolf' that has been broadcast by the Hotels Association in releation to the submission made in support of the neighborhood beer parlor."

However, they propose that they "very substantial investments" various hotels make should be protected and say they "will endeavor to ensure that these places will not interfere with gracious living in the neighborhood."

The report points out that there are 510 hotels in B.C. with an annual payroll of 32 million and a capital investment of $500 million.

"While we agree there is some merit to the main contention that a plethora of neighborhood public houses with a much smaller investment would have a great advantage over hotels with a much larger investment, it has never been our intention to make such a recommendation."



Face saver.

Ambassador. Air conditioned, low cost luxury. From $3409.

Ambassador has features as standard equipment that you've paid extra for on other cars.

AIR CONDITIONING. The real refrigerated kind that you'd pay several hundred dollars extra for in most any other car.

ADVANCED UNIT CONSTRUCTION. Body is welded to frame to form a single, solid unit. Rolls-Royce and other fine car makers build this way.

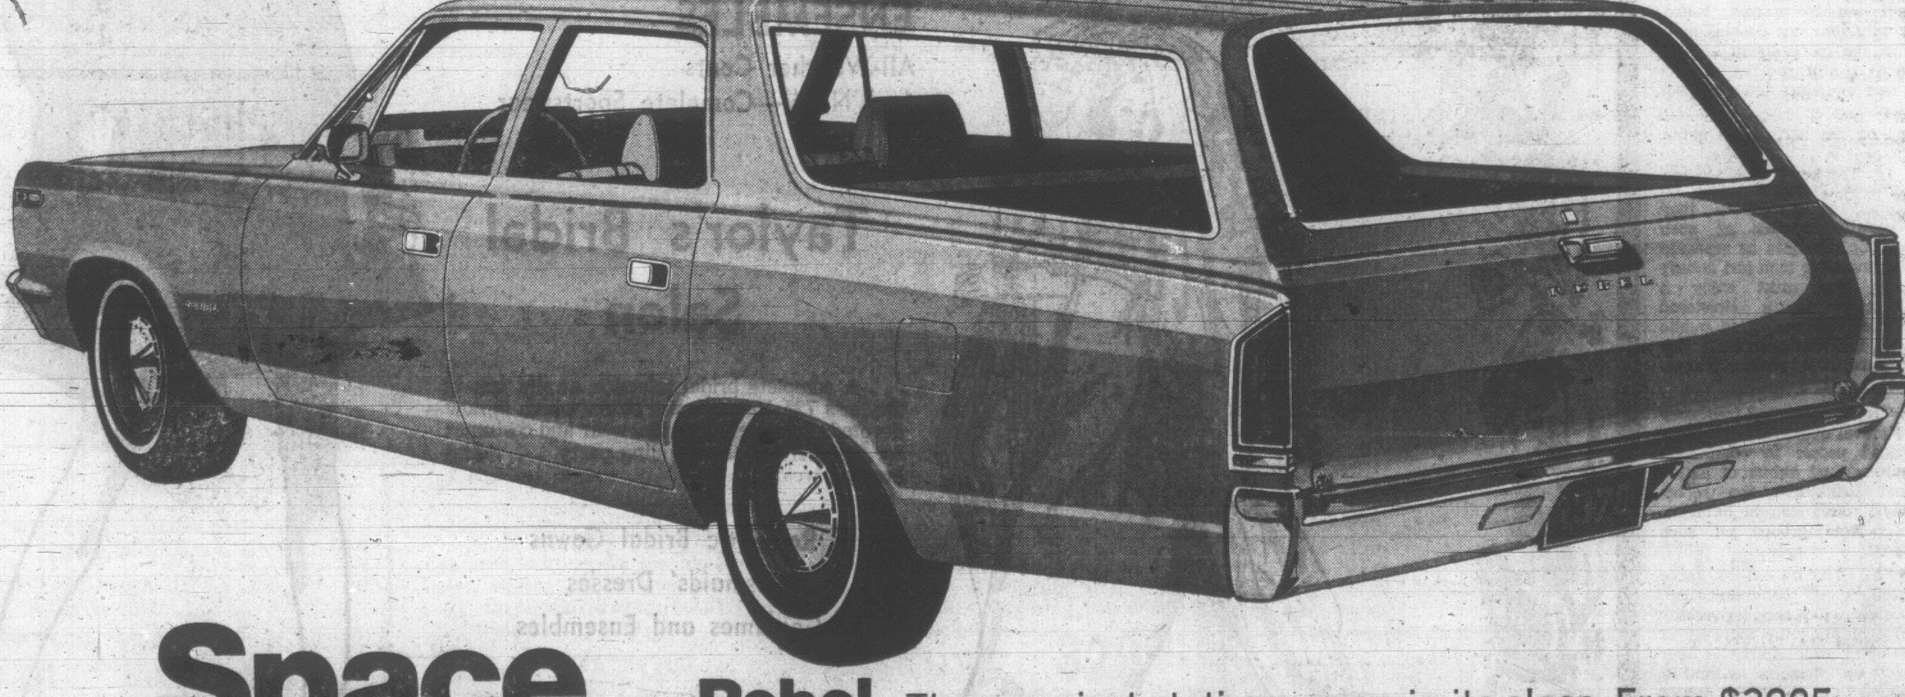
EXTRA LAYERS OF INSULATION. 60% more insulation and a fibreglass headliner to reduce road and traffic noise and increase the efficiency of the air conditioner.

FOAM CUSHIONS ON COIL SPRINGS. An extra comfort feature to reduce driver fatigue.

INTERIOR BEAUTY. The low cost Ambassador doesn't come with a sparton interior. It looks and feels rich.

DEEP DIP RUSTPROOFING. Ambassador is dipped to the roof-line in a special rustproofing solution.

Compare the price. Compare the quality. You'll find you can still afford to drive a fine automobile. Ambassador.



Space saver.

Rebel. The roomiest station wagon in its class. From $3225.

Rebel offers room, performance and reliability at a very modest cost.

ROOM. A Rebel wagon measures 198 inches over a 114 inch wheelbase. It's wider than any intermediate wagon. It has a carrying capacity of 99.12 cu. ft. Its passenger compartment is bigger than that of any intermediate.

PERFORMANCE. The standard Rebel engine is a high performance 145 hp Six. One of the bigger standard engines in its class.

RELIABILITY. Every Rebel is welded together to form a single, solid unit. This means there are no bolts to work loose and rattle. Next, the entire body is dipped in a special rustproofing solution . . . right to the roofline. Of course there are a great many other things a practical car buyer will have to know before making a final decision but a good piece of practical advice is this; drive one.

A LOOK BACK AT MALLORCA

Often the best analysts of a particular chess game are the participants themselves, and so, whenever I attend a tournament of masters, I try to line up the experts to comment on games they have just concluded. Among those at the Palma de Mallorca tourney in the closing days of 1969 was Dr. Jonathan Penrose of Great Britain.

He is a small, slight Englishman and an extremely tough opponent on his native heath—and elsewhere. He has won the English Championship ten times.

I have met him on a number of occasions before and it was a pleasure to see him again. As is his custom, this retiring, non-smoking, non-drinking player would vanish after each game, only appearing when it came time to play again.

Except for his abstinence from liquor and tobacco, he reminds me of F. D. Yates of Yorkshire, another winner of the British crown. Also small and thin, Yates could almost always be found alone at the nearest pub, a glass of ale at his elbow and a Player's cigarette between his fingers.

Here is a game from the eighth round of the Mallorcan tournament with comments by Dr. Penrose.

WHITE: Dr. Penrose,
BLACK: Milko Bobotsov, Bulgaria.

(j) Mate in three will follow.

OTHER IMPRESSIONS FROM MALLORCA, 1969

If you want to have fun, you should see (and hear)! Migule Najdorf play Tigran Petrosian five-minute chess. On mating Tigran in one game, Najdorf jumped up and exclaimed in Russian: "NAJDORF MATES PETROSIAN—headline in the New York Times and Pravda!" . . . Very few of the Grandmasters smoke. Those who do are Viktor Korchnoi, Mato Damjanovic, Milko Bobotsov, Roman Toran and Jesus Diez del Corral. Spassky smokes before or after, but never during, a game and we have learned that young Henrique Costa Mecking smokes four cigarettes a WEEK . . . when nobody is looking . . . Most masters playing in this tournament have asked how Robert Fischer makes a living . . . a difficult question to answer. All participants here are polyglots. Speaking other languages is just as important as knowing your Ruy Lopez.

The solution to the problem above is: 1.R-R1.

PERSPECTIVES AND PREJUDICES

A Note on Modern Religious Thinkers

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

A lady who reads these little pieces of mine has suggested that sometime I offer some helpful notes on a few of the more influential modern religious thinkers.

She said that her minister, a young fellow not long out of school, in his sermons frequently quotes from Karl Barth and Paul Tillich and Dietrich Bonhoeffer and Rudolf Bultmann. She says that the quotations sometimes do make a bit of sense but that she wishes she knew a little more about them.

Alas, I am not competent to present the thought of these theological giants in capsule form. But perhaps I can help the lady a little, and few other readers too, by offering a little song which came my way some time ago.

It may help establish some kind of persepective on three of the important thinkers.

This song, I am advised, is to be sung slowly and solemnly to Arthur Sullivan's tune, "Titwillow", and with apologies to William Schwenchk Gilbert.

On a tree by a river
a young theolog
Sang "Tillich, Paul Tillich, Paul Tillich!"
And I said to him, "Son,
you seem lost in a fog,
Singing 'Tillich, Paul Tillich, Paul Tillich'."
"Is it ontic confusion, young fellow?" I cried.
"or a painful wee angst in your little inside?"
With a shake of his poor little head he replied,
"Oh, Tillich, Paul Tillich, Paul Tillich!"
Then he shifted his posture and changed his refrain —
"Bonhoeffer, Bonhoeffer, Bonhoeffer!"
And 'twas sheer disillusionment spiced with disdain:
Bonhoeffer, Bonhoeffer, Bonhoeffer!
Mankind come of age,
with religion passed by.
And the Gospel proclaimed with a tear and a sigh,
As he sat on that bough
and gave his sad cry,
"Bonhoeffer, Bonhoeffer, Bonhoeffer!
Then clapped he his chest
as he sat on that bough,
Singing "Bultmann, R. Bultmann, R. Bultmann!"
And a cold consternation
bespangled his brow —
Oh Bultmann, R. Bultmann, R. Bultmann!
He gasped and he groaned and he gurgled forthwith
As with a fast slash he disposed of a myth;
And quickly he pickled its skin
and its pith —
Oh Bultmann, R. Bultmann, R. Bultmann!

But there's still Karl Barth to deal with. Here I have filched from My Irritable Friend. Not that he's an out-and-out Barthian, but he does have a bit of fun occasionally with Young Barmish who is one. (When dealing with Young B., M.I.F. always pronounces the name as it looks in English, Barth — although he does know that it should be said Bart. M.I.F. once accused Young B. of taking three of the massive volumes of Barth's Church Dogmatics with him on his honeymoon. Young B. indignantly denies this: "It was only one volume," he says.)

Anyway, M. I. F. was rather deeply moved by the last collection of Barth's sermons to be published, and as an olive branch gesture, sent on a postcard to Young B. this delicate bit of verse:

There was a theologian named Barth
Whose writtings seemed lacking in harth;
But his latest effusion
Demands the conclusion
That he was only acting a parth.

And if you've any questions about all this, don't ask me — ask your minister.

MORMON DOCTRINES TO STAY UNCHANGED

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (Reuters) — The newly-elected president of the Mormon Church, 93-year-old Joseph Fielding Smith, says of it: "It's bound to grow. Eventually it will fill the earth."

Officially titled the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, the Mormon Church says it has 2,800,000 members on its worldwide rolls.

Under its new president, whose great-uncle was the founder, Joseph Smith, it seems unlikely to embark on any changes in the basic doctrines and beliefs laid down in the 1830s, although its most famous tenet, polygamy, has not been officially practised since 1890.

In particular, no change is expected in the Mormon attitude toward Negroes, despite allegations that this smacks of discrimination.

Protestant Clergy Quietly Quitting

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Quietly and generally unheeded, Protestant clergymen in the United States, like their Roman Catholic counterparts, are leaving the ministerial profession at an accelerating rate.

Although the growing exodus has been little noted and is not considered to be up as sharply as in Roman Catholicism, where departures of priests have stirred open anxieties, Protestantism now is sensing a similar drain of manpower.

It reflects what many term a "moral crisis" among ministers.

Recent findings indicate "serious trouble in the church system," says Rev. Howard E. Spragg, executive vice-president of the Board of Homeland Ministries of the United Church of Christ.

As one ex-Presbyterian clergyman puts it: "We are rebelling against the snubbing and guilt-producing strictures of the traditional congregation, against systems that restrict us from what we feel we should be and do."

Statistical projections suggest that at least 3,000 Protestant clergymen annually in the last two years have left the ministry, about one per cent, compared with estimates of Roman Catholic clergy withdrawals of up to 2,500 a year, about four per cent.

Rev. Gerald J. Jud, a United Churchman, who directed a study into the problem, says men still in the ministry express dissatisfactions similar to those who have quit.

"The greatest significance of this study may not be in consideration of those who have already left the pastorate, but rather in the question of how many are thinking of leaving," he adds.

A new two-year study, entitled Ex-Pastors: Why Men Leave the Parish Ministry, published by the United Church, summarizes attitudes found among 370 clergymen who have turned to secular jobs, along with comparative views of 276 men still in the ministry.

It finds that marital stability prevails more generally among those who stick to the ministry than among those who leave, a sidelight on the reason often cited for the Roman Catholic clergy defections—the rule of celibacy.

Salvation Army Plans Convention

The Salvation Army will hold an Easter Holiness convention in the Empress Hotel from Friday, March 27, until Monday, March 30.

Theme of the convention will be I Was There.

Speakers will include Lt.-Col. Thomas Elwood, Major Margaret Green and Capt. Bramwell Tillsley.

Six officer cadets from the army's training college for officers in Toronto will participate. Delegates are expected from as far away as Calgary, from various parts of the United States and from most Vancouver Island communities.

Economy Hovercraft Made by Canadians

By PAT DUFOUR

Those who visit the Vancouver boat show on its final day, Sunday, should make a point of seeing the first Canadian-made hovercraft to come west on exhibition.

Before you say it's too rich for my blood, the Hoverover is not in the millionaire bracket although the Shah of Iran ordered the first one to come off the assembly line six months ago.

These machines are made in Ottawa and the cost, still above the reach of most of us, will seem like a bargain to businessmen anxious to island hop on the weekend or reach inaccessible spots for hunting.

The F.O.B. cost at Ottawa is $3,995.

The two-seater, a true air-cushion vehicle, will climb grades and fly into areas impossible to reach by boat or wheels.

She's powered by three dependable two stroke air-cooled engines. Two of these, housed at the rear, are geared for forward thrust while the third, mounted inside the front of the craft, powers two centrifugal fully protected "lift" fans, providing the 14 to 16-inch air cushions on which the craft travels.

She'll fly up to speeds of 40 miles per hour on land and 35 miles per hour over water. She's capable of climbing lengthy 20 per cent grades as well as 30 per cent grades as found on river banks.

The days of a hovercraft in every garage may still be a long way off but this little machine may have brought them a great deal closer.

There's nothing like carrying your own transportation with you and that's exactly what you'll be able to do with one of the Go-Devils featured for the first time at the show.

Weighing 69 pounds, these full-size folding scooters can be folded and packed in their own carrying cases in two minutes.

These are ideal to be carried aboard a boat. They're also bound to appeal to those who prefer travelling by camper, trailer or by private plane.

The two-cycle motor will whizz you along at 25 miles per hour and is surprisingly economical, giving 150 miles per gallon.

Talking of things that can be packed in small packages, it might be smart to take a look at the novel line of inflatable furniture, made in Italy.

Slightly reminiscent of those early science fiction movies, this line comes in a variety of colors and shapes.

There's a chesterfield that sells for $56, chairs that range from $9.50 to $32, square and round hassocks, and a table priced at $17.25.

I tried sitting in one chair and, although the transparency made me feel I was in the plexiglass nose of a plane, it was so comfortable I almost gave up the idea of taking in the rest of the show!

What happens if you're a careless smoker?

I'm not too sure, but each piece comes with its own emergency patch kit.

And, if you're tightening the money belt in this pre-income tax returns time you'll still be able to afford a handy little gadget offered by the North Vancouver firm of Canmark Enterprises Ltd.

Selling for $3, it's a lighter-size alarm device which is good for 20 shrieks when you find yourself in distress at sea.

It might also help summon help when you're in danger of spending the rent money at Sunday's show!

Genius Bares Fond Secret Here

By JACK SCOTT

SEGOVIA . . . Inspired

Andres Segovia, who was born in 1893, who gave his first concert in 1909, is looking ahead three months to what will be, he freely admits, one of the most inspiring engagements in his life — at a maternity ward in Madrid.

He is, to put it briefly, about to become a father. No royal performance could please him half so much.

Ticket Reserved

Relaxing today in his Empress Hotel suite for his sold-out concert here tomorrow afternoon, the 77-year-old genius of the classical guitar confided his well-kept secret with open delight.

His Spanish wife of "eight or nine years," Emelia, who is 35, will give birth to a daughter sometime in the last week of May. Nothing in the world could keep Segovia from being there. He already has his plane reservation from New York next month.

"Oh, yes, it will be a daughter," said Segovia, who has a 38-year-old son from a previous marriage. "Everything is prepared for. We have even decided on a name for her. She will be Aracelis, which means 'Altar of the Heavens.' It is a beautiful name. It will be a great joy. This is a thing to keep a man young. Through Emelia I absorb youth."

Age holds no terrors for the fresh-faced, rotund master.

Deserves to Die

"The man who is active does not think of age," he said. "The tragedy of the old man is only that he remains young on the inside while those about him may only see the outside. The conflict is only that we like to live as long as possible, but we don't like to get old. I've no sympathy for an old man who is bored with life. If he is in pain, yes. Suffering and evil are the two things I don't understand in this universe. But if he is in good health and bored with life then he deserves to be dead."

'Let Me Stay'

"I have only one philosphy about age," he laughed. "I am always praying to the Lord, 'My Lord, I am a great sinner, I have always been a great sinner, I do not deserve Your glory, I do not deserve to go to heaven. The only favor I ask, Lord, is that You let me stay here permanently."

A serious operation for a cataract of the eye was, he said, "the kind of thing that became the inevitablities of the years, but when that happened I found comfort in something that was said by a great writer who had suffered much. He was asked how he kept his good humor, his joy for life and he replied, 'Because I have always collaborated with the unavoidable.' That is what I did and the operation was a success."

Segovia said he had no immediate plans for retirement.

"I do no yet find any limitations to my possibilities, no technical limitation of the hands or the memory," he said. "It is a sad thing to find resistance in your fingers, but then you must work by practicing, by repeating, repeating, repeating. Perfection is always the same, whatever the talent. It is 10 per cent inspiration and 90 per cent perspiration. When one is young you can create through instinct, through vitality, but always you must eventually find the equilibrium between the mind and the temperament. There are times when you must express with emotion and there are times when you must express with intelligence which is an administration of the emotion. That is why an old man with a guitar may play a love song better than a young man. He intelligently revives the emotion that he felt when he was young. He is able to measure its intensity and its duration. You must speak with different voices, you see. If I were to tell you of the beautiful islands I saw when we came across the water from Vancouver I would speak with a kind of emotion, but if you tell a woman, 'I love you, I like so much your eyes', then you speak with a different emotion. This you learn with the years.

"The guitar is the best instrument for the message of love," Segovia went on. "The guitar is for the amorous dialogue with the women we love. If the woman is unfaithful then I would go to the cello to communicate with a friend. And if the friend was unfaithful I would turn to the organ to communicate with God."

Compromise Needed

Music, too, might be the best communication between the old and the young, Segovia said, But there would have to be some compromise.

"The music," he said, "must not be too modern to scare the old man and not to traditional to scare the young."

Earth Moves Blamed On Vesuvius

POZZUOLI, Italy (Reuters) — An Italian seismologist has blamed the dormant volcano of Vesuvius for the mysterious earth movements which have caused panic in this ancient fishing port in the Bay of Naples.

Only when Vesuvius erupts again will the people of Pozzuoli be able to sleep peacefully in their beds, he said Friday.

The theory put forward by seismologist Raffaele Bendandi is that the blocking of the Vesuvius crater by its last eruption in 1944 has forced underground gas and lava to seek other outlets on the surface.

"Let us hope. therefore, that Vesuvius awakes soon from its lethargy," he said. "But in good humor, of course. Without any unpleasant consequences."

Meanwhile, the mass exodus continued from Pozzuoli, where the level of the earth has risen at an alarming rate in recent months.

Obote Appears

KAMPALA (AP) — President Milton Obote of Uganda made his first public appearance here Friday since surviving an assassination attempt last December. He opened the new headquarters building of the Bank of Uganda before a large audience. Strong security precautions were in operation and surrounding streets were closed to traffic.

U.K. Hardens Restrictions On Cats, Dogs

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of dags and cats from around the world, as well as lions, tigers and panthers, are being banned from Britain in a drastic government attempt to keep the country free of rabies.

Those in transit will still get in but along with those already in quarantine will have to remian in kennel confinement for 12 months instead of the current eight. The tougher measures go into effect on Thursday, March 12.

Meanwhile, a petless barrister, Ronald Waterhouse, a family man with two children, will head a committee to recommend what changes should be made in the quarantine policy. The ban will remain until the study is completed. This may take months, perhaps a year.

In announcing the government's move Friday, Agriculture Minister Cledwyn Hughes emphasized that there will be no discrimination. The ban will apply equally on expensive dogs from and ordinary curs.

Smuggling of pets, he added at a news conference, is a serious crime and will be treated as such. Fines can go as high as $520.

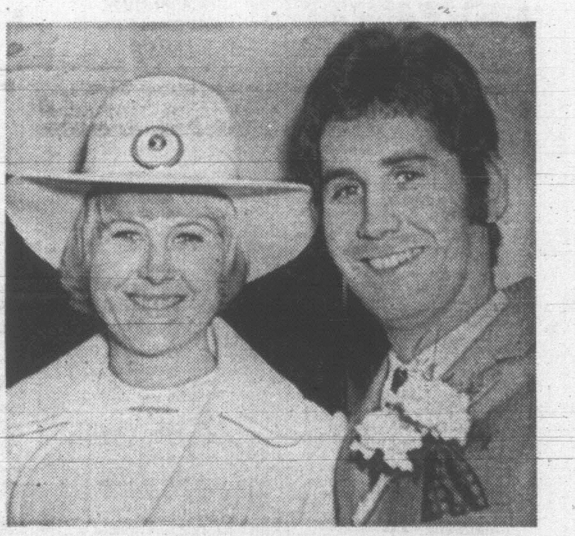
Weddings



Layton — Barber

A double-ring ceremony took place on February 28, 1970, at 10:30 a.m. in Langton's Registry Office, Billet Lane, Hornchurch, England, when Caroline Joan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Barber of this city, exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Geoffrey Joseph Layton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Layton, of Romford, Essex, England.

For her wedding the bride wore a white wool dress and coat with a wide brimmed hat. She carried a bouquet of carnations, freesia and roses.

Miss Isobel Boyle and Miss Gail Warnock, two former classmates of Royal Jubilee Hospital, attended the bride. Mr. John Plunkett and the groom's brother, Don, attended him.

After a tour of Europe in April, the couple will come to Victoria to reside.

McRae — Tweedy

A pretty wedding took place at 5:00 p.m. Saturday, February 14, 1970, in Osoyoos United Church, when Reverend N. K. A. Eutin united in marriage Donna Jean Tweedy, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Tweedy, Osoyoos, B.C. and Mr. Kenneth Douglas McRae, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth D. McRae, 2301 Lansdowne Road, Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of delicate rose satin overlayed with white organdy which featured a pointed collar, wide fitted cuffs and a deep band at the hem, all of white tatted lace in a floral design. Her veil, also lace trimmed was held by a tiara of organza flowers. She carried a bouquet of one white catalaya-orchid encircled by white stephanotis. Her gold heart-shaped earrings were a gift from the groom.

The maid of honor, Miss Audrey Stanley, and the junior bridesmaids, Misses Rhonda Tweedy and Bonnie Tweedy, younger sisters of the bride, wore identical gowns of beige brocade with gold thread design and carried nosegays of pink carnations.

Mr. Robert Booth was the best man and the ushers were Mr. Mark Miard and Mr. Anthony Banks, the brother-in-law of the groom.

Following the reception in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, the happy couple left for a motor trip to Valley Points. On their return they will reside in Kamloops.

Out of town guests were from Saskatoon, Victoria, Vancouver, Richmond, Sidney, Burnaby, Surrey, Kamloops, Salmon Arm, Armstrong, Nelson, Castlegar, Rock Creek, Bridesville and Oliver.

James — Goddard

Reverend A. E. King officiated at a double-ring ceremony in the Metropolitan United Church on February 28, 1970, at 6 p.m., when Leslie Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Goddard, of Victoria, B.C., exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Kenneth Graham James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Graham James, also of Victoria, B.C.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a radiant floor-length gown in chantilly lace, featuring a natural waistline and lily point sleeves, the full skirt falling softly over a hoop trimmed with matching lace; the long train flowed to the floor, she wore a jewel coronet head piece with veil of the chantilly lace.

The maid of honor, Miss Sandra Goddard and the bridesmaids Misses Marnie Goddard and Cynthia James wore identical gowns of mauve polyester chiffon featuring empire waistline with full chiffon back panel. Mr. Robert Williams attended as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Richard James and Dennis James.

Following a reception, Mr. and Mrs. James left on a wedding trip to Harrison Hot Springs, B.C.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Commander Ernest John Gilhen, O.B.E.-CD wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends for their kind words of sympathy and floral tributes during our sad bereavement. Special thanks to the honorary pallbearers; Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt; the doctors and staff at the D.V.A. Hospital; Royal Canadian Legion, Esquimalt; Padre Roberts, and Canon Greenhalgh.

We wish to thank our friends for the kindness and sympathy and the beautiful floral arrangements during the illness and passing of our mother, sister and grandmother, Mrs. Annie L. Armstrong — Mrs. Myrtle E. Whyte, Mrs. J. H. Armstrong, Cliff Armstrong, Mrs. Heather Ord, Wm. E. Whyte and Mrs. Carroll Murray.

We would like to thank everyone for their Prayers and kind remembrances to us, when our dear mother and sister entered into Eternal Rest. We would also like to thank Rev. Dr. Clyde Woodland for his comforting words. Your kindness has helped tremendously at this time. — Harry and Jo Reeves and family, Beth Dash and family.

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbours for their expressions of sympathy and great kindness during the loss of a dear husband and father. Special thanks to Pro Patria Branch R.C.L. for their kindness. — Mrs. David Randall and Family.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

Words cannot express the deep gratitude in our hearts for the many cards and flowers that were sent to us during the recent loss of a loving husband and father. To all our relatives, many, many dear friends and neighbours, please accept our sincere appreciation for your expressions of sympathy and for "just being there". Special thanks to Saanich Municipal Yard Employees, Saanich Police and Mr. Lavern Sands. — Forever grateful, — Ricki Walton and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DUTTON — In loving memory of Douglas who passed away March 8, 1967.

We often sit and think of him
when we are all alone,
For memory is the only friend that grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak,
when all other things decay,
Our love for him will still keep green and never fade away.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by mother, father, Dorothy and Bruce.

MacKAY—In loving memory of Dad, William (Bill) MacKay, who passed away March 7, 1966.

The pearly gates were opened,
A gentle voice said "Come."
And with farewells unspoken
He gently entered home.

—Always remembered by Russ and Helen.

RANSOM — In memory of my beloved husband, Alan Adair, who passed away March 7, 1968.

The heart that truly loves never forgets, but goes on loving till the close.

—Always remembered by his wife, Irene.

70s AT '69 PRICES!

Here are a couple of GMC Handi-Vans that must go. Both are long wheelbase models, with heavy-duty axles, springs and brakes. One is a 250 six, the other a 307 eight. The six has windows all around, the eight has them in rear and side doors, and both have three-speed automatics and six-ply truck tires.

We are prepared to make an attractive deal on these; why not come in and talk about it?

HIGH ON A HILL

Would you like seclusion and view?
Then here is the perfect home for you.
Three bedrooms, a kitchen with fridge built-in.
Dining room, living room for guests to sit in.
Sundeck, garage, over ½ acre lot.
If you stop and give it some thought?
All you must do, is pick up the phone.
I'd be happy to show the house in my poem.

FAIRFIELD
$25,500

An older, but very good "up and down" duplex just a few steps from the PARK and shopping centre.

The owner lives downstairs with a very modern kitchen, 2 bedrooms and an extra room in the full high basement.

Although this property is "older" the wiring is HEAVY and the piping COPPER and construction SOUND. A separate entrance leads to the upstairs suite of one bedroom, one bathroom, one living room and one hall-cum-dining room — always rented and potentially apartment zoned.

Girl's Head Wedged Between Camper, Beam

Linda de Gerolimo, 15, of 920 Snowdrop suffered face injuries Friday when her head became wedged between the rear of a camper and a beam on the roof of the Union Club parking lot on Humboldt Street.

She was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and is in fairly good condition today.

B.C. to Control Use of Forests

The cabinet will be given authority to make regulations for recreation in forest reserves by a bill given first reading in the legislature Friday.

The change is one of 10 amendments to the existing Forest Act which give greater authority to the forest resources minister in several areas.

The minister must now approve the activities of travellers and scientific investigators who may make use of timber and trees on Crown lands.

Methods of scaling timber in feet, board measure or in cubic feet must be approved by the minister under the new act. Previously the person for whom scales were made could choose the method used to measure timber.

The minister can stop operations of tree-farm licensees after 30 days notice when it is felt that the holders of the licenses are not complying to regulations. The notification period in legislation now in the books is three months.

An amendment to the Veterinary Medical Act was given first reading also.

The bill allows corporations to charge fees for veterinary services if directors, officers or employees of the corporation are registered under the act.

Meeting to Discuss Play Centre Use

Proposal to develop a James Bay recreation centre for joint school and community use will be discussed at a public meeeting Tuesday.

The meeting, sponsored by the James Bay elementary parent-teacher association, will be held at 8 p.m. in a school classroom.

PTA president Lorne de Girolamo said he hopes retired James Bay residents as well as parents will attend the meeting.

He said it's important to get the views of anyone who will have a future interest in planning a recreational facility.

The meeting will start off with a panel discussion on joint school-community facilities, then the audience will be invited to join the discussion.

Panel members will include Ald. Clyde Savage, Doug Dent of the YM-YWCA, Bill Stavdal, school board community information officer, and businessman Blaney Scott.

De Girolamo stressed the need to get the Bay's high-rise population involved in the plan. Apartment dwellers are not usually concerned with school matters, he said, because their children have already grown up.

Tentative suggestions for a recreation centre include a swimming pool, library, lawn bowling green and drama facilities.

Greater Victoria school board and city of Victoria have already agreed to co-operate in development of present site of James Bay elementary as a school complex.

The plan involves a westward shift of Macdonald Park and could be included in the next three-year school referendum.

Civil Right Policies Protested

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 1,800 employees of the 105,000-strong U.S. department of health, education and welfare expressed grave concern Friday over the Nixon administration's civil rights policies, especially on school desegregation.

The employees, 70 per cent of them of executive and professional level, asked Secretary Robert Finch in a petition to call an open meeting of all department staff members "for a frank and open discussion of this crucial matter."

There was no immediate comment from the department.

The unprecedented display of bureaucratic activism followed similar protests to President Nixon early in the week from more than one-third of the department's office for civil rights.

The unrest was set off by the White House ouster two weeks ago of civil rights chief Leon Panetta, a vigorous proponent of speedy school desegregation.

"Recent events bearing directly on HEW's civil rights commitment, including the resignation of the director of the office for civil rights, have raised questions in our minds about the department's current stand," the petition to the secretary said.

Band Getting Help for Trip

Eighty-four boys and girls who play in the Oak Bay Senior secondary school band are learning Japanese.

They're getting ready for a magic carpet trip to Japan, July 5, when they begin a 14-day series of concerts at Expo '70.

In their green and white uniforms, the students will have the privilege of representing Canada in the world's most famous exhibition of the current year.

They are backed by the Band Parents' Association which is raising money to help the students equip themselves for the trip and pay their fares.

The Kiwanis Club of Oak Bay contributed $3,500 by holding a walkathon last July, and the Oak Bay Optimists put on a fund-raising drive.

Now the Optimists are raffling a new car to provide more funds for Victoria's musical ambassadors.

Dave Dunnett, a teacher at Oak Bay senior and junior secondary schools, will be master of ceremonies during the bands' two-week appearance at Osaka.

He will fly to Osaka March 24 to arrange details for the visit.

Additional funds will be raised at a concert by the Oak Bay concert band in McPherson Playhouse in May.

Marina Owners Ask Probe

DUNCAN — A thorough investigation into the proposed nuclear power plant at Duncan has been called for by the Vancouver Island Marina Owners' and Operators Association.

In a unanimous resolution passed at a meeting here Thursday, the association urged exploration of the effect of the plant on marine life and any potential hazards from intentional or unintentional radioactive emissions.

Jack Richardson of Nanaimo was elected president, Sylvester (Skip) Winn of Genoa Bay, vice-president, and Marg Thiessen of Thetis Island secretary-treasurer.

Church Hopes to Fill Pews With Guests

For months past, Emmanuel Baptist Church, 1900 Fernwood, has been planning for Guest Week '70.

This is a nine-day program of outreach in which church members invite guests of all ages to their regular meetings and worship services.

Guest Week begins Sunday at 8 with a prayer breakfast, followed by three services at 9:30 a.m., 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Monday is boys night; Tuesday girls night. All groups will meet at their usual time and will welcome guests in their customary setting.

Pastor Norman K. Archer will present their claims of Jesus Christ in a way applicable to different age groups.

"We are looking to adults and children in the church to bring as many guests as possible," he said.

During Guest Week there will be a men's dinner, a teenage luncheon and a boys' party.

Johnny Forrest of Don Messer's Jubilee will be guest of honor at a public rally Tuesday at 8 p.m.

"He will be singing, playing and giving his Christian testimony," Archer said.

The church has been divided into nine sections, each under the direction of a pew supervisor. Each pew supervisor has appointed four pew captians who are challenged to pack a pew for three of the special meetings.

Act to Change Adoption Rules

A bill enabling the adoption of persons over the age of twenty-one was given first reading in the legislature Friday.

The amendment also allows agencies outside the province to give consent to adoption of children inside B.C. in cases where the child is ward of the agency.

The bill, one of two introduced by Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi, is an amendment to the Adoption Act and allows adoption if the applicant has maintained the person to be adopted.

The second bill was an amendment to the Preotection of Children Act that relates to the care and custody of children "in need of protection."

Legal adoption of individuals over the age of majority is permitted if the guardian maintained as his own child the person until he reaches the age of majority, marries, or becomes self-supporting.

The amendment to the protection of Children Act makes it necessary for persons who take children into custody — because of the youngster's vagrancy, incorrigibility, or physical or mental infirmity — to appear before a judge and swear out a complaint within seven days after apprehension.

The bill also gives a judge discretion to investigate circumstances of a case, and rescind or review care and custody if he is satisfied it is in the best interests of the child.

Going Home After Years In Detention

TORONTO (CP) — Nikolas Gilewicz, the 61-year-old Pole who says he was held without cause in two Ontario mental hospitals for almost 10 years, is going to return to Poland next month — to stay.

Gilewicz, whose case was brought up in the Ontario legislature Wednesday, said in an interview through an interpreter Friday that he liked Canada before he was put in the institutions.

Gilewicz came to Canada in 1951, working as a laborer before being arrested in Ottawa in January, 1960, for drunkenness.

Morton Shulman (NDP-Toronto High Park) told the legislature that Gilewicz spoke no English and the magistrate who tried him thought this "preculiar" and referred him to the Brockville Psychiatric Hospital.

Dr. Shulman said Gilewicz was transferred in 1969 to the St. Lawrence Sanatorium in Cornwall. There he was noticed by a Polish doctor who learned that he had never received a proper psychiatric examination.

Air Flights Suspended

British Columbia's Ocean Air Ltd. has been granted permission to suspend operations until March 22, the Canadian transport commission announced Friday.

But should the company not resume operation on or before that date, it said, its licences to operate commercial air services at Port Alberni and Tofino, will be cancelled.

The commission gave no reason for the company request for suspension of operations.

The commission also granted an amended licence permitting Airwest Airlines Ltd. to add flying training to its service at Port Hardy.

The company already has a licence to operate a recreational flying service at Port Hardy. The commission said it is satisfied Airwest has the finances, aircraft and facilities to provide the additional service.

Rabbis Confer

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — The 81st annual meeting of the Central Committee of American Rabbis opened on Mt. Scopus Friday with a pledge of identification and support for Israel by the reform movement's president, Rabbi Roland B. Gittelsohn of Boston. More than 400 reform Jewish rabbis and their wives, representing Jewish communities in the United States and Canada, attended the opening session.

Passenger In Good Condition

James Klein, 22, of 2425 Sinclair is in good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital after suffering head injuries in a car accident late Friday night.

He was a passenger in a car which ran into a ditch and overturned at the intersection of Midgard and Kremlin.

The driver, Robert Davidson, 1813 Jade Place, was released from hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

Damage to the car was estimated at $1,200.

Architects To Advise Municipalities

A panel to advise municipalities on buildings and developments under consideration has been formed by Victoria architects.

"Oak Bay has accepted our services," says architect Alan H. Lester, "and our first job will be to examine the riding academy, which has been zoned for high-rises.

"We shall discuss the proposed program of land sales and developer competition. Later we shall examine the designs submitted."

Lester said there are six architects on the panel and it is sponsored by the Victoria chapter, Architectural Institute of British Columbia.

The design panel will be chiefly concerned with the preservation and enhancement of the total environment, Lester said.

"We would welcome a chance to make judgments on any sizeable development in this area, such as commercial blocks, apartments, high-rises or town houses."

Measles Kills 88

LIMA (AP) — A measles epidemic in the slums around Lima has killed 88 children since the beginning of the year, a government official said Friday. He said parents were largely responsible because they did not have their children vaccinated.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Macdonald Didn't Favor Income Tax

By BOB BOWMAN

When the Conservative party was defeated in the general election of 1874, following the C.P.R. scandal, Sir John A. Macdonald seriously considered retiring from politics. He was not only discouraged and disgusted, but could have made far more money by practising law. His party followers and friends exerted tremendous pressure on him to continue, a situation that was repeated many times until his death in 1891.

Sir John, of course, stayed on and quietly watched Alexander MacKenzie's Liberal government struggle with severe problems. There was an economic depression. British Columbia was threatening to secede from Canada because the transcontinental railway was not being built, as promised.

Sir John's followers became impatient because he was not offering more vigorous opposition, but he was waiting for the right moment to begin his attack, and the right platform on which to mount it.

He began firing his big guns on March 7, 1877, when he moved his famous resolution in the House of Commons that Canadian industries should be protected by higher tariffs, and also contended that this would help the farmers. The Liberals were tending towards trying to make a reciprocal trade deal with the U.S.A. but Macdonald claimed that the U.S.A. would be more inclined to make such and agreement after higher tariffs had been imposed.

The resolution was defeated, but it became the basis of Conservative policy for many years.

However, there was another, lesser-known, reason why Macdonald advocated higher tariffs. The government needed greater revenue for building railways, roads, and canals to open up the country. He did not believe that income, or other direct taxes should be imposed on the people of Canada, especially during a depression. Therefore, the only means of collecting more money was by increasing customs duties.

His "national policy" proved to be the effective election campaign platform for which he had been looking. The Conservatives were returned to power in 1878 and remained in office until 1896.

The Wonderful World of Animals

By Dr. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My husband was just released from the hospital. He was put there, by our own sweet little Pussy Cat — or so we thought. All that happened was my husband accidentally slammed the refrigerator door on her tail. The cat screamed and, of course, he opened up the door again right away and let her loose. Then he gathered her up to comfort her and she almost chewed his ear off! Since then, they won't have anything to do with each other, and Pussy Cat is even grumpy with me. I guess the moral here is for people not to ever trust their pets no matter what.—L.O.

DEAR L.O.: The moral might be not to hurt your pet, even by accident. But should an accident occur, be extremely careful how you handled a frightened, paired pet. During those first fearful moments, the poor animal may instinctively but irrationally lash out to protect itself. Even when it appears somewhat calm, attempting to move it may cause new pain, panic and swift retaliation. If available, a doubled, heavy blanket between you and tooth and claw can be a lifesaver. But remember for the blanket bar to be effective, it must remain between you and pet patient at all times.

DEAR DR. MILLER: The grandmother of my own dog, Toddy, was allergic to penicillin. It looks like Toddy may need penicillin for a draining sore on his foot. If he has to have it, would it be better to give it to him by mouth or to have a nurse friend of mine give it too him by a shot? —M.A.

DEAR M.A.: It would be best, first of all, to place the entire problem in the hands of your dog's vet. Let him make the decision of whether or not an antibiotic is indicated or whether, possible, surgery is a better answer. Mention Toddy's grandmother's penicillin problem, of course. The vet would then test for an allergic reaction before using penicillin or use, instead, a different drug. As far as safety (but not necessarily effectiveness) is concerned, an allergic reaction is several times more likely when penicillin in injected than when given by mouth.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My daughter and I are having a dispute over her cat's ringworm fungus. She says it can be a type that doesn't have to be contagious to humans. I say any cat ringworm can be caught by people.—M.M.

DEAR M.M: You take the first round. Ninety-eight per cent of all cat ringworm is caused by microsporum canis which can and often does, cause ringworm in humans. However, while all cat ringworm is caused by cat fungus, not all cat fungus infections are ringworm. There are, indeed, many fungus infections of cats which are not ringworm and which are not contagious to humans.

DEAR DR. MILLER: How soon after a dog is bitten by a wild skunk with rabies does it have to be given a shot of rabies vaccine so it won't come down with the rabies, too?—H.C.

DEAR H.C.: The time to give the dog rabies vaccine is before it is bitten by a rabid animal. It's too late to give rabies vaccine after a bite; it can do no good then and may even be harmful. A specific serum, anti-rabic gamma-globulin, must be injected into the area immediately around the bite, and this within the first few hours if it is to be of value in neutralizing the rabies virus. To prevent rabies, vaccinate your dog prior to exposure, routinely, as directed by his vet. Most current canine rabies vaccines are considered effective for a two-year period.

MINOR EARTHQUAKE HITS VICTORIA AREA

A minor earthquake was felt in Victoria at 2:45 a.m. today.

Dr. William G. Milne, seismologist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Little Saanich Mountain, said he felt the slight shudder.

The seismograph he keeps in his home registered a quake with a magnitude of about 2.5. Origin of the earthquake was about 15 miles southeast of Victoria, he said.

Six Kidnap U.S. Attache

GUATEMALA CITY (CP) — Left-wing guerrillas who kidnapped a U.S. embassy attache in downtown Guatamala City Friday said they would kill him unless the government releases four of their commandos within 48 hours and guarantees them safe passage to Mexico.

In a typewritten letter, to newspapers early today, the Guatemalan Armed Revolutionary Force promised to execute Sean Michael Holly, a 41-year-old labor attache at the U.S. embassy, if the government does not meet their deadline, which expires at 2 a.m. Sunday.

The letter, dropped into mail boxes at the newspapers, also ordered the government to "immediately cease all persecution of rebel forces." and to order police and the Guatemalan Army to stop all hostilities against the revolutionary movement.

Holly was kidnapped from his car in front of a local bank Friday afternoon by six youths armed with submachine-guns and was driven away in one of two cars used by the kidnappers.

The operation was watched by four armed guards standing in front of the bank and by crowds of citizens who thought it was a police arrest.

FILLED IN NAME

The letter demanding the release of the four guerrillas was typed neatly with a space left where Holly's name was filled in with ink.

Police surmised that the guerrillas were ready to kidnap any member of the embassy and that Holly was merely a victom of circumstances.

The kidnapping followed a similar seizure by the rebel group last week of Guatemalan Foreign Minister Alberto Fuentes Mohr. After his life was threatened he was freed the following day in exchange for a guerrilla leader, Jose Giron Calvillo, 24, who was held by police.

Since the killing of U.S. Ambassador John Gordon Mein by guerrillas who tried to kidnap him from his car in August, 1968, U.S. diplomats have been urged to exercise caution. But officials said it was impossible to guard against events such as the kidnapping Friday.

The guerrillas whose release was demanded in the letter today were Vialina Antonietta Monzon, Jose Manuel Aguirre Monzon, Jose Antonio Sierra and Leonel del Cid. The Monzons, brother and sister, are being held on a charge of car theft while the others are confined for subversive activities.

Holly, a respected labor adviser, is married and the father of five boys, ranging in age from five to 11. He has been in Guatemala since July, 1968.

'Show Heathens War Is Hell'

WASHINGTON (WP) — The United States should destroy a North Vietnamese city in retaliation for that country's treatment of American war prisoners and their families, House armed services committee chairman L. Mendel Rivers, told a group of wives of missing U.S. servicemen in an emotional hearing Friday.

"Let them know war is hell," the South Carolina Democrat and one of the country's most powerful legislators, said "And give them a hell of a lot of it. Let them witness what would happen to have one of their cities disappear from the face of the earth.

"We've been powerfully patient while this bunch of heathens have toyed with these ladies' tender feelings."

Rivers and other committee members were moved to the bitter denunciations by a frank and stirring account by four wives of a month-long, apparently fruitless trip around the world to win world opinion to their side and to learn whether their missing husbands were dead or alive.

"The administration should give consideration to not withdrawing any more troops from Vietnam until these people are released," Rep. Charles E. Bennett (D—Fla.) said.

Duncan Fire Kills Mother, Children

By ED GOULD

A mother and her three children died early this morning in a fire which raced through their home at North Cowichan.

Mrs. Elsie O'Connell, 29, died while attempting to rescue her two-year-old daughter Shannon from the front bedroom of their home at 5936 Lakes Road.

David O'Connell, 33, her husband is in satisfactory condition in Cowichan District Hospital after making two trips back into the flaming building to carry out Cynthia, 11, and April Deanna, 7.

The girls were dead or died shortly after they were taken to hospital.

MUFFLED SOUND

Cause of the fire, which began at 12:05 a.m., was not determined but Fire Chief Jack Scoular of North Cowichan volunteer fire department said it appeared to have originated in the living room on the south side of the modern three-bedroom frame home.

A neighbor, R. J. Williamson, who had just come off afternoon shift at 11:30 p.m. at Crofton Pulp and Paper Limited, was just going to bed shortly after midnight when he heard a muffled sound "like something falling." A few moments later a splintering of glass was heard.

"I rushed to our window and the living room in the O'Connell house was just gushing with flames. When I came home there was no sign of fire."

His wife phoned the fire department and assistant chief Ernie Cardiff, who lives in the area, was on the scene in five minutes.

Williamson said he ran

U.S. Plans 'Grand Tour' Of Space

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon proposed today that the United States start planning in 1972 for "grand tour" unmanned space missions later in the decade to visit Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto.

In a statement issued at his Florida home, Nixon said "the positions of the planets at that time will give us a unique opportuntity to launch missions which can visit several of them on a single flight of over 3,000,000,000 miles."

He cited as a "long-range goal" an eventual expedition to put men on Mars.

'NO PAPIST REBELS HERE'

North Ireland Erupts Again

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Ten thousand civil rights demonstrators flooded into, the city from all over Northern Ireland today, some of them pelting police with rotten apples and taunting British troops who separated them from Protestant hecklers.

As the demonstrators marched down the main street inside the ancient walls of the Old City, a largely protestant area, some 300 Protestants gathered to taunt them.

"We'll have no papist rebels in our territory," the Protestants shouted. The civil rightists are largely comprised of members of Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority of Catholic partisans.

"We will get you out," the civil rights demonstrators shouted back.

As the demonstrators marched through the Old City gates into the main square, troops formed a barricade into the ancient city and sealed it off with barbed wire.

At first, police had patrolled the entrance to this Protestant district, but Catholics drove the police out, hurling rotten apples at them and shouting, "we got you out of the Bogside, we will get you out of here."

Bogside is the largest all-Catholic district of Londonderry. Sectarian rioting destroyed large parts of it last August.

As the ancient city was sealed off, a crowd of 3,000 Protestants were held back from the Catholic area by troops displaying bayonets.

The crowd swelled to about 3,000 on each side and troop reinforcements hurried in carrying barbed wire fences and banners reading "disperse or we will fire."

All the side streets connecting Protestant and Catholic neighborhoods were sealed off by police and troops. Catholics taunted the troops, yelling, "fireside soldiers go home to Britain."

"We are expecting trouble and all troops from surrounding areas have been called in," said a military spokesman. "The situation has all the ingredients of trouble and nightfall will tell."

The demonstrators were protesting unemployment in Northern Ireland, estimated at 17 per cent of the work force as well as alleged discrimination against Catholics in housing and other areas.

They carried banners reading, "it is work or war, and "smash the unionist state, Tories must go, north and south."

They consisted of pro-Catholic civil right demonstrators, labor and socialist groups, and other leftwing organizations from all over the country.

Mobile police canteens rolled into the city to service more than 500 police at key points, indicating they were preparing to last the night.

Saturday shoppers were not allowed to go from one end of the city to the other and cars were diverted and searched.

Liquor Probe Proposals Applauded

As the Morrow Commission expected, early reaction to their report on B.C.'s liquor laws and drinking habits is seeing, as being most important, the call for a "crash program" of education and rehabilitation.

Even the Women's Christian Temperance Union likes that recommendation.

The three-man Liquor Inquiry Commission, in its 119-page report tabled in the legislature by Provincial Secretary Wesley Black Friday, predict their recommendations on alcoholism might be seen by many as "the most important contribution."

The 68 recommendations in the 37,500-word report will get careful study from the government which has only about two weeks in which to decide whether to introduce legislation this session.

SUPPORT GENERAL

Initial reaction from MLAs who had heard only of the main recommendations appeared to be good in all parties with a strong backbench Socred element which is known to be enthusiastic.

If there is consensus on the report, it is that the time had come to clear, what Reg Clarkson, Vancouver Island director of the B.C. Alcoholism Foundation called "archaic and inconvenient" laws from the books.

But he and others concerned about the social dangers of alcohol abuse are most pleased to find that the commissioners call for a cabinet-minister directed program to teach the dangers of abuse and to help those who have succumbed.

GLARING GAP'

As Dave Barrett, the social worker who is leader of the New Democratic Party Opposition puts it, this has been "one of the glaring gaps in Social Credit" government action.

"I don't see how the government can ignore that recommendation."

Chairman of the commission was Judge C. W. Morrow of the County Court of Yale, and the two other members were labor leader Ed Lawson, a teetotaller and retired Roman Catholic Archbishop Martin M. Johnson.

The government has already beaten the commission to one of its major recommendations — that of lowering the drinking age and the age of majority for all purposes to 19.

A bill for that purpose was introduced earlier this week.

PRICE CHANGES

One recommendation that may not be so quickly accepted is a proposal for raising the price of beer moderately and wine slightly while lowering that of whisky considerably by revising the taxing system on alcohol.

More Bombings Hit Trinidad

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuters) — The glass doors of a Canadian bank were smashed and two gasoline bombs were thrown at the home of a Roman Catholic priest early today following a series of Black Power demonstrations.

No arrests were reported in the bomb attack on the priest's home, but police said they are holding a man in connection with the smashing of the doors at the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The priest, Irish-born Rev. Jules Graham of Belmont Church, told the police he was asleep at the time of the attack. He said there was no serious damage.

It was the second anti-clerical incident in two days. Friday, an Anglican priest suffered minor injuries when he was beaten up by Black Power militants.

Two Canadian banks were damaged Friday when bombs were thrown from a car speeding through the suburb of San Juan. The San Juan branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia escaped damage when a gasoline-filled bottle thrown at it landed on top of a garment factory next door.

The factory, which suffered damage estimated at $15,000, is owned by an Indian, Soogrim Bhadoordsingh.

About 15,000 persons gathered in San Juan early today to hear one of the Black Power leaders apologize for the burning of the factory.

"No harm was intended for any Indians," said Geddes Granger. "Indians are our black brothers."

In this country of close to 1,000,000 inhabitants, the Indian community totals about 35 per cent of the population. Negroes comprise 43 per cent, mixed-bloods 16 per cent, whites two per cent and Chinese one per cent.

Israeli Raiders Fire 'Warning'

By Reuters

Israeli raiders returned to base early today after crossing into Lebanon for an attack intended to underline diplomatic warnings over Arab commando activity.

A military spokesman said the Israelis killed one guerrilla, captured two and blew up several buildings in a village suspected of harboring Arab commandos who operate against Israel.

But in Beirut, a Lebanese military spokesman said the man killed was a Lebanese soldier. He said one civilian was wounded, two others kidnapped and five houses and a tractor destroyed in a clash Friday night.

The raid was "a warning," the Israeli spokesman said. The Israeli attack followed several warnings issued through diplomatic channels, telling the Lebanese government to curb guerrillas hitting Israeli border villages and settlements from bases inside Lebanon.

Unemployment In U.S. Jumps To 4.2 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (WP) — Unemployment jumped sharply for the second straight month in February to its highest level in more than four years, the U.S. government announced Friday.

The seasonally adjusted jobless rate rose to 4.2 per cent of the labor force from 3.9 per cent in January and 3.5 per cent in December.

It was the biggest two-month increase since the business slump of 1957-58.

Caution Keynote On Toronto Mart

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets were steady this week after a strong three-week rally.

The rally began on hopes of a loosening in the tight money policies that have plagued North American stock markets since last June.

Fuel was added last week when three small United States banks reduced their prime rates to eight per cent from 8½.

During the three-week rally, Canadian markets followed America markets almost on a day-to-day basis.

But this week, while American markets reacted decisively to prime rate reductions by more small American banks and to talk that more reductions could follow, Canadian markets displayed caution and moved in a fractional pattern.

Statistically, on index at the Toronto Stock Exchange, industrials were up .25 to 184.17, golds 9.46 to 157.55 and base metals 1.27 to 115.74. Western oils dropped 7.50 to 196.49.

Volume was 9,769,000 shares compared with 9,883,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 387 to 371 with 235 issues unchanged.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was up 41 to 181.32. Combined volume was 5,197,000 shares compared with 5,756,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 179 to 164 with 115 issues unchanged.

$535 Million Divestiture By Texas Giant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ling-Temco-Vought Inc., the Texas-based industrial giant, has agreed to settle a government anti-trust complaint by selling off Braniff Airways and the wire-making Oionite Co.

The only alternative to this $535,000,000 divestiture, under terms of a proposed consent judgment announced Friday, was for the huge conglomerate to dispose of Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., a $1,100,000,000 enterprise.

LTC, the 25th largest U.S. firm, was given that option Friday under terms of a proposed consent judgment terminating the justice department's first challenge of an acquisition by a conglomerate.

James J. Ling, LTV chairman and chief executive, said Friday night the combine agreed to the settlement in order to avoid a "protracted and costly legal contest" that might extend for three to five years.

The decree is to be filed in Pittsburgh, Pa., federal court Tuesday, with court approval to be sought after a 30-day waiting period.

ENDS CIVIL SUIT

The settlement concludes a civil suit brought last April 14, attacking the takeover of Jones and Laughlin—the first company with $1,000,000,000 or more in assets to be swallowed up by another firm.

The divestiture, said Attorney-General John Mitchell, will be the most substantial ordered under "any anti-trust decree in recent years."

The judgment stipulates that divestiture must be accomplished within three years, and, if not, LTV's stock in Jones and Laughlin will be transferred to a court-appointed trustee for disposal.

It also bars LTV for a 10-year period from acquiring as much as a one per cent voting stock interest in any corporation with assets of more than $100,000,000 unless prior approval is obtained from the government or the court.

The conglomerate disposed of Wilson Sporting Goods Co. in 1969 after the suit was filed, and then, earlier this year, sold off National Car Rental Systems Inc. Those two companies had combined assets of more than $156,000,000.

Manchester Control To Furness

LONDON (CP) — Furness, Withy and Co. Ltd. has won control of Manchester Liners Ltd. by a small majority.

But R. B. Stoker, chairman of Manchester Liners, says the firm's directors do not plan to accept the Furness offer for their own ordinary shares.

The Manchester company operates frieght services between Canada and Britain.

Its directors had advised ordinary shareholders against accepting the offer from Furness, another British shipping line.

Furness representatives say acceptances now have been received from sufficient shareholders to give the bidding company "more than 50 per cent of the ordinary share capital of Manchester Liners."

The extent of control was estimated elsewhere to be 50.4 per cent.

The Furness representatives said the offer for Manchester shares will remain open for acceptances until March 19.

An initial offer of 110 shillings $14.30 a share was later raised by Furness to 113 shillings $14.69.

In 1968, Manchester Liners launched what Stoker called "the first all-British ocean-going container service involving specially-designed terminals in Manchester and Montreal.

Rio Algom Names Vice-President

Rio Algom Mines Ltd. has announced the appointment of J. Arthur Sadler as vice-president of the company.

Sadler is also president of Rio Tinto Canadian Exploration Limited (Ricanex and general manager of Rioamex, exploration subsidiaries of Rio Algom. His new appointment recognized the increased scale and complexity of the company's exploration programs in Canada and the U.S. and the importance of Sadler's role in these programs.

Sadler has been with the Rio Algom group of companies since 1956. He holds a B.Sc. in mining engineering from McGill University.

U.S. Beer Mart Eyed

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Breweries Ltd. is studying the possible introduction of a premium brand of beer in the United States, J. H. Devlin, the company's chairman, says.

Devlin, also chairman of Rothmans of Pall Mall Canada Ltd., told a meeting of Montreal financial analysts that demand for premium brand beer currently accounts for 27 per cent of the total U.S. beer market, and is steadily rising.

Rothmans owns 50.3 per cent of Canadian Breweries.

"To get into the premium market we would have to introduce an entirely new brand," Devlin said.

Canadian Breweries, through seven U.S. plants, now produces he said. several regular brands of beer, Consolidation Phase Marks Week at N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York stock market posted a moderate gain this week as it lolled for most of the time in what analysts termed a consolidation phase after recent strong advances.

Only on Tuesday did the market show a spark of enthusiasm that had marked previous occasions when hopes of lower interest rates flared.

An unfounded rumor that a major New York bank would cut its prime lending rate—the interest charged the biggest and most creditworthy borrowers—sent the market surging late in the session. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted to a gain of 7.19.

Glamor issues were hard hit as institutional investors began switching from these former high flyers into blue chip stocks whose prices have been depressed.

Losses for the week among the glamor stocks included Itek 11⅝ to 71¼, Memorex 11⅛ to 122⅝, Mohawk Data 11½ to 65, Telex 6¾ to 127½ and University Computing 9 to 50⅞.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials advanced 6.53 to 784.12 for the week. The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 3.4 to 278.8. The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks dipped 0.06 to 50.04. Standard and Poor's 500-stock index slipped 0.06 to 89.44.

LOWS HAVE EDGE

Of the 1,763 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange during the week, 976 advanced and 654 declined. New 1969-70 lows exceeded new highs 58 to 40.

Big Board volume for the week increased to 58,204,850 shares from 48,476,050 shares the previous week, which was shortened to four trading sessions by the George Washington birthday holiday.

Biggest percentage gain of the week was 29.9 by MEI Corp., up 3¼ to 14⅛. Western Airlines, up 3⅛ to 18⅛, showed a gain of 20.8 per cent. Biggest losers on a percentage basis were Kresge, off 13 to 44¼, or 22.7 per cent, and Buffalo Forge, off 9⅝ to 42⅜, or 18.5 per cent.

Among the week's most-active issues, 13 declined and seven advanced.

The five most-active issues on the New York Stock Exchange were: Jersey Standard, off ½ to 53½ on 774,700 shares; Kresge, off 13 to 44¼; Benguet, off 1⅞ to 8½; American Telephone, up 1¼ to 52½, and Occidental Petroleum, up ⅝ to 22⅞.

The five most-active issues on the American Stock Exchange were: Phoenix Steel, up 2¼ to 7¼ on 458,200 shares; BTB Corp., up ⅞ to 7⅞; Campbell Chibougamau, up 2⅜ to 13⅝; Macro, up ⅛ to 6⅜, and National General Warrants, up ⅛ to 5⅝.

'SECRET DEALS' ARE MADE . . . . . . AND, SUDDENLY, POLLUTION

This Man Knows How to Express Our Love for the Land

By DON VIPOND

Roderick L. Haig-Brown is a prophet not without honor in his own country.

To defy such a time-honored verity is no mean feat. It's a measure of the man.

When he speaks, people listen. Because he has proved himself eloquent on the nebulous love affair many of us have with the land.

It's a hard courtship to frame in words but in a whole shelf full of books he has found the way.

In Campbell River he is a judge. He is now also chancellor of the University of Victoria. But for decades his books mark him as naturalist, an angler in the richest traditional meaning.

Inevitably this means "conservationist," too, so he was among many at the university today speaking on the Environment Crisis.

Friday night he and his wife slept in a trim motel cottage alongside Cadboro Bay. Early this morning, before the teach-in began to roll, he sat with a cup of coffee alongside and talked about the world we live in, what we're doing to it.

Pulp mills. Oil drilling. Logging. Poisoned rivers. Faster-than-sound planes. Governments and industry wheeling and dealing.

Do you really think there's room for the individual to do anything?

"Yes I do. Very much. The group after all is made up of individuals. And if the individuals aren't thinking and paying attention and figuring things out. the group won't do very much . . .

"The big thing is to keep asking questions. And there are so many good questions to ask. What is this thing doing to us? Why don't we know more about it? What are we going to do about it?

"Individuals can ask those questions of their members, of all kinds of civil servants.

"They can ask them of industry, industry particularly needs to be questioned.

"Why should we call ourselves a democracy and then we have secret deals of all kinds, government and industry, the public can't know anything about until after they happen . . .

"Well, that's backwards. They should inform the public, let the public express it's opinion in plenty of time to affect the legislation.

"I think this, to some extent, is what Mr. Trudeau is trying to do with his white paper. He feeds the stuff out and let's the people shoot at it and I think that't the proper way.

"This should be the case with industrial proposals, government ideas of all kinds. Let the public speak . . ."

Haig-Brown speaks quietly, reasonably. So later when he speaks of the ominous alternative, it takes a moment to realize he is talking about blind savage violence.

"Within the next two or three decades . . . if governments and industry don't get busy on this thing and don't straighten it up then people will eventually come to see the picture clearly and they will panic and they will really blow it up."

Literally.

He talked about international problems. Environment after all knows no boundaries. It's man alone who trouble to draw lines on maps.

"We're spending a fortune developing a supersonic plane and it doesn't seem as though anybody's asked the question about what it's going to do to stratospheric pollution and is that going to wipe out the world.

"It seems to me we should be spending a fortune on that. And we just aren't."

And he talked about problems on our doorstep.

"Then you've got the question of this oil drilling in the Gulf of Georgia. It's pretty obvious we shouldn't go for oil in the Gulf of Georgia. It'd be a disaster if we found it . . .

"One point that isn't often mentioned . . . if you had a significant spill of oil in the Gulf of Georgia, you'd probably close down every pulp mill around the gulf . . . that alone should make people think a bit."

And on logging:

"It's really deadly on the headwater streams if they don't keep away from it. Now they can keep away from it . . . the fisheries people can get in their and check once in awhile . . . but the Forest Service is around all the time. It is really their responsibility to make sure the streams are protected. It really isn't hard if they set their minds to it.

"Canadian Forest Products is giving a good example of that sort of thing up in the Nimpkish Valley, quite outstanding. And they have companies right alongside them that are absolutely disgraceful . . ."

On polluted rivers:

"The lower Fraser I think is a disgrace and we should be cleaning that up before it goes any further. And keep it clean.

"It probably is damaging salmon; you can't prove it but I'm almost convinced it is . . ."

On the economics of pulp mills and polluted rivers:

"We have to have a new brand of economics, that is all. We know this. It's a matter of time until someone figures this out. There are outfits like Resources for the Future Inc. that are working on it.

"Not enough. We need much more sophisticated work."

Are you hopeful the environment problems could be overcome?

"I think if people would maintain their interest at the present level, and not sort of flake out on it, yes, I think we could do something about it.

"But I don't know whether they're going to — particularly when they see that it maybe starts to chip away a little at the easy standard of living and so on . . ."

What will Vancouver Island look like in the year 2000?

"There's no reason why it couldn't look a whole lot better than it does today. But people are piling in awefully fast and we are doing almost no planning about it as far as I can see.

"We let mill towns grow up as best they may. And we seem to plant pulp mills without rhyme or reason.

"We are, I think quite obviously and have been for many years, overcutting our timber. I don't know where this is going to end us up."

KILLER WHALES: FEW SAVE MANY

How does Haig-Brown look upon last Sunday's capture of killer whales off Race Rocks, including the rare albino?

He's of two minds.

Killer whales on display have taught people they are not the dreadful creatures they were said to be, he notes.

"I remember not too long ago we were talking about dreadful things like machine-gunning them in Seymour Narrows and putting great big knives on the prows of the fishery patrol boats that were supposed to plow into a school of killer whales and cut them all up.

"Bringing the killer whale into civilization has cured this nonsense. And so I think a few killer whales on display are good for the killer whales. One or two are sacrificed for the good of them all . . ."

THERE'S SOMETHING of the hawk in the gaze of Roderick Haig-Brown. New chancellor of the University of Victoria, he joined with other experts to take part today in Canada's first teach-in on our environment, a day-long program organized by the university's Biology Club.

Pollution Teach-In Draws 1,500 to Uvic

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Man must learn new values if the world is to survive, a panel of scientists told an environmental teach-in at the University of Victoria today.

More than 1,500 people of all ages are attending the teach-in organized by the biology department.

It was opened by Dr. Bruce Partridge, the university's president.

Object of the one-day meeting is to inform people of the environmental crisis facing the world due to pollution and the misuse of land, water and air.

Ways and means of stopping rampant pollution are also being discussed.

NEW VALUES ESSENTIAL

Scientists were unanimous on one point: that no effective measures to prevent environmental decline will be possible until people learn and accept new values.

Failure to do this will lead to the extinction of man, they said:

"What we need is a new culture, new politics, new religion," Dr. Henry Regier, professor of zoology, University of Toronto, said.

He said there is an immediate need for action. Man had already destroyed large bodies of water like Lake Erie, Ont.

The climate in regions like Toronto is changing due to pollution and the misuse of natural resources, he said.

Dr. Richard S. Miller, Yale University wildlife ecologist, said people would have to change their ideas of progress if brakes were to be applied to the decline of environment.

"Is more and more speed necessary?" he asked.

As an example he questioned the value of supersonic aircraft to man.

'ACT NOW' — CHANCELLOR

Roderick Haig-Brown, conservationist-author, Uvic chancellor, said people must act now to stop pollution, must press politicians to take action.

David Anderson, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, said people should work to make the public at large aware of the environmental problems facing the world.

"The more people become aware of the problem the quicker governments will act," Anderson said.

However, he pointed out that solving pollution problems is expensive and people must be prepared to share the cost if any effective action is to be taken."

Bob Fortune, CBC television man, said indirect harm through the destruction of natural environment is ultimately as lethal as direct poisoning.

BLACK-TOP BLIGHT

Fortune said one million square miles of land is being black-topped every year to take care of 9 million additional automobiles.

This is only a small aspect of the problems arising from automobiles, he added.

Other speakers pointed out 140 billion tons of carbon dioxide are added to the earth every year, as well as 7 million tons of pesticides.

After the opening session, the teach-in split into five separate panels which are being held in the McLaurin and Elliott Buildings.

Trash Causes 'Deadly Dezzes'

Pollution is a word worn threadbare these days.

It takes the Grade 3 class of Mrs. Eileen Johnson at MacKenzie school to bring it back to life.

"I think Pollution is gas, paper, glass, old bark off trees, oil, apples, banna peels and polluting the air is one of the worrst problems that I can think of," says a little chap named Greg in his essay on the subject.

"Polluting is exzost, the smell of the mill and that is the worrst," he adds for good measure.

"If people who drive cars wood stop throwing trash out of there windos we wood not have to pick it ut," writes Phillip.

"I wood not like to pick up traash because I could pick up a deadly dezzes."

Michael notes that "smoke polluts the air and make people sick. And some people die from air."

"Don't have a magnifying glass and paper," warns Vivian. "Or you'll bern something up."

The kids are full of warnings.

"We shuldn't drink pollution watr for it makes you diee," according to David.

Steven sees some hope.

"I can stop pollution by putting up a singht," he says, "and telling my mother and father. thay will tell ther frends. And ther frends."

The disposal problems may be tedious but they can be licked, writes Tina.

"We can help by butting trash and litter in trash cans in stead of water. If a trash can is full but your litter in another trashcan. If all trashcans are full, but it in your trash can at home . . ."

It's not as simple as picking up trash, notes Michael.

"Pollution is when jets fly over and let out smoke. Pollution is when a car lets the smoke come out. Pollution is when a motorbike puts on his brake and kept his motor on."

In the same vein, Bill advises "tell your mother and Father to get a devise for the car."

When eight-year-olds get enthusiastic about such a subjust, it's liable to stretch the family drive and maybe daddy's nerves.

"If your father throws a pice of paper out of the windo tell him to stop in pick it up," suggests Calvin. "If you see any garbich on the rd. pick it up."

Today's pupils discuss current topics more than in the past, says Mrs. Johnson.

"They enjoy it. I think they're quite aware."

Water Rate Increase Expected Next Year

Greater Victoria residents can expect their water rates to increase by an average of 80 cents per individual next year.

Speculation predicting the increase followed a move Friday by the Greater Victoria Water Board which increased wholesale rates to municipalities by two cents per 1,000 gallons.

The increase was the first of a two-year plan by the board to boost wholesale rates by four cents per 1,000 gallons.

PASS ON COST

It was expected municipalities would pass the increase on to householders.

The predicted increase to individuals was calculated from water board estimates that water consumption in Greater Victoria averages 40,000 gallons per individual yearly.

Water commissioner Ron Upward said the increases are necessary to provide "water security" in coming years.

He said Victoria could face grave water shortages unless immediate steps are taken to upgrade and increase existing supply systems.

The wholesale rate increase is designed to inform municipalities of the water board's concern regarding a deteriorating water supply situation.

Upward said population growth is on the verge of exceeding the Greater Victoria board's capacity to guarantee a continuous supply in emergency situations.

"Greater Victoria is growing so fast that we can't really guarantee a continuous water supply now if the big pipeline were to go out of commission."

Victoria is served by two pipelines bringing water from Sooke Lake, a rugged 25 miles away.

Upward said the smaller of the two lines could not handle the overload flow if the big pipe were put out of action.

"We don't expect to have trouble with the pipeline," he said, "but it is our job to be able to cope with such a situation.

COULD HIT INDUSTRY

"If the big pipeline went now we'd have to put serious restrictions into effect for the six days or so required to do repairs. No water would be available outside houses, and we might even have to shut down some industry.

"Our pipeline system is stretched to the limit now.

"It's going to cost us $1 million a year from now on to finance expansion of water system facilities to provide security for the Greater Victoria area," he said.

ECLIPSE INVISIBLE

An eclipse of the sun, total in eastern North America, went unseen in Victoria this morning.

An official of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain said no sightings were recorded there.

"From this area the moon would cover less than 20 per cent of the sun," he said.

Observers within a line 60 miles wide stretching from Mexico to Newfoundland along the Atlantic Coast saw the eclipse as total.

It occurred between 9 and 10:30 a.m. Victoria time.

Arthur Mayse . . .

SOMETIMES THE WILDERNESS yields up those whom it has taken. But not always, and the outside world may never learn what happened to the occupants of a light plane that crash-landed on a Roderick Island mountain slope last November 10.

Searchers know that the pilot and his woman passenger survived the crash.

A log book and a diary found in the plane by a ground party last month revealed that the two had set out for the island coast. With a rifle, sleeping bags, compass, signal flares and food for about four days, they were better equipped than many who are forced down in wild country.

Yet they vanished without trace, and four months after they began their trek to Finlayson Channel, they are still missing.

Until Tony Karup filled me in on Roderick Island this week, I knew only that it was a land mass perhaps 15 miles long and eight broad that rides the tides approximately 120 miles south of Prince Rupert.

Karup, inspector for British Columbia's commercial fishing branch, knows more about that sinister upcoast island. He was its lone inhabitant for a spell in 1953, and has no wish to return to it.

He remembers it as a terrible place, matted with coastal jungle and seamed with precipices, one of which almost claimed his life. But not until he had come safely away did he learn that it was also reputed to be the Island of Bad Animals.

Roderick sits in an area of magnetic disturbance. It was this fact that brought Karup to it on a prospecting venture in a fishboat manned by Bella Bella Indians.

Magnetic yawing can be a clue to mineral deposits worth investigation.

Karup arranged with the fishermen to take him off in 10 days. Then, with his gear and supplies in a rowboat, he scouted out a landing spot.

What impressed him immediately was the near impossibility of travelling in any given direction. The rain-fed thickets and the massed salaal brush reduced progress to a step-by-step struggle. He had tackled bad going before, but Roderick Island gave bushwhacking ugly new dimensions.

However, he got around as best he could, with an eye peeled for interesting outcrops.

One day while he was fighting salaal on a tangled slope, the earth dropped from under him. Falling, he snatched at the tough stems, and managed to check his plunge. There was no going down, but he managed to haul himself up over the edge of the cliff that had all but trapped him.

The tenth day came, and he waited for the fishermen to arrive. They failed to show. So next morning he launched the rowboat. Determined to put the hostile island behind him, he began the long haul to Clemtu. It wasn't long until he spotted the fishboat. He hailed it, and the Indians tok him on board.

They had been circling off the island, they explained, waiting for him to come out.

Why hadn't they put in for him?

It was plainly an awkward question. He asked another. Why, when the island offered plenty of fur, did no one run a trapline on it?

This time he got a sketchy answer. Well, Roderick was one place they'd sooner keep away from. Bad animals lived there.

But they wouldn't reveal what kind of animals, and it was only later that a wholesale fish-buyer provided enlightment.

The creatures they had in mind were Sasquatch . . . hairy red giants which, according to Bella Bella legend, made Roderick Island their stronghold.

Tony Karup saw, sensed and heard nothing during his unrewarded stay that would lend credence to the legend. However, he wonders whether the magnetic mixup that lured him to Roderick could have contributed to the crash by affecting a low-flying plane's instruments.

A compass, which footsloggers wouldn't normally abandon, was found by RCMP searchers with other small gear a couple of miles from the plane this week.

What happened to the lost ones?

Karup saw no sign of deer on the island, but a man with a rifle might shoot the occasional blue grouse while his ammunition lasted. Maybe beaver too, if they weren't iced into their lodges, and possibly he would find coons on the beach.

But the pickings would be slim and the winter long on the Island of Bad Animals, and who can say . . .

CZECH CRAFTSMEN CHECK GLASS FOR CANADIAN HOMES

Decorative glassware from Czechoslovakia is a popular item with Canadians. In the picture at the left, a technician engraves one of a series of delicate Bohemian glass vases. The pattern is first marked on the glass, then the workman makes it permanent by cutting with a sandstone or carborundum wheel. Polishing with fine abrasives or etching with hydrofluoric acid (the only substance that will dissolve glass) restores lustre to the pattern. The centre picture shows a vase from the Prague museum which has provided inspiration for many modern goblets. It is believed to date back to 1605. At the right a master grinder in a factory in Anin in the Sumava Mountains inspects lead crystal glass.

CAC Presents Brief To Senate Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers Association of Canada would like to keep a critical eye on the quality of news in the same way that it watches standards in garments and soap, the special Senate committee on mass media was told Friday.

However, CAC representatives added, the organization lacks the necessary funds and personnel for continuing research to see whether Canadians are getting their money's worth from newspapers, radio and television.

Meantime, the right of consumer groups to initiate articles and programs should be recognized. Failing that, a press council should be set up to watch media standards, its members appointed by government.

LACKS STAFF

Senator Keith Davel (L—Ontario), committee chairman, said he had the impression that the association has been preoccupied with foods, drugs and textiles. Would the group not consider news at least as important a consumer product?

Frances Balls of Ottawa agreed, but said the association lacks the necessary research staff. Mrs. W. A. Brechin of Toronto said the association would like to study services, including news, but so far had lacked funds and personnel.

SEEK PROTECTION

The questions were prompted by a statement in the CAC's written submission that exponents of the consumer viewpoint in the media should be protected from "unfair reprisal from advertisers, government or its agencies or other interests which may be unduly sensitive to honest and forthright comment."

Asked for examples, Mrs. Balls said the CAC's Hamilton branch had cited a case in the last few weeks in which the local credit bureau had asked The Spectator not to publish contents of a CAC comment on credit reporting agencies. The report was not published.

She said the credit bureau had said the criticisms in the CAC report did not apply to it.

URGE CONTROLS

The CAC also urged legislative controls on monopoly, multiple ownership and foreign control in Canadian mass media.

In a brief to the special Senate committee on mass media, the 23-year-old organization for consumers said the legislation is required to prevent limitation of consumer access to information and ideas.

The association said it is concerned about cities which have only one newspaper and about single ownership of two or more media outlets in a single city.

"Multiple ownership of mass media throughout the nation presents the same threat on a national scale."

POTENTIAL DANGER

Media owners denied existence of censorship or manipulation of editorial functions, but there were potential dangers because of monopoly and multiple ownership.

The association also was concerned about majority financial control of mass media falling into foreign hands. Stringent curbs were needed to prevent loss of national autonomy and identity.

Also sought, although not through legislative action, was the right of consumer groups to initiate programs and articles in mass media.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Sharing I'll Omen

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend, who is 30 years old, lives with his mother who has been a widow since he was very small. (He always has.)

What puzzles and disturbs me is the sleeping arrangement at his house. He sleeps in the same bedroom with his mother. (Twin beds, but in the same room.)

There is another bedroom in the house, but it is full of junk, and they never seem to get around to clearing it out so he can move into it.

Do you think there is something abnormal here, and if so, is there any hope for a normal husband-wife relationship with a man like this? He has many wonderful qualities, such as attentiveness, belief in God, and faithfulness. I trust him completely and know he would be a good husband, provider, and father. But I keep wondering if this relationship with his mother might later ruin our marriage.—Puzzled.

DEAR PUZZLED: The only advice I can give you with the limited information you have given me is, don't marry this man until you are sure that he can live without his mother. I would not take lightly the fact that he and mama still share the same bedroom. It's not the healthiest omen.

DEAR ABBY: Our married children are always telling us they would like a photo of mom and dad, but they don't offer to pay for it, and we have better use for our funds.

Photographers go to schools and take beautiful photographs of children for a very reasonable price. Stores offer coupons to take lovely photos of babies for as little as 99 cents. But a regular studio photo of a couple costs a fortune.

Why don't some of these photographers get smart and offer picture coupons to us senior citizens at prices we can afford to pay? It wouldn't take nearly as much time to get us posed and "smiling," as it would a baby. Then our children would have a decent likeness to show to their children and grandchildren.

To future generations, a picture of "grandma and grandpa" together after 40 or 50 years of marriage might be someting to brag about. What do you think, Abby?—Old Folks.

DEAR OLD FOLKS: I think it's a great idea, and undoubtedly so will some sharp photographers—if they haven't already thought of it. But there will be some who will think it's for the "birdies."

DEAR ABBY: How can I keep a dear little old lady in her 70s from taking my newspaper every day? She tells me she doesn't think it's a good idea for my newspaper to be outside my door because it is a "signal" to burglars that nobody's home.

Abby, I work the 3 to 11 shift, and sometimes I sleep late, but when I get up I want my newspaper to be there!

Most of the time it's gone, so I knock on my little old neighbour's door and she hands it over, telling me she's had it at her "daughter's" house, or her "brother's house, or even to a friend's house down the street.

Any suggestions!—Annoyed.

DEAR ANNOYED: Yes. Tell your little old neighbor that you appreciate her thoughtfulness, but in the future you'll take your chances with the "burglars," so please leave your newspaper alone.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what you think of a 23-year-old married woman getting braces put on her teeth!

My husband says it's up to me, but he doesn't thing I need them. My parents think I am crazy. Please don't laugh, but do you think it would interfere with my kissing? If it would, I'd have to forget it, because I don't want anything to harm my happy marriage.

Abby, I have always wanted my teeth straightened, so please give me your best advice.

The dentist says I will have to wear braces for about a year and a half if I decide to have them.—J.J.

DEAR J.J.: If you want your teeth straightened, and it can be done, by all means do it. I doubt whether it will "interfere" with your kissing sufficiently to "harm" your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: You gave some good reasons why a man, if given a choice, prefers to date a divorcee over a widow. But you forgot one of the most important.

When a man takes a widow out, she usually spends the entire evening telling him what a great guy her husband was. But when a man takes out a divorcee, she's not about to rave about what a great guy her ex-husand was because if he had been all that great, she'd still be married to him—Lenny.

DEAR ABBY: I don't see what the controversy over sex education in the schools is all about. It's the parents who need the education, not the children. After all, it's the parents who are always asking, "Is that a boy or a girl? I can't tell the difference."—Salli.

Confidential to Worried Sick in Kansas City: I cannot guarantee that psychiatric treatment will change him. But it could help him to understand his problem. Accept it, and learn to live with it.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get if off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I've had a nervous breakdown in the planning stages for some time...Do we have anything else planned for this weekend?"

Policewomen Granted Equal Pay

CALGARY (CP) — The police commission has granted wage parity to the city's four policewomen.

But the commission decided the women will have to work as long as the men to earn the money.

Policewomen had been paid 7.6 per cent less than male members of the force but had worked 3½ hours less over a two-week period.

The commission was told that only policewomen in Windsor, Ont., had been worse off than those in Calgary, receiving 16 per cent less than the men. Seventeen policewomen in Edmonton have had wage parity for some time.

Police chief M. J. Kent said one reason for the difference in wages was that policewomen were primarily involved in the less dangerous areas of juvenile, fraud and morality offences.

But things had changed, with the city's policewomen integrated into the patrol division and performing a greater variety of duties.

Famous Figures of Past At 200th Birthday Party

LONDON (AP) — Madame Tussaud's wax museum celebrated its 200th birthday Thursday night at a gala dinner in the grand hall attended by 350 world famous guests. Half of them were alive.

Speaking for those enshrined in wax, Earl Mountbatten looked at his effigy across the room, identical down to the 10 rows of ribbons, and deplored how much hair he had lost since he was portrayed by the wax works 25 years ago.

Behind him on the dais, robust in freshly rouged wax, stood President Nixon, astronaut John Glenn in ghostly conversation with deceased Russian cosmonaut Yuri Gagarin, Egypt's President Nasser peeking over the shoulder of Jordan's King Hussein, Fidel Castro in freshly laundered fatigues; Winston Churchill, cigar at the ready, leaning over his easel.

At the banquet tables were the living versions of Home Secretary James Callaghan, jockey Lester Pigott, recently knighted actor Kenneth More, Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe, Earl and Countess Longford, model Penelope Tree and a number of others with an artificial alter-ego somewhere about the hall.

The famous waxworks had hit upon the idea of having as guests of honor at its birthday party anyone present in effigy in its halls.

On a shelf was the head of Canada's John Diefenbaker.
